[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 14.—The Popular Front alliance of communist, Socialist, and Radical Socialist parties, which has ruled France since 1936, tonight lies smashed to bits and a political struggle of historic importance is going on to see what combination of interests shall rule France in its stead.

Georges Bonnet.

The communists, by calling for a new government which truly represents the Popular Front, apparently are aiming at an all-Red cabinet in which they themselves would be represented. In a warning that any ministerial combination which grossly disregards the results of the 1936 elections would be inadmissible, they apparently were dropping a hint of civil war. The communists were not represented in the last cabinet but supported it in parliament.

Seek to Scrap Popular Front.

Moderate right wing parties are calling on the Radical Socialists to scrap the Popular Front entirely, desert their Socialist allies, and form with them [the moderates] a government committed to orthodox financial and economic policy.

President Albert Lebrun, who started the ritual of consultations among political leaders in the hunt for a new government, placed the task in the hands of Georges Bonnet tonight. Bonnet, former ambassador to the United States and finance minister in the fallen government of Camille Chautemps, promised to confer with various elements of the Popular Front and report back to President Lebrun tomorrow.

May Call In Herriot.

President Lebrun first invited Edouard Daladier, defense minister in the fallen government, and then Chautemps to form such a government, but both refused. Should Bonnet fail, Edouard Herriot, president of the chamber of deputies, and Albert Sarraut, minister of state in the recent government, remain as possible candidates. Chautemps, despite his first refusal, may yet be drafted.

Should efforts to form a radical Socialist government break down, it may be necessary to allow some Socialist, as representative of the biggest French party, to try to form a government—presumably with communist participation. Observers agreed this could not possibly succeed in the present state of things.

Capital Remains Quiet.

When that failed the left factions would either have to admit themselves licked and gracefully abandon the reins or get behind the barricades. It was not expected things would reach that stage. Barring some unaccountable popular upheaval or act of violence by some irresponsible agitator, observers believed, the country would get through this crisis without serious disorder.

Today and tonight the capital was

SWAPPING AGAIN

What's in a Name? Here's the Answer

Policemen of the Woodlawn station were so astonished Wednesday when they learned of Mrs. Florence Oliver's good fortune that they didn't recover sufficiently to tell about it until yesterday.

Mrs. Oliver, who is the wife of Dr. Marcus S. Oliver, physician, was held up in front of her home at 6801 Jeffery avenue the evening of Dec. 22. Two men stepped into her car and ordered her to drive to Jackson park.

Take All Her Jewels.

There, politely but firmly, they took her 10½ carat emerald cut sapphire ring set with diamonds, her platinum ring with thirty diamonds, her diamond dinner ring, her diamond bracelet, diamond wrist watch, and her fur coat. Then they ordered her to drive back to her home. Leaving her alone, they got into a car driven by a confederate and went away.

Mrs. Oliver told the police about it. She estimated her loss at $17,000, and added sadly that the gems and the coat were not insured. The policemen sympathetically said they'd do what they could. They found, in the next three weeks, that they could do nothing.

Gets a Package by Mail.

But on Wednesday Mrs. Oliver called the station and two detectives went to interview her. She pointed to a paper wrapped package she had just received by mail. It had been mailed at the Garfield park postal station and the name in the upper left hand corner of the package was S. Lucas, 4049 Fillmore street.

"Isn't it nice," asked Mrs. Oliver, "that the robbers should hear how I worried and send everything, every single thing, they took. And the coat was wrapped in tissue paper."

And the Detectives Agree.

The detectives said it was mysteriously wonderful that S. Lucas [no such person is known at the Fillmore street address, where there is a public garage] should have been so courteous. They couldn't understand at all until they learned Mrs. Oliver is a sister of Murray Humphreys.

Humphreys was one of Al Capone's most trusted executives. Dr. Oliver was with him in 1934 when he surrendered to Clarence Converse, United States internal revenue agent, to start serving eighteen months in prison for income tax evasion. Humphreys has been out of prison for two years now. He is still an important cog in local gang operations. Police believe his name was sufficiently potent to get results where the police themselves had failed.

SAVES TRAIN; REWARD? ASKS CREW TO WAVE TO HIM IN PASSING

Bluefield, W. Va., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Engineer J. A. Griffith said he believed it was just a prank last night when he saw some one waving a lantern ahead on the Norfolk and Western tracks near Carbo.

But he stopped and found a boulder had rolled onto the tracks.

"What can the railroad do in return?" Griffith asked L. H. Hackney who had saved the train.

"Why you fellows just remember to wave to me when you pass my house," was the rejoinder.

TUBE OF RADIUM VALUED AT $500 FOUND IN DRAIN

Racine, Wis., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Radium valued at $500 was recovered tonight from a drain pipe of a sink in St. Mary's hospital after a frenzied search. The metal, in a minute platinum tube, disappeared after it had been used in a treatment at the hospital Monday.

Max Is Cautious Fellow in Selling Nude Pictures

New York, Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Max Lewis, an art supplies dealer, heard that the police were cracking down on persons selling nude statuettes or books with nude pictures, so he decided to take no chances. That's why all his little reproductions of Venus De Milo and Mercury, and other traditionally uncovered subjects, today are draped with pieces of wrapping paper.

Ex-Premier Asks Damages of 5 Cents from Assailant

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Former Premier Mustapha Nahas Pasha today claimed damages of five cents—one piaster—from Abd el Kader, a youth who attempted to assassinate him last November. Nahas intervened as a "civil party" to claim the damages. The confessed assailant is awaiting criminal trial for the attack.

Homer Kicks His Way Out of Love's Arms

When David Dunn, a Checker cab driver, informed Mr. Homer Pittman last night that there was nowhere this side of Kentucky he could be married immediately to Mrs. Ruth Shumway of the Woodmere hotel—who was seated in the cab with him—Mr. Pittman shouted:

"Drive me there!"

Dunn demurred. It was too far and he didn't have enough gasoline. Thereupon Mr. Pittman, who lives at 4549 Drexel boulevard, kicked the meter clear out of the cab. This made the cab driver so angry that he took the loving couple directly to the Central police station and told his troubles to Desk Sergeant William Kells.

Marriage in a Hurry.

"This gentleman and this lady," he said, "got into my cab at State and Lake. They said they wanted to get married. The lady said to hurry up. So I drove them over to Tribune Tower and asked a nice young fellow if they could get married in Waukegan. He said no, that it took three days to get a marriage license in Illinois, and that they couldn't get one in Indiana at all.

"When I wouldn't take them to Kentucky the lady cried and this fellow stormed up and busted the meter. What I want is $1.50 for the ride and $130 for the meter."

Mr. Pittman paid the $1.50. He didn't consider the meter wrecking worth the price. So Sergt. Kells, disregarding the pleas of Mrs. Shumway, charged him with disorderly conduct and had him locked up. Mr. Pittman's fiancée accompanied him to the door of his cell and kissed him goodnight.

Mrs. Shumway Airs an Opinion.

Then wrapping her fur coat about her and dabbing large tears from her hazel eyes, Mrs. Shumway returned to the desk.

"What a police force," she said, "and what a tragic night for me. You do not know it, sergeant, but I am a widow, 28 years old. Mr. Pittman is 29. For a year and a half I have been trying to get him to pop the question and he never got around to it till tonight. Please let him out; he'll never be in this mood again."

But the sergeant said the only way to get Mr. Pittman out was to furnish $200 bonds. And again Mrs. Shumway wept.

UPSET IN TRADE BLAMED ON U. S. BY BANK CHIEF

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of Chase National bank, told the senate committee on relief and unemployment today that the blanket indictment of business by government officials was "most unfortunate," and that there was absolutely no foundation for the charge that bankers had gone on a credit sitdown strike.

Mr. Aldrich, speaking from notes and answering all questions after considerable deliberation, gave the senators a five-point outline of the factors causing the new depression.

Lists Five Factors.

They were:

1. First and foremost: "This continually unbalanced budget of the United States government."
2. Lack of confidence on the part of business and the investing public, induced by the policies of the Roosevelt administration, particularly the threat of government competition with private enterprise.
3. Repressive effects of high income taxes, the capital gains tax and the punitive tax on undistributed corporation earnings.
4. Excessive regulations of the Securities and Exchange commission which prevent a free flowing capital market. [Mr. Aldrich said his own belief was that the market should be just as broad and free as possible, with whatever restrictions as may be necessary to prevent abuses.]
5. Slackness in foreign trade which has injured the market of American producers.

Urges Utility Encouragement.

Mr. Aldrich said the privately owned public utilities could contribute greatly to a resumption of employment and were ready to go ahead fast if they could receive any encouragement as to the prospects for favorable expansion.

"Regulation has never caused me any fear," the witness said. "It is government going into competition with private business, with the utilities or any other industry."

Senator James E. Murray [D., Mont.], a hostile interrogator, asked Mr. Aldrich what he would have the government do toward coöperating with business.

"One thing about the government's attitude which is particularly unfortunate is the failure to distinguish between those who do things that result in fraud and the great mass of business men who feel exactly as you do that those things should be stopped," the witness replied.

Hits Blanket Indictments.

"Certain inflammatory statements are most regrettable. Those of us who feel as you do are put in a most unfortunate position when blanket indictments are hurled at us. After all, government is made up of individuals, just as business is. I don't think business should accuse the government of propaganda, or that government should accuse business of propaganda."

Senator Murray wanted to know whether there had been any action by the New York banks to hold down loans.

"Absolutely not," Mr. Aldrich said. "We've got some 600 million dollars in loans outstanding today."

Mr. Aldrich said the late summer decline in the stock market last year was received by every one with surprise and incredulity, because economic conditions and the business indices didn't seem to justify it. When asked for his opinion of the reasons he said the downward trend was caused in part by market conditions and in part by government policies. Emphasizing that there must be a desire on the investor's part to invest, which requires confidence, he said there was a general feeling that "certain government policies contributed to that decline."

Capital Market Hurt.

"I'd say," he continued, "and I imagine I'm in agreement with a great many others, that high taxes, the capital gains tax in its present form, and, above all other things, the undistributed profits tax were prominent influences in slowing down the capital market."

Mr. Aldrich did not contend that the capital gains tax should be re-

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Senator Josiah W. Bailey [D., N. C.] entertained the senate today with a disquisition on the habits and mental processes of Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior and prominent business baiter for the Roosevelt administration.

Senator Bailey amused himself by quoting from a book called "America's Sixty Families," by Ferdinand Lundberg, which Secretary Ickes cited approvingly in his recent radio diatribe blaming the new depression on a business sitdown strike and monopolistic practices of "economic royalists."

The North Carolina senator intimated that the book was garbage of a low degree, the product of a diseased mind, and that anybody who would rely upon it places himself in the same mental category.

Reads Passage from Book.

The senator produced great merriment when he read a passage from the book, as follows:

"Bathing is a frequent ceremony in upper class life, and the member of the average wealthy family is apt to spend much time in the bath, telephoning, transacting business with secretaries and housekeepers, reading, listening to the radio or the phonograph, visiting with friends. The psychologist Freud has a theory that frequent washing of the hands marks a betrayal of a subconscious feeling of guilt. Frequent bathing, by the same token, must then mark the betrayal of an even deeper feeling than subconscious guilt."

"So if you wash you are guilty," said Senator Bailey. "If you get into the bathtub you are condemned. That is a new doctrin in America, but I will say that I am ready for anything now. I have heard enough strange things not to be astonished at the bible of the secretary of the interior, Mr. Ickes."

Asks About the Bathtubs.

Senator Ellison D. Smith [D., S. C.] interrupted, but Senator Bailey, before yielding, asked whether he had bathed lately.

"If you have, I do not want to deal with you," Bailey said. Senator Smith, declaring he did not wish to betray his guilt, finally succeeded in getting the floor and asked:

"What significance should be attached to this new building of the interior department, which is honeycombed with bathtubs and all the latest accouterments of the sixty families to whom the secretary of the interior refers?"

"Very clearly, they are all guilty," said Senator Bailey. "I have never been admitted to the privacy of that gorgeous department down there. Intimations were made, you know, which made a man—a gentleman—a little reluctant to expose himself.

He Suspects Ickes Bathes.

"I would not care to impeach the secretary of the interior with the suggestion that he bathes, but I have read in the newspapers and I will state, as the lawyers say, on information and belief, that when his office down there was built he required, in addition to all the other

LEADERS CALL ON PRESIDENT; LEWIS IN FRONT

Ex-Brain Trusters Among Conferees.

Offer 63 Tax Changes

TAXES—Slight modifications in undistributed profits and capital gains taxes and increased levies on corporation incomes included in sixty-three proposed changes recommended by house subcommittee. Page 21.

UTILITIES — President Roosevelt said yesterday that he was determined to eliminate all holding companies. Page 21.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—At another conference with industrial leaders called by President Roosevelt for the asserted purpose of inspiring confidence and securing coöperation between business and government, the man who acted as spokesman and apparently managed the whole show today, was John L. Lewis, C. I. O. dictator.

The details of the discussion were not revealed, but it was reported that the business leaders asked the administration to state its aims clearly and cease its threatening attitude toward business. The statement was also made by Lewis as spokesman, with the nodding concurrence of all of the conferees, that the gravity of the existing economic situation was discussed with the President and the conferees were impressed with the desirability of working out with the administration some definite program of action by the government, business, and labor.

Ex-Brain Trusters Attend.

Not only John Lewis, but Philip Murray, his proconsul in charge of the steel industry, and two collectivist ex-members of the President's brain trust, were present at the conference with Owen D. Young, chairman of the General Electric company, and Thomas W. Lamont, partner of J. P. Morgan and company.

The brain trusters were A. A. Berle Jr., who, until recently was city chamberlain of New York in the La Guardia administration, and Charles P. Taussig, head of the American Molasses company, with which Prof. Rexford Guy Tugwell is associated. Tugwell was scheduled to attend, but he did not appear.

The fact that John L. Lewis assumed such a conspicuous rôle in today's confidence and harmony conference, the second of a proposed series, caused surprise and much speculation in Washington.

Hopes to Recoup Prestige.

The assumption in Washington is that Lewis was to arrange the conference and act as its spokesman for the purpose of restoring his waning prestige. There are evidences on all sides that the C. I. O. is cracking up, with wholesale desertions in membership.

Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers, has been demanding an accounting, threatening to withhold per capita tax payments unless some of the C. I. O. "paper unions" kick in. David Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers, has denounced Lewis for not accepting such terms as he could get and making peace with the American Federation of Labor.

Recall Break with President.

That Mr. Roosevelt would do all this for the purpose of giving Mr. Lewis some much needed prestige, was a subject of surprise and speculation because Lewis broke with the President after the failure of the little steel strike last year, accusing him of betraying labor. It was recalled, however, that Lewis went to bat for the President in his effort to obtain enactment of the scheme for the political regulation of wages and hours.

The C. I. O. put on all the pressure at its command, while the A. F. of L. fought the bill with equal determination. The result was that the President and Mr. Lewis received a tremendous licking at the hands of William Green, president of the A. F. of L.

Lewis' activity at the White House today would be calculated to build him up at the expense of Mr. Green. Prior to the conference, it was reported that the series of discussions was arranged by a then unidentified "labor leader," who was said to feel that the working man is suffering from the conflict between government and business. The labor leader was disclosed to be John L. Lewis.

Lewis Makes Statement.

At the conclusion of the conference Lewis pursed his lips importantly and said:

"We attended this conference with the President and discussed the gravity of the industrial and economic situation. This group has had some preliminary discussions and was impressed with the desirability, if at all possible, of working out with the administration a definite program of action by business, labor, and the government. The discussions will be continued at the President's discretion."

Pressed for his plan of action, Lewis said he was not in a position to say anything further at the present time. The other conferees nodded in agreement. None would add to the Lewis statement.

SEIZE EX-CONVICT AS WOMAN DIES AFTER QUARREL

Edward Webb, an ex-convict, was arrested last night in his home at 6222 Dorchester avenue for questioning about the death of a friend, Mrs. Lucille Freizlinger, 27 years old, 1404 East 73d street. Police did not doubt Webb when he said he thought she was still living, for the circumstances were these:

Webb called at her home Wednesday night, but because he had been drinking she and her mother, Mrs. Ida Tweedy, 60 years old, tried to force him to leave. In the disturbance Webb is alleged to have struck Mrs. Freizlinger. Police arrested him at the time on a charge of disorderly conduct, but he was dismissed yesterday for want of prosecution. Mrs. Freizlinger, who had not seemed seriously hurt, grew worse yesterday and died. Her skull had been fractured.

After his arrest last night Webb denied he had struck Mrs. Freizlinger, whom he had been courting. He pushed her during the quarrel, he said, and she fell. Webb is 24 years old. He served a term in Pontiac reformatory for burglary, and was discharged from parole last month.

SHERIF BANS ALL SLOT MACHINES IN LAKE COUNTY

All slot machines and pinball games in Lake county must go. This order, issued last night by Sherif Lawrence A. Doolittle, caps a cleanup move against gambling that started in Highwood several weeks ago.

Sherif Doolittle said his action is based on a petition of complaint, signed by 27 citizens, including Joseph L. Mull, a Democratic county leader, and two religious leaders. This was the first formal protest against slot machines and pin balls that he has received, the sherif said.

The ban against pinball games will not exclude Waukegan, where they are licensed. Waukegan has been getting about $12,000 in revenue from these licenses annually. Sherif Doolittle said he will ask Mayor Mancel Talcott to stop the games in Waukegan. If the city refuses, which he does not expect, he said, his deputies will seize the machines.

ICKES AND BATH THEORY EVOKE SENATE GUFFAW

palatial accouterments, that he should have a private bath, and that it should be in blue marble finished in gold.

"I have heard men who were admitted to these sacred precincts say that Mr. Gibbon's description of the luxuries of Caligula and Nero faded into insignificance in the presence of that great reality. But I am not saying that Mr. Ickes ever bathes. I would not strike below the belt. I would not go that far with a renegade Republican who has become a sort of half way Democrat."

Discusses Questions Further.

Senator Bailey then proceeded to go further into the business of bathing under the Roosevelt administration.

"Above all things, do not bathe," he said. "If you bathe, you are guilty. It evidences a feeling of subconscious guilt, and I understand that one of the most awful feelings in the world is subconscious guilt."

Taking up a more serious discussion of the book on which Ickes based his alibi for the current recession, Senator Bailey said he would pay no more attention to a man who gets his information from such garbage than he would to the man who wrote it.

Blasts Book's Author.

"But sometimes we have to protest," he said. "It is a disagreeable task, but we cannot stand here and let a cabinet officer proclaim this book as an authority without showing the interior evidence that it comes from a diseased mind.

"It came from garbage, and it is garbage. I have no complaint against a garbage collector. I can take off my hat to the humblest man who does the humblest job on earth. But when a man deliberately chooses to create garbage and sell it for money he has gone a little bit lower than the stuff in the sewer itself."

Senator Bailey said the author of the book filled Mr. Ickes "full of stuff that any man, however weak and however crazy, might have resisted, however blind and however partisan, might have discovered.

"I think the trouble with Mr. Ickes," he said, "was that he forgot to take a bath before he read that book."

GERMANS HONOR VISITING PREMIER OF JUGO-SLAVIA

ANNABERG, Germany, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Premier Milan Stoyadinovich, first Jugo-Slav statesman to visit Berlin officially since the world war, was welcomed ceremoniously tonight when he entered German territory at this frontier station. He was greeted by a guard of honor, headed by Chief of Protocol Buelow Schwante and high Nazi officials, who were to accompany him to Berlin, arriving there early tomorrow.

Stoyadinovich's visit officially was a return call for the one Foreign Minister Baron Konstantin von Neurath and Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, then minister of economics, made in Belgrade last June. It has been stated authoritatively that no new pacts or agreements were expected. His five day visit was scheduled to include a talk with Chancellor Adolf Hitler.

Where Taxes Go

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—Relief, the largest single item in government expenditures, now takes $19.53 out of every $100 in federal taxes.

This was shown today in a breakdown of estimated expenditures for the fiscal year ending next June 30, as shown in budget figures now before congress. The government will spend approximately $1,488,000,000 for direct and work relief, and another $310,000,000 for the Civilian Conservation corps, which will get $4.18 out of every $100.

After relief in the spending scale comes national defense, for which $12.91 of every $100 will be spent; then interest on the public debt, $12.51; social security, $8.89; veterans' pensions, $7.73, and the Agricultural Adjustment administration, $5.97.

Miscellaneous items, taking $28.28 of every $100, include expenditures for public highways [$3.78], various government departments, grants to public bodies, rivers and harbors, flood control, land reclamation, and various other projects.

MUSIC AND POMP PROMISED NAZI REGISTRY BRIDES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 14.—Bridal couples desiring the pageantry of church weddings will find their wishes fulfilled in the German registry offices in the future under an order of Dr. Wilhelm Frick, minister of the interior. He ruled that civil wedding services be carried out "in worthy festive surroundings."

The style has been set at Duesseldorf, where a hall now is provided for wedding ceremonies.

Enter to Strains of Music.

Describing the registry office ceremony in Duesseldorf, the Journal for Registrars explained how a wedding party enters the hall to the strains of "The Heavens Extol Eternal Honor." The source of the music is hidden. Before the music ends, the registrar takes his place, examines the official documents, and gives a brief introductory address. Handel's "Largo" follows.

Then all present arise and the registrar addresses the bridal couple, stressing the high value of the family to the nation.

Presents a Family Album.

When each of the bridal couple has answered "Yes," Haydn's "Antante" rings out. [This is the air of "Deutschland Ueber Alles," the German national anthem.] As rings are exchanged, the registrar recites Goethe's words: "A small ring defines our life and many generations attach themselves to its design of the eternal chain."

Grieg's "I Love Thee" is played as the register is signed, after which the registrar presents to the couple an official family album, which must be kept up to date. The wedding party leaves the registry office to the music of Lohengrin's wedding march.

DODD ENTITLED TO FREE SPEECH, GERMANY TOLD

Secretary Hull Meets Hitler Envoy in Washington.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Secretary of State Cordell Hull met an official German protest against a bitter anti-Hitler speech by former Ambassador William E. Dodd today with the explanation that American citizens enjoy the right of free speech.

Hans Heinrich Dieckhoff, the German ambassador, visited the state department to tell Hull that Dodd, who recently resigned from the diplomatic corps after five years as American envoy in Berlin, had insulted Hitler in an address in New York last night.

Aroused by Killings Charge.

In particular he was aroused by Dodd's statements that under Hitler "almost as many personal opponents were killed in five years as Charles II. [king of England] executed in 20 years of the 17th century," and that Hitler "now is more absolute than any medieval emperor of Germany."

Hull replied that Dodd had resigned his ambassadorship, now is a private citizen, and therefore enjoyed the freedom of speech guaranteed him by the constitution.

Enlarges on Statement.

Later the cabinet member explained to reporters that he naturally told Dieckhoff:

That Americans have all the political rights which the constitution provides and exercise them more or less extensively.

That here the government does not have control over the utterances of individual citizens.

That since Dodd, having resigned, is a private citizen, his utterances do not represent the views of this government.

In Washington, where he expects to remain two or three months, Mr. Dodd declined to make a statement on the Nazi protest until he has had an opportunity to discuss it with Secretary Hull tomorrow.

Berlin Papers Print Short Item.

BERLIN, Jan. 14.—(AP)—A three line reference to the protest of the German Ambassador Hans Heinrich Dieckhoff to Secretary of State Cordell Hull was all that was permitted to be printed here today concerning the anti-Hitler speech of William E. Dodd, former ambassador to Germany.

The item carried by the semi-official news agency, the Deutsches Nachrichtenburo, merely stated the German ambassador had protested against Dodd's "insulting references to Germany and the Fuehrer," in New York last night.

"We don't propose to take further notice," a government spokesman said.

Coal Act Denounced.

At the morning session of the committee J. D. A. Morrow, president of the Pittsburgh Coal company, one of the largest coal producers in the country, denounced the price fixing and regimenting restrictions of the Guffey coal act and expressed the opinion that "this depression was created here in Washington."

Mr. Morrow explained that under an order of the National Bituminous Coal commission, created by the Guffey act, no new contracts may be made for longer than 30 days and operators are forbidden by the law itself to ship coal on contracts made subsequent to June 16, 1933, at prices lower than the minimum fixed by the commission. This has had the effect, he said, of wiping out nearly all contracts and placing all sales on a spot basis.

Production Falls Off.

In August, he said, "the recession in industry began to have its effect on our production schedules and in spite of the fact that we began reducing our prices gradually in order to maintain production at our mines and employment for our miners the ensuing months witnessed a continuing decline in our output below our expected production.

"We finished the year with a total production of 12,200,000 tons, or 180,000 tons below the preceding year's output, and our average realization was 2.8 per cent per ton lower for the entire year than we had anticipated, and nearly 1,500,000 tons below our budgeted tonnage. Our average price for those last five months of the year dropped 3.5 cents per ton below our expected realization. The loss of 1,500,000 tons of production in those final months increased our costs 18 cents per ton above our budgeted costs on our total output for the five months.

Production Falls Off.

"On Dec. 16, 1937, minimum prices were put into effect by the National Bituminous Coal commission. The next week production in the United States as a whole dropped 30 per cent from the average of the preceding eight weeks. Pittsburgh Coal company production dropped 63 per cent from the average of the preceding eight weeks.

"We have endeavored to minimize the effect of this drastic loss of business upon our employés as much as possible. For the year 1937 the average number of employés on our mine pay rolls was 12,319. On Dec. 15 it was 12,445. Today it is 10,035, a reduction of 2,410 men, or 19 per cent, although our production has been curtailed, as you noted, by 63 per cent."

"I never saw anybody get ahead so fast"

"It's a big promotion, all right, but it wasn't entirely luck. Even if he is my son, I'll say he deserved it. He used to mope around, thinking the other fellows had all the luck. One day I suggested that he take a course of training and really get interested in his work. He studied hard but it was well worth it."

If you want to help your son, a little clear thinking may put him on the right track. The men who succeed and get big money are those who can command it by doing work the others haven't the training or ability to do. Study and training in his own, or some more profitable line, can make it possible for your son to get a better job at a better salary.

If you want to see your son succeed, spend a few minutes tomorrow reading the Tribune Educational Directory. In it you will find the announcements of schools offering regular and short courses in many specialized fields in which the rewards are great. Be sure to look for the Educational Directory tomorrow.

W. H. ONDERDONK, TRIBUNE BUILDING OFFICIAL, IS DEAD

His Talent Reflected in Tower and W-G-N Home

William Holmes Onderdonk, whose genius and experience have contributed much to the growth of Tribune properties in the last 31 years, died last night in Passavant hospital at the age of 59. He was vice president of the Chicago Tribune Building corporation and manager of THE TRIBUNE'S real estate.

Mr. Onderdonk became ill of pneumonia three months ago. He passed the crisis of the illness in his home at 405 Lake avenue, Highland Park, but was taken to the hospital when he failed to regain strength. Complications of the disease caused his death.

Mr. Onderdonk, who was born at Jersey City, N. J., moved to Evanston with his family at an early age. He attended the public schools of the suburb, then entered Northwestern academy, from which he enrolled at Northwestern university.

Enters Real Estate Business.

After completing his education he entered the real estate business in Chicago, learning much of property management and administration. In 1908 he joined THE TRIBUNE, becoming manager of the building at Madison and Dearborn streets, where the newspaper was then published.

When Tribune Tower was erected on Michigan avenue in 1925, the building corporation was formed with Mr. Onderdonk as vice president. Many of his ideas went into the building of the tower. During the months that its steel framework was being covered with stone he spent many hours a day among the construction crews, observing and advising.

This was true again ten years later when the home of W-G-N, THE TRIBUNE'S radio station, was being built just north of the tower. Many features of this structure are years ahead of similar ones erected later.

Supervised Other Buildings.

In addition to the Michigan avenue buildings and the one in the loop, Mr. Onderdonk had under his supervision the paper warehouses, color press and ink plants, and many other units used in production of the newspaper.

During his years of association with THE TRIBUNE, he was known to the people of all departments as Holmes Onderdonk, a pleasant associate and hearty friend. The first name, William, he never used. Though he was called upon constantly to make decisions of great importance, he was ever ready to assist in solving minor problems. And these came a hundred a day.

One of the greatest advances with which he was connected was the installation throughout the tower and Tribune plant in 1934 of an air conditioning system. With completion of this plant, air conditioning for large buildings emerged from its swaddling clothes. Mr. Onderdonk took active part in the research and supervised the installation. After the system began functioning, he designed changes and improvements that are now widely used.

Aided Medill Association.

In addition to his work for THE TRIBUNE itself, Mr. Onderdonk gave generously of his abilities to the Medill Building & Loan association through which many employés of the newspaper have been helped to own their homes.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Catherine Hamilton Onderdonk; a son, Dudley, who is employed in THE TRIBUNE advertising department; a daughter, Virginia, who is in England, attending Cambridge university, and three brothers, Dudley and John of New York, and Lawrence Onderdonk of Winnetka. Private funeral services will be held Monday.

3 MEN HANGED FOR SLAYING OF BANK EMPLOYE

New Orleans, La., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Joseph Ugarte, 27 years old, Owen Cauche, 29, and Anthony Dallao, 33, were hanged in that order this afternoon for killing a bank guard in a $3,100 holdup. The hangman—known to the public only as "Mr. Executioner"—worked smoothly, and completed his duties in about an hour.

Executed in Gas Chamber.

Florence, Ariz., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Elvin Jack Odom, 28, died in the state prison gas chamber today for the confessed bludgeon murder of Charles E. Goade, farm worker, in a robbery that netted Odom 54 cents.

Electrocuted in Texas.

Two Grandmas of Same Name, 88 on Same Day

Caldwell, N. J., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Today was the 88th birthday of Mrs. Sarah Jacobus, a grandmother and one of Caldwell's oldest residents. So she paid her usual birthday visit to Mrs. Sarah Jacobus, also 88 years old today, also a grandmother, and also one of Caldwell's oldest residents, to talk over "the good old days." The two women—they're not related—live across the street from each other and have been friends for sixty-five years. Then even look alike.

WINS DIVORCE AND $300,000 FROM R. D. LAY

2d Wife Charges C. A. A. Head Struck Her.

Robert Dwight Lay, president of the Chicago Athletic association and former president of the National Life Insurance company, was divorced yesterday by his second wife, Mrs. Frances Ida Kingcaid Loftis Lay.

Judge Philip J. Finnegan, who granted the decree, was informed by Attorney Andrew D. Collins, representing Mrs. Lay, and V. D. McConnell, counsel for Lay, that a substantial out of court settlement had been made. It was reported that Mrs. Lay received real estate, cash, securities, and a trust fund, the total amounting to more than $300,000.

Testifies Husband Struck Her.

Mrs. Lay is 53 years old and lives at 3466 Lake Shore drive. She testified that her husband struck her in the face on May 1, 1932, and again on the day of their separation, last Nov. 25. Since then Mr. Lay has been living at the Chicago Athletic club.

They were married Feb. 2, 1914, in Los Angeles, Cal. Because Illinois law then did not recognize the marriage of divorced persons within a year, they were remarried here the following Christmas day.

First Wife Divorced in 1914.

Both had obtained divorces about a year earlier. Mrs. Lay is the former wife of Joseph Loftis, diamond broker and jeweler. At one time she was named in a $25,000 alienation of affections suit by Mrs. John Wallace Oliver.

In 1914, Mr. Lay, who is 63 years old, divorced his first wife, the former Norene Sonsley. Later she sought unsuccessfully to increase her alimony from $300 to $500 a month.

Mr. Lay went to work for the National Life Insurance company in 1902. He served in several executive positions, and was president for 25 years. Before retiring from business, he also was an official of the Hydrox company and a bank director.

HOBO SAM HINTS HE'S A FUGITIVE, BUT GETS RELIEF

Everything Free and Easy; No Questions Asked.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

None of the hoboes who can easily get a week's free lodging and free food from the Chicago relief administration's bounty has to worry about any relief official prying into his past. Beyond having to give a few addresses [usually false] of places in other cities, nothing is asked of the hobo to determine whether he has a criminal record.

No matter how disreputable the hobo's appearance nor how furtive his manner he can pass muster and find his happy hunting ground here. He needs only say that it is his first visit to Chicago and that in the vague future he expects to get a job here or move on.

Sandusky Sam Comes to Town.

This was the experience of the reporter who assumed the name of Samuel Krug, late of Sandusky, O., and before that of Freeport, O., and Hartford, Conn. Sandusky Sam wore an old blue uniform, discarded by a hotel doorman, and with the buttons and braid torn off.

The uniform resembled a policeman's overcoat, but Sam wasn't bothered although he dropped several hints that he might be wanted in other towns. One relief worker did ask if the coat hadn't belonged to a policeman, but although Sam stammered and looked frightened, the point was not pressed.

Sam started his day's investigation by arriving at the shelter relief offices at 764 Harrison street shortly before 8 o'clock in the morning. He took his place in a line and didn't discover for an hour that as a transient he should have waited a door east, at 758 Harrison street.

Harry Gives Some Advice.

But in that hour Sam learned several things. Ahead of him in line was Harry, who has been enjoying a hobo's holiday here for several weeks.

"Don't tell them you're from out of town," Harry advised. "Tell them you lived in Chicago a few years and spent last night on the street. Then you won't have to go through the trouble of getting a social security card."

"That's right," put in another fellow just behind Sam. "They'll give you a day's meals and a flop for the night. Then you come back here tomorrow and do the same thing again. That way you won't need any medical examination. I'd hate to have them give me one."

Another man in line explained further that Sam would be given an application form when he asked for a night's lodging, and could fill out the form and bring it back next morning. But if Sam didn't want to make out the application he could just keep coming back from day to day.

25 Days of Shelter.

Harry said that he expected to fill out his application in a week or so, and then might get as much as twenty-five days' shelter and food, without having to return each day.

In reply to Harry's question, Sam said that he had just come in from Sandusky and hinted that the police there would be anxious to see him again. Sam raised his voice a little when he said this. A relief clerk glanced at him, then turned away.

Sam next got into the transient line at the adjoining building and was given No. 28. In front of him was a youth with a bloody face, who explained that he had got into a fight with a policeman. Sam again mentioned that he, too, didn't like cops, but a nearby relief worker didn't pay any attention.

Gets Social Security Card.

Sam soon arrived before a redheaded relief worker, who first asked if the hobo had a social security card. Sam didn't and was given directions to go to the security board offices at 173 West Madison street. He trudged there, answered routine queries as to his age, birthplace, name of his father and maiden name of his mother and was out of the office in five minutes, with his card.

Sam returned to 758 Harrison street and the redheaded relief worker. The man glanced up at Sam's coat and asked: "Is that a policeman's uniform?"

Sam stammered, flushed through his beard, and after a moment answered, hesitatingly: "No, mister. A friend of mine, who's a doorman, gave it to me."

He wasn't asked any more about that and after again answering routine questions, received a card for a physical examination. He descended to the first floor of the building and waited in line for the doctor. He waited nearly three hours, partly because an officious woman relief agent chose that time to check up on the medical equipment and to panter with the doctors.

Sam Gets an Examination.

At last, Sam and seven others in the line were called in. As the eight entered, Dr. C. Scruggs boomed out jocularly: "Any TRIBUNE reporters in this crowd?"

Sam repressed a grin, his back to the others in the room. Dr. Scruggs and another physician talked about two previous stories in THE TRIBUNE, by another investigator. A few of the men who had come in with Sam muttered that they'd like to wallop those stool pigeons, Brennan and Boyle [names used by the other investigator], who might "crab" a hobo's chances.

Sam and the seven others stripped to the waist and were given cursory examinations by Dr. Scruggs. Sam, who had never done much more manual work than pound a typewriter, was told by Dr. Scruggs that he probably would make a good ditch digger, and his card was marked "class A" for labor.

No Property, No Family.

Sam went back upstairs and filled out a four page questionnaire, writing that he had worked in the Ohio towns—Sandusky and Freeport—and in Hartford, Conn. He had no property of any sort and no immediate family, and was accustomed to earn from $8 to $12 a week, usually as a waiter in cheap restaurants or as a porter on a Great Lakes freighter.

Then Sam was called by the redheaded worker, raised his right hand and declared that his statements in the questionnaire were correct. He added that he hoped to get a job in Chicago, but wasn't certain and it would be at least a week until he got it.

"We'll carry you for a week," the redhead told him. "After that, if you get a job and still need help, come back here."

He gave Sam a card entitling him to seven days food and lodging in the shelter at 1426 Newberry avenue. Sam walked there and was told that while he could eat there, all the beds in the shelter were taken and he would be sent to a hotel at 617 Madison street.

Dinner in Mess Hall.

Sam ate a dinner of stew, bread, and tea in the shelter mess hall. Again, within earshot of shelter officials, he contrived to mention to a companion that he had had trouble with the police, but no one paid any attention.

Sam then went to the hotel on Madison street. Another hobo there was receiving commiserations on his tough luck in just missing out on a three horse parlay which would have netted him $1.42 for a dime. Some of the hobos pool their nickels and dimes for horse race bets, hiding the funds carefully from their fellows and the relief officials, and using their infrequent winnings for cheap liquor.

The hotel was of the flophouse variety. Sam didn't get a bed there because it was full and a clerk told him to go to the McCoy hotel, 949 Madison street. Sam protested at getting a run around. The clerk at first tried to placate him, then burst out: "Do you out of town bums think we're chumps in this town?"

Sam knew the answer to that, but he moved away grumbling and went to the McCoy. This was similar to the other hotel, having about 900 beds in cubicles separated by thin walls, and with cage wire overhead. Sam lingered a while in the lobby with several hundred other men, many of them transients. Once more he mentioned fear of the police and once more he wasn't questioned.

Gets a 30 Cent Bed.

Sam played checkers and dominoes with his companions and then went up to bed. His relief ticket entitled him to a cubicle, which otherwise would have cost 30 cents for the night.

There was one large toilet and washroom to accommodate the occupants of the 300 cubicles on the floor. At the Newberry shelter, Sam's clothes would have been deloused and he would have been forced to take a bath, but the McCoy hotel didn't have such requirements.

Several men glanced up a little surprised when Sam voluntarily got under a shower. Then he went to his cubicle. There was a chain on the inside, which he fastened, making sure no one could enter after him. The bed was not too hard and the sheets were freshly laundered. The snores and the fetid odor from other cubicle kept Sam awake for a while, but he finally dropped off to sleep.

He was awakened at 7 o'clock in the morning. From the lobby groups of hobos were beginning to move out into the street for their aimless wandering. They were satisfied with their lot; they knew the benevolent city would give them their meals again that day and their cubicle, or shelter bed, would be ready at night.

RULES TODAY ON ALIMONY PLEA OF $250 MONTH

After a hearing which extended into the evening yesterday, Judge Charles A. Williams announced he would rule today on the alimony petition of Mrs. Betty Lewerenz who is suing Dr. Carl T. Lewerenz, 453 West 63d street, for divorce on grounds of cruelty.

Mrs. Lewerenz accused the physician of altering his financial records for 1937. If they had not been reduced by half, said Mrs. Lewerenz, who formerly was her husband's secretary, they would entitle her to $250 a month alimony on the basis of a monthly net income of $1,000.

Dr. Lewerenz said his income was $200 a month. He admitted changing the figures, but insisted they were all too high.

Rehearing to Be Sought on Marriage Mill Ruling

A petition for a rehearing on the Indiana Supreme court decision stopping the state's marriage mills will be filed within twenty days, Attorney George Hershman of Crown Point said yesterday. He will file the petition in behalf of Dr. George W. Sweigart, Lake county clerk, whose license business has been in the doldrums since an injunction was granted last November restraining him from issuing licenses to women not residents of the county. The Supreme court upheld the injunction.

BRITISH TACKLE NO. 1 HEADACHE: HOUSEHOLD HELP

LONDON, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Britain's servant problem, for many years a national headache, tonight was headed for official government relief.

Ernest Brown, minister of labor, planned to put the vexing question up to parliament at the end of a six month tour of England, Scotland, and Wales.

In the meantime a private group has started a school for servants, which will be a feature of the domestic services' exhibition opening tomorrow.

Current wages now average about $5 a week and hours range from eight to sixteen a day. Other employment opportunities with higher wages, such as in munitions factind. British households have virtually no labor saving devices.

ORDERS DRUNK RELIEFERS SENT TO INFIRMARY

An order to send single men on cash home relief who are habitual drinkers or mentally disturbed to the Oak Forest infirmary for treatment was issued yesterday by Commissioner Leo M. Lyons of the Chicago Relief administration. Relief is to be stopped in such cases.

Lyons said that, while the CRA is giving shelter relief to transients, he believes that other communities are giving such relief to more men from Chicago than the CRA gives to out of towners. He said the men are given seven days in which to find a job here.

Upholds $6,500 Judgment Under State Dram Shop Act

Judge William J. Fulton, in the Du Page county Circuit court at Wheaton yesterday, refused to set aside a $6,500 judgment awarded Dec. 1 to Mrs. Barbara Fielitz of Elmhurst, widowed mother of eight children, against two tavern owners for the death of her husband, August, two years ago. The suit was brought under the Illinois dram shop act. Fielitz died of injuries incurred in a fall after he had been drinking in the taverns.

VERA SURPRISES LONG LOST MATE WITH A BLONDE

Now Things Look Dark for Him, Indeed.

When Mrs. Vera Uselding Joesel, brunette, saw her husband swinging down the street with a blonde she knew what to say. William had been missing for three years, which had given her plenty of time to think about it.

"What are you doing with my husband?" she cried, seizing the other woman's arm.

William, who also had had three years to prepare for such an emergency, rose to the occasion.

"Come on, don't pay any attention to her," he said, pulling his companion free. "She must be crazy."

Vera Learns the Answer.

So William and the blonde walked hurriedly away. Mrs. Joesel asked police to find them. After several months they did, and yesterday in the Felony court the brunette found out that the blonde was also Mrs. Joesel, whose title was won prior to her own.

William, 34 years old, a candy maker, smoothed his wavy blond hair and told Judge Oscar S. Caplan that he had married Grace Mohr in 1920 and had lived with her until early in 1928. They had one son, James, now 16 years old.

In November, 1928, he married Vera Uselding in Maywood and lived with her until 1934. They have two children, 5 and 9 years old.

He went back to Grace, who is 36 years old, because he thought he had somehow been divorced from Vera, he said. The judge stared incredulously.

"Anyway, Vera threw me out," William said.

It's Too Much for Judge.

The judge looked even more incredulous as he looked at the petit Vera and the broad shouldered William. Then he ordered William held to the grand jury in $3,000 bond on a charge of bigamy.

"May I kiss my wife good-by?" William said, as he was being led to the county jail.

"Which one?" asked Assistant State's Attorney Joseph O'Connor.

The two women went out arm in arm.

Finds Woman Ended Life Under Wheels of a Truck

Sioux Falls, S. D., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Mrs. Anna Anderson, 30 years old, was killed under the wheels of her husband's truck as he backed from the garage this morning. Coroner Martin J. Peterson said she committed suicide. Peterson said police reports showed Mrs. Anderson had lain on the driveway in front of the truck's rear wheels.

No More Alimony

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

MRS. MARY KILPATRICK.

Judge Charles A. Williams refused yesterday to increase alimony of $175 a month Benjamin G. Kilpatrick, trust officer of the American National bank, has been paying his first wife, Mary, since their divorce in 1933.

Mrs. Kilpatrick, who is 37 years old and lives at 2510 Prairie avenue, Evanston, said her ex-husband paid her $50 above the court order, but ceased after remarrying six months ago. The order includes support for their children, Mary, 14 years old, and John, 10 years old.

Judge Williams said the money should be more than ample for her needs. He also denied her request that she be allowed to renounce custody of the children in order to go to work.

JURORS DECIDE AGAINST WIDOW IN $30,000 SUIT

Mrs. Verda Matthews, 40 years old, 2322 Lincoln Park West, a widow, yesterday lost her $30,000 suit for damages against John Steele, 70, a retired tool and die maker, and his son, Howard. A sealed jury verdict in favor of the Steeles was opened by Judge William J. Wimbiscus of Spring Valley, sitting here in the Circuit court. Mrs. Matthews charged they assaulted her when she went to their home at 6447 North Newgard avenue Dec. 21, 1936, to collect a debt from Howard's brother, Milo. The Steeles and witnesses testified Mrs. Matthews was intoxicated and destructive.

A CHECK MISTAKE BRINGS JOY, THEN SORROW TO TOWN

Wisconsin Tax Fund Sent to Wrong Address.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—A $38,571 check that went to the wrong place and was cashed and spent caused embarrassment to a Progressive state senator and the state treasury department today.

Early last month the state treasury sent to each county and town in Wisconsin the annual checks representing their share of utility taxes collected by the state within their borders. So it was that last Dec. 3, Louis E. Boll, Lafayette county treasurer, opened his mail at Darlington, the county seat, and found, besides the regularly due state checks, an extra check for $38,571.

Boll was surprised and bewildered. Lafayette county's share of utility taxes seldom was more than $3,000 a year. He called in other county officials. They observed that the $38,571 would come in handy to pay off several Lafayette county debts, particularly one at the bank.

State Senator Has an Idea.

One of the officials suggested they call in their state senator, George Engebretson [Prog., South Wayne]. Engebretson, who rose from his seat only three times to speak during the 1937 legislative session, had a ready explanation. The $38,571 check, he advised, was the result of a new setup put into effect by the La Follette administration during the 1937 session of the legislature.

Lafayette county officials were surprised, pleasantly surprised, too, but it was no time to ask any more questions.

County Treasurer Boll happily indorsed the check and began paying off a number of county bills. Lafayette county's financial outlook was the brightest in many years.

Outlook Dark Elsewhere.

But at another place in Wisconsin, at about the same time, the outlook was quite dark. Two hundred miles northwest of here, in the little town of Lafayette in Chippewa county, officials wondered what had happened to their share of the tax on the Northern States Power company, the town's chief source of revenue. Their patience at an end, they wrote to the state treasurer. The treasurer then recorded the $38,571 check as lost, formally stopped payment on it, and directed the secretary of state to issue a duplicate.

But Lafayette county already had spent the money, state treasury officials learned today when they found out what had happened and asked Boll to return the $38,571.

"It was nice while it lasted," Boll said ruefully. "I guess Senator Engebretson was wrong about that new setup they passed in the last session. Now we'll have to go right back to the bank and borrow all over again."

A Mistake in Address.

The check was made out properly to the "treasurer of Lafayette," meaning the town, and correctly stated that the money was for taxes collected from the Northern States Power company, which does not operate in Lafayette county.

But the trouble started when the treasury, which sometimes handles 5,000 checks a day, made the mistake of addressing the envelopes to the county, instead of the town, of Lafayette.

So that's why some folks were happy, others were impatient, and quite a few in Lafayette county were thoroughly convinced that there isn't any new setup.

BARE DEATH THREAT OVER GIRL AGAINST VICTIM OF POISONING

Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Authorities investigating the death of Fred Acer, Columbia graduate student found dead of poison in a woods near here last Monday, said they learned today his life had been threatened because of his friendship with a certain girl.

Assistant District Attorney Elbert G. Gallagher said he had been informed that Acer, 26 years old, the son of a well to do maker of air conditioning devices at Medina, N. Y., had been warned before he went home for the Christmas holidays that he would be taken for a ride if he did not stop seeing the girl. The prosecutor said he did not know the girl's name.

Acer was found dead the day he was to return to New York. Learning he sometimes wandered in a daze from attacks of fever, police first believed he had fallen asleep in the woods and froze to death. Later poison was found in his stomach.

Ex-Premier Seeks to End Quarrel with Carol.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Jan. 14.—Red haired Mme. Magda Lupescu, friend of King Carol of Rumania, who has been credited with playing an important rôle in Rumanian politics for many years by dominating the king, gained new prestige today as her arch enemy, former Premier Juliu Maniu, leader of the National Peasant party, moved to patch up his long standing quarrel with Carol.

Magda Lupescu.

Maniu resigned the premiership in 1933 as a result of an argument with Carol over his friendship with Mme. Lupescu. Reports from Bucharest said, however, that he now is willing to forget this difference in view of a greater peril—the rise of anti-Semitic Octavian Goga as premier of Rumania.

Goga Régime Periled.

Although Maniu's move is expected to mean danger for the Goga régime, which, it is said, Mme. Lupescu helped to bring to power through her influence over the king, his willingness not to pry into Carol's private life will mean that the woman behind the Rumanian throne will have even greater power with the king.

While Maniu was reported ready to make peace with Carol in order better to lead an attack on Goga, the front against the new government appeared further strengthened when former Premier Alexander Vaida-Voevod had a two-hour audience with King Carol.

It was said that Vaida-Voevod, ousted from the National Peasant party because Maniu would not tolerate his anti-Semitic policies, told the king he was ready to make peace with Maniu and reënter the party.

United Front Forming.

In view of the fact that George Tatarescue, former Liberal premier, announced a few days ago that he, too, is willing to join Maniu to fight Goga, it appears that a united front against the present government is speedily forming.

The parties of both Tatarescue and Maniu control more seats in the Rumanian parliament than does Goga's National Christian party, but, because neither could command a majority, Carol called Goga to power. Goga immediately began to institute anti-Semitic steps and to turn from traditional Rumanian friendship with France to friendly dealings with Italy and Germany, a turnabout which has caused considerable worry in Paris and London.

Goga announced that he will call a new election, possibly in March, in an effort to strengthen his position.

Hungary Excludes Fugitives.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Regulations excluding fugitive Rumanians from Hungary were announced at a cabinet session today by Joseph Szell, minister of the interior. Frontier guards were instructed to watch to prevent entry of persons fleeing because of Rumania's anti-Semitic course. Jews will be permitted to travel through Hungary under strict control if they have visas permitting entry to some other country.

DENIES CANADA HAS SECRET PACT TO AID BRITISH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 14.—Faced with the allegation that the Canadian government has secretly agreed with the British government to send troops abroad in the event of European or Asiatic war, Canada's defense minister, Ian Mackenzie, today was compelled to declare publicly that "Great Britain has asked for no undertaking from Canada, and none has been given, and none exists." The "secret treaty" charge was made in a by-election in Montreal by Camillien Houde, ex-mayor of Montreal and former Quebec Conservative leader, who is running for parliament against four government Liberals.

REDS OF FRANCE BID FOR POWER IN NEW CABINET

Hint at Civil War if Terms Are Not Met.

perfectly quiet. The more irresponsible Fascist papers were trying to work up a Red scare and were mobilizing their own adherents as a precaution against it, but since the communist insurrection announced last night by the same papers in blood-curdling words turned out to be an innocuous demonstration of some 1,200 striking transport workers, nobody was inclined to take them seriously.

In the provinces strikes continued to spread. Workers occupied an artificial silk factory near Valenciennes. Street car employés at Nimes voted a walkout because of a prospective salary reduction. Metal workers at Lille decided to ask a wage increase. Public transport workers at Lille voted a general strike.

Iron mine employés in the Metz region protested the layoff of some men. Eighty-six workers in a gas meter factory at Issy-Les-Moulineaux, southwest Paris suburb, occupied the plant to show disapproval of the discharge of 44 employés. Ten thousand metal workers demonstrated outside factories at Valenciennes.

Financial Panic Abates.

The financial panic, however, was abating somewhat. Though currency exchange operations were suspended, the bourse remained open and government bonds were steady.

It cannot be denied, however, that a very serious political operation has been carried out and it remains to be seen just how the country will take it. By this afternoon, when the smoke of battle had cleared from around last night's and this morning's session in the chamber of deputies, it became apparent that the voluntary fall of Premier Chautemps' cabinet was a carefully planned parliamentary coup d'état and not just a case of the premier losing his temper over the kind of heckling from the communists to which he had been accustomed for months.

Tonight even the right wing papers, which applauded Chautemps' action, made no secret of the fact that he had been planning for several days to break with the communists.

A picturesque sideline on the political crisis and a factor which may have some real influence on it is the progress of the recent investigation of Les Cagoulards [the hooded ones], a rightist organization accused of plotting to overthrow the republic, set up a dictatorship, and restore the monarchy.

Today's development tops all the previous record for luridness. It is nothing less than a plot to assassinate a renegade member by putting deadly microbes in his beer. The executioner, it was alleged by police, got cold feet and failed to carry out orders. Denounced by some one, he was arrested yesterday, it was said, and turned over to the police a test tube containing a bacterial culture. Laboratory analysis revealed the presence of typhoid and paratyphoid germs.

JAPANESE BREAK CHINESE DEFENSE LINE IN SHANTUNG

Capture Tsining; Push On to the South.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 15 [Saturday]. (AP)—Japanese officials announced today that their forces in Shantung province had driven through the strategic city of Tsining southward toward the Lunghai railway and had occupied Thangchiakuo.

They said the Chinese 29th army, which had defended Tsining, was retreating toward Kinshan, twenty-seven miles to the south.

Chinese press dispatches conceded that the Japanese were in possession of Tsining, which was reported deserted by civilians and virtually destroyed by gunfire.

Chinese Battle Stubbornly.

Earlier a reënforced Chinese army, fighting savagely to stave off Japanese conquest of Shantung province, the nation's bread basket, was reported to have recaptured Tsining.

Chinese dispatches said the Japanese captors of the city were taken by surprise by a furious counter-attack over the frozen surface of the historic Grand canal and driven three miles from the city.

Tsining has changed hands time and again in the fighting of the last few days. The Chinese threat to the city was maintained because of their flanking movement against Yenchow, 20 miles to the northeast. A spur of the Tientsin-Pukow railway links the main line at Yenchow with the Grand canal at Tsining.

Chiang's "Last Stand."

The tide of battle in the great agricultural region of central China apparently still was in the balance as the Japanese claimed slow but steady advances toward the vital Lunghai railway despite determined resistance of a Chinese army estimated at 400,000.

Independent reports indicated Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, China's dictator, who is in personal command on the Lunghai front, was concentrating his utmost strength along the railroad. The great east-west trunk line through the heart of central China long has been considered China's last line of defense.

Jap Columns Close In.

Chiang was fighting two Japanese columns attempting to close in on strategic Suchow like relentless pincers from the north and south. Suchow is the junction of the Lunghai and the north-south Tientsin-Pukow railroad, which is the Japanese line of advance.

The Chinese have been recruiting new troops in the central provinces at a fast pace and were reported to have enroled 750,000 in the last six weeks. These men, with only the scantiest training, are being put into action against about 100,000 trained Japanese troops in Shantung and Kiangsu provinces.

The northern and southern Japanese columns were 180 miles apart, each an equal distance from Suchow. The Japanese announced that their southern column had captured Linhwaikwan.

Bomb Southern Railway.

Other war fronts were quiet except for Japanese air raids directed mainly at the railroad linking Hankow, one of China's temporary capitals, and Canton.

Two of the best known military figures in China were reported to have been relieved of their commands. Feng Yu-hsiang, China's picturesque "Christian general," was said to have been replaced by Gen. Chen Chien, vice minister of war, as commander of the Peiping-Hankow railroad zone.

Gen. Yen Hsi-shan, one time virtually omnipotent governor of Shansi province, was reported to have been displaced by Gen. Chu Teh, leader of the Chinese communists, as commander of the guerrilla warfare in the north.

Terrorists, opposed to Japanese control, took further toll in Shanghai today. Two more highly placed Chinese, favorable to Japan, were shot and seriously wounded. They were Y. T. Van, a prominent lawyer, and Y. L. Dau, a philanthropist. The assassins escaped.

Harass Japs in North.

PEKING, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Foreign observers today estimated that 100,000 Chinese communist and irregular troops were operating against the Japanese armies attempting to consolidate their conquest of North China.

These troops—the Japanese admit they number at least 30,000—have been concentrated mostly in Shansi province, but some have approached to within a few miles of Peking, seat of the Japanese-inspired "provisional government of China."

One unit of the Red army fought a five hour battle with Japanese troops Tuesday near Mentoukou, twenty miles west of Peking, before they were driven off.

Japanese advices said the communists killed a train guard and wounded several Japanese, including two newspaper correspondents, in Shansi province yesterday by dropping grenades from high cliffs on a train traveling on the narrow gauge railroad from Shihchiachuang, Hopei province, to Taiyuan, Shansi province capital.

NAZI ENVOY SEES JAP CHIEF; PEACE TALK IS HINTED

TOKIO, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Dr. Herbert von Dirksen, German ambassador to Japan, through whom Japanese proposals for peace recently were reported transmitted to China, today conferred with Foreign Minister Koki Hirota.

It could not be confirmed that terms for ending the war in China again were discussed, but Domei, the national news agency, said "important matters" were considered. Dictator Chiang Kai-shek of China was reported to have rejected previous Japanese terms.

Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoe was received by Emperor Hirohito, whose sanction was obtained for a statement on results of the imperial conference held in the emperor's presence last Tuesday. The cabinet previously had approved the statement, understood to set forth Japan's "unshakable policy" concerning the conflict with China.

SHANGHAI TRADE SHOWS INCREASE DESPITE THE WAR

SHANGHAI, Jan. 15.—[Saturday.]—(AP)—The Shanghai customs administration today issued figures showing an increase in exports during 1937, despite nearly six months of hostilities between China and Japan, compared with the preceding year.

Imports were valued at $508,844,000 Chinese [$149,905,442] during the year as against $553,094,000 Chinese [$162,941,492] in 1936. Exports were valued at $404,395,000 Chinese [$119,134,767] as against $361,400,000 Chinese [$106,468,440] in 1936.

LOYALIST TROOP TRAIN DESTROYED BY REBEL PLANES

HENDAYE, French-Spanish Frontier, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Insurgent bombing planes destroyed an entire train bringing up government reinforcements to the Teruel front in eastern Spain, it was reported today. Insurgent dispatches said the government was moving new troops into the hotly contested sector in anticipation of a new insurgent offensive. Teruel was captured by the government Dec. 21 in a drive that caught the insurgent garrison by surprise.

The rebel offensive, border advices indicated, was likely to get under way as soon as the rains which fell recently in the area have ceased. The Guadalavia valley around Teruel is flooded and the lowlands are virtual swamps.

Report Plan for Madrid Drive.

Though the government's communications east and south of Teruel were bombarded by the insurgent air fleet, today was one of rest for the ground troops since the downpour forced a temporary halt in movements of infantry and heavy equipment. The government said the rebel air raids did little damage to the main highways leading into Teruel.

Dispatches from insurgent sources declared the rebel troops had consolidated their positions in eastern Spain into "the strongest lines in a year."

There were reports also of a plan for a direct rebel assault on Madrid, the long-besieged former capital 135 miles west of Teruel. It was generally admitted, however, even by the insurgents, that considerably more than 100,000 men would be necessary for such an attempt.

Confirm Madrid Blast.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Six British Laborite members of parliament, returning from government Spain, confirmed reports today of a "terrible explosion" in which from 500 to 600 persons were said to have died in Madrid. Authoritative reports this week said the blast occurred in a subway station as a crowded train passed. There have been no reports from Madrid, apparently because of censorship.

Emanuel Shinwell, leader of the M. P.'s, said they heard a "terrific report" but had "no time to visit the scene." He said the explosion occurred while the party was on its way to a reception.

Other members said the blast apparently was in a munitions dump in the underground station. The explosion "considerably perturbed" the Spanish government, Shinwell said.

PROTESTS JAPS' U. S. PROPERTY RAIDS IN CHINA

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—(AP)—The state department today announced that Consul John M. Allison in Nanking had notified the Japanese embassy there that Japanese soldiers continued to enter American property and remove goods and employés of American institutions, despite a previous American protest.

Allison cabled that the soldiers did this without giving notice of, or reasons for, their action.

The employés of American institutions mentioned in Allison's dispatch today were believed to be Chinese. The American property referred to lies outside the embassy compound.

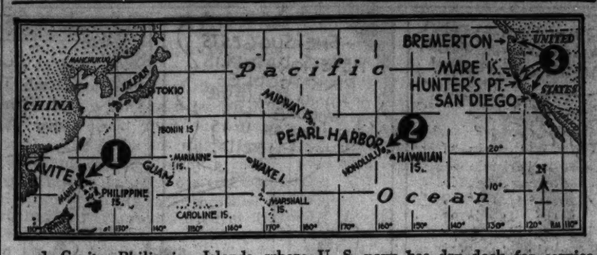
PLANS BALKED FOR PACIFIC DRY DOCK



1. Cavite, Philippine Islands, where U. S. navy has dry dock for service in the far Pacific. 2. Where plans for mid-Pacific dry dock have been balked because appropriation is far less than bids. 3. Sites of present facilities on west coast—dry docks at Bremerton, on Puget Sound, and at Hunter's Point, San Francisco, accommodate battleships, and that at Mare Island navy yard, San Francisco, takes cruisers and destroyers, while a marine railway at San Diego takes destroyers for bottom scraping and minor repairs.

Bids Are Too High

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—Planning another dry dock to augment those already available for use of the Pacific fleet, the United States navy has been seeking without success a company which will build the proposed Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, floating dry dock for $10,000,000. So far the Bethlehem Shipbuilding corporation has been the only bidder and its bids were rejected as too high. The corporation set its price at from $16,604,000 to $21,312,000, depending upon equipment. It is believed congress, which had expected its appropriation of $10,000,000 would finance the project, will have to raise more money. The dock, designed as the world's largest, is to be used for repairing warships.

FRENCH REQUEST LEAGUE TO DELAY COUNCIL SESSION

GENEVA, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The French government today created a stir in league of nations circles by asking that the league council session set for Jan. 17 be postponed to Jan. 26.

Some league officials expressed belief this action might indicate a desire to reconsider France's fundamental position concerning the league and might not be due primarily to the cabinet crisis in Paris. It was announced other member nations were being consulted and it was believed the French request would be granted.

Britain Pushes Reform.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The question of league of nations reform, following the shift of Austria and Hungary closer to the Rome-Berlin axis, apparently became an urgent matter today in the British foreign office. Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden abruptly broke his vacation in southern France and hurried back to London to see Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain. His unscheduled return was understood to have followed a long telephone conversation with Chamberlain.

Egyptian Troops Swear Allegiance to Farouk

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Troops in every Egyptian garrison swore allegiance on the Koran today to their young commander in chief, King Farouk. In Cairo 7,000 troops massed outside Abdin palace to take their oaths.

Prowler Seized in Hotel Near Suite of Windsors

PARIS, Jan. 14.—(AP)—A man was arrested today when he was found prowling in a corridor of the Hotel Meurice, just below the suite occupied by the duke and duchess of Windsor. Police said he was identified as Olaf Karlson, 56 years old, convicted of theft in 1934 and ordered expelled from France the following year. He was held on a charge of violating an expulsion order pending investigation of his activities in the Meurice.

A BRITISH JUDGE REFUSES TO FLOG AMERICAN THIEF

LONDON, Jan. 14.—(AP)—An English judge refused today to order the flogging of James Hynes, a confessed American robber. Hynes, who is 53 years of age, was sentenced to 12 years' imprisonment.

The justice pointed out that Hynes had been declared unfit for flogging and he added coldly, "We are not dealing with the wild west."

Hynes had pleaded guilty to a $95,000 Mayfair jewel robbery, which the prosecution called "a most un-English type of crime." He was accused of "robbery with violence" in taking gems from the apartment of Mrs. Millicent Hesketh-Wright after binding Mrs. Hesketh-Wright and her maid.

Police said Hynes was a native of New Jersey and had a record of ten convictions before 1923, mostly in the New York area. They said he also had been convicted several times in England.

Canada's Only Dirigible Mast Is Sold for Scrap

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 14.—Canada's only dirigible mooring mast, erected in 1929 at St. Hubert Airport in Montreal to receive the R-100, was sold for scrap iron today. Authorities said the mast, placed in the center of the airport, endangered planes. It was felled by dynamite.

TRIFLES

By CALEB

A FRIEND of Michelangelo, observing him at work upon a statue upon which he had been engaged some days earlier, said, "You have been idle since I saw you last!"

"By no means," replied the sculptor. "I have retouched this part and polished that; I have softened this feature, and brought out this muscle; I have given more expression to this lip, and more energy to this limb."

"Well," said his friend, "but all these are trifles."

"It may be so," said Michelangelo, "but recollect that trifles make perfection, and that perfection is no trifle."

Although few people can hope for perfection in their daily lives or routines (who knows what perfection is?), there are many details surrounding most of us which, with but slight attention or revision, would make our lives better.

I know one woman whose entire life—and the lives of many of her associates—would be changed if she wore comfortable shoes.

A man who eats a table d'hote luncheon in a large club overeats daily, because he pays for the entire meal whether he eats little or much. His whole life is affected by a daily few bites of potato, a few pats of butter, and other trifles.

A girl whose heels are habitually run down has missed several opportunities for advancement because this trifle gives her an air of untidiness.

Trifling errors in grammar affect the future of some of us. Many a woman would make a far better appearance if she would buy a few trifles in the way of collars and other accessories for the dark apparel she wears.

The department store contributes to the success of many important phases of life—providing a new baby's clothes, for instance, a budding youth his first long pants, or the bride her trousseau.

But it spreads its influence over a great many more lives through the things it sells which in themselves are only trifles, but which, effectively performing their functions, make lives move a little in the direction toward desired, even if impossible, perfection.

FLORIDA FISHING SPORTY PASTIME FOR TRAILERITE

Salt and Fresh Water Varieties Abound.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Trailer Camp, Delray Beach, Fla., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Fillet of black bass and of equally delicious snook was served for breakfast in THE TRIBUNE'S trailer this morning, less than 24 hours after the fish were fighting a rod and reel up the St. Lucie river, a two hour drive from here.

The meal was one of many splendid ones that my wife has cooked on a two plate electric stove and a combination electric grill and toaster. There isn't any story in trailer cookery—at least not from the standpoint of an eater—because the menus are no different from those at home.

The sport of catching the fish was typical trailerdom recreation. Charter boats for $25 a party take trailerites off shore to troll the edge of the gulf stream for sailfish; George Kuehl, New York importer, caught one a little over seven feet long a few days ago.

Plenty of Shore Fishing.

On the beach there is surf fishing for blues and for snappers and sand trout. On bridges over the coastal canal hand lines and cane poles wait for the wide variety of game found in the shallow salt water.

We left West Palm Beach with Burt Truitt, a guide, in a truck with a boat trailing behind. In two hours we were casting plugs, each toss a prospect for a tarpon, snook or a bass. Fresh and salt water fish mix on this river invaded by tides twelve miles from the ocean.

Schools of small tarpon, apparently weighing about six pounds, were tantalizing. They swirled and splashed the surface of the water, but wouldn't strike. Only one hit a bait and he spit out the plug with one jump into the air.

Snook Give Most Sport.

A school of small snook, most of them about fourteen or sixteen inches long, supplied more sport. They dived at surface plugs, missing most of the time, probably intentionally. Four were hooked, each making a lively fight. The largest, weighing five and a half pounds, was kept for food and the others were turned back to grow.

At the edge of hyacinth beds showing a few purple flowers, bass were lured from their hideouts. We fumbled a number of strikes, but found six that could be landed by our inexperienced tactics. The largest, that is the largest of those caught, weighed two and a half pounds and his meat was part of this morning's breakfast.

There were hours when nothing was biting and we didn't see a sign of a fish. But when casting and hoping we were able to watch small white clouds cross a blue sky over a mangrove swamp with a few tall palms. The sun was hot.

For salt water fishing, and this applies to tide waters of canals and rivers, no license is required. For fresh water fishing a three day license may be purchased by a nonresident for $1.75. The nonresident license for a year is $5.50.

1,954 LOSE LICENSES AS DRUNKEN DRIVERS IN INDIANA IN 1937

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—A pronounced increase in drunken driving on Indiana highways was recorded in 1937. The number of licenses revoked for drunken driving last year was 1,954, compared to 1,231 in 1936. In all, 2,585 motorists lost their licenses through revocation, an increase of more than 90 per cent over the 1936 total of 1,410.

Of 40,000 motorists who have taken examinations for licenses this year under provisions of a new law, approximately 10 per cent, or 4,000, failed to pass. Most of those were unable to pass physical or mental tests.

FIND A MAGICIAN (NO HOUDINI) IN PRISON CENSUS

Crime led the 5,693 inmates of Joliet and Stateville penitentiaries away from 217 occupations, including farming, concert singing, cigar making, and engineering. Even a former magician and a finger print expert are among the prisoners, according to the survey yesterday by Warden Joseph E. Ragen.

The prison population is drawn from forty-six states, Porto Rico, and the Phillipine Islands. Cook county led the list of counties represented with 4,098 men in the prisons. Peoria county was second with 123.

Twenty-three per cent of the convicts were sentenced for robbery, 13 per cent for murder, and only .02 per cent for sex crimes.

Gunman Rings Up 'No Sale' in Cafe, Makes $18 Profit

FOUR MOTORISTS ARE PUNISHED FOR ERRATIC DRIVING

Four motorists were convicted in the Safety court yesterday of wild and drunken driving. Judge J. M. Braude suspended the driving privileges of all, fined three and sent one to jail.

CHARLES DALIEGE, 1709 Jackson boulevard; ten days in jail, fine of $100 and driving suspension for ninety days; driving while intoxicated.

DAVIS BELL, colored, 1427 West 14th street; fine of $25 and suspension for sixty days; reckless driving.

WALTER STRACHS, 1101 North Clark street; fine of $15 and suspension for thirty days; reckless driving.

In Markham, a warant was issued for Harold Lyon, 3614 West 69th street, when he failed to appear before Justice of the Peace Walter C. Dohl on a charge of ignoring a trafic signal.

PRISON GUARD KILLS SELF.

Chester, Ill., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—I. B. Walker of Patoka, Ill., a guard at Southern Illinois penitentiary, killed himself early today. The body was found by his two daughters, Esther and Mildred. His wife had left him.

MINE OPERATOR KILLED.

Petersburg, Ind., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—William C. Birl, 52 years old, who operated a coal mine 3 miles east of here on state highway No. 57 was killed today by three tons of falling slate. He left a widow and three children.

"Mother always gives me Father John's Medicine for my cold... She knows-she's used it for years."

GUARD CHILDREN FROM MEASLES, BUNDESEN WARNS

Because of an outbreak of measles, Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, yesterday warned parents to isolate their children from persons with colds and to call a doctor at the first sign of illness.

Since Jan. 1 there have been 1,282 cases reported. This is an increase over the same period last year, but Dr. Bundesen said a comparison of figures would be unfair, since outbreaks of measles come in cycles. Most of the cases are in the Austin, Garfield Park, Woodlawn, Englewood, Roseland, and North Center communities.

FUNISHED FOR QUITTING BABY.

Clinton, Ia., Jan. 14.—(Special.)—Found guilty of abandoning her new born baby in corn, Heich Otto, 19 years old, unmarried, was fined $400 and costs and began today a three months' sentence at the women's reformatory at Rockwell City.

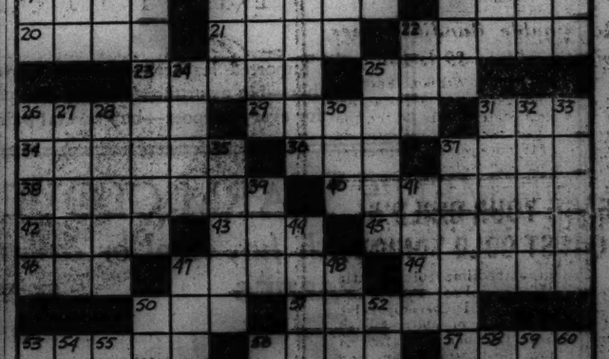
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



PUT DIETERICH'S POLITICAL FUTURE UP TO PRESIDENT

Leaders of Illinois Factions to Visit White House.

BY PERCY WOOD.

President Roosevelt will hear from the opposing Democratic factions of Illinois next week at conferences which politicians believe will determine the political future of Senator William H. Dieterich of Beardstown.

Mayor Kelly said last night that he and P. A. Nash, national committeeman, expect to see Mr. Roosevelt on Tuesday. At about the same time Gov. Horner announced in Springfield that he was leaving for Washington on Wednesday with a White House invitation in his pocket.

The governor, who often speaks for downstate since it assured his renomination in 1936, has been antagonistic toward Senator Dieterich because the latter did not support him, and has been considering backing one of a trio of downstaters—Congressman Scott W. Lucas of Havana, John E. Cassidy of Peoria, or Speaker Louie E. Lewis of the Illinois house—against him in the primaries on April 12.

Chicago Faction in Pledge.

Since the Nash-Kelly Chicago organization has taken no action on the senatorship, their leaders are not bound by a commitment to Senator Dieterich, although Dieterich supported the organization ticket in the 1936 primaries. In many Democratic quarters, however, Dieterich has been called too heavy a load to carry and the Chicago organization will have its own county, sanitary district, judicial, and legislative slates to nominate.

But the mayor would not talk about Senator Dieterich last night, save to say that he and Mr. Nash expected to discuss the senatorship and other matters with the President.

Mr. Kelly will leave for Washington on Monday for a meeting Tuesday morning of the executive committee of the United States conference of mayors. Mr. Nash will come to Washington from his farm in Kentucky to join the mayor for the White House conference. Since Gov. Horner will not arrive in Washington until Thursday, it is not likely that he and the mayor will meet there.

Refuses to Name Choice.

The governor repeated in Springfield yesterday that he had no doubt the downstate would present a candidate for the senatorial nomination in the primaries. He would not elaborate or name his choice, but recalled to interviewers that he had previously made know his opposition to Dieterich.

It was considered more than happenstance that United States Attorney Michael L. Igoe left for Washington yesterday, ostensibly to attend a dinner. Mr. Igoe has been mentioned repeatedly as a high caliber darkhorse in the senatorial situation, acceptable to the Chicago organization, in the governor's confidence as well, and with a third claim for consideration by virtue of being a Roosevelt appointee. Mr. Igoe might be planning to wait over in Washington and watch next week's conferences from the side lines.

VAN NUYS WILL RETURN HOME TO MEET HIS AIDS

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Friends of Senator Frederick Van Nuys said today that he will return to Indiana as soon as the anti-lynching bill is disposed of in the senate. He will make his headquarters at the Spink Arms hotel here where he will confer with lieutenants from throughout the state regarding plans for renomination.

The senior senator repeatedly has indicated that if the statehouse Democratic faction dictates omination of his successor in the state convention, he will run independently.

Van Nuys has told his supporters that his candidacy has been helped by the announcement of Samuel Jackson, Fort Wayne, that he will seek the nomination.

CURED OF GRAVE ILLNESS CAUSED BY RABBIT FOOT

Reasonable Bandit Agrees with Cashier; $9 Is Enough

"Enough," said William Farnum, 65 years old, cashier in a restaurant at 404 South State street. So the robber who had taken $9 and was demanding $15 more yesterday shrugged his shoulder and walked out.

EASE YOUR CHILD'S CHEST COLD TONIGHT

Tonight, at bedtime, rub his little chest with stainless, snow-white Penetro. Penetro is the only salve that has a base of old-fashioned mutton suet together with 113% to 227% more medication than any other nationally sold cold salve. Creates thorough counter-irritant action that increases blood flow, stimulates body heat to ease the tightness and pressure. Vaporizing action helps to "open up" stuffy nasal passages. 35c jar contains twice 25c size. Ask for Penetro.

Evelyn Keyes with Director Cecil B. De Mille.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 14.—[Special]—Just a year ago Cecil B. De Mille, the movie director, "discovered" Evelyn Keyes of Atlanta, a blonde, and gave her a chance in pictures. Today Miss Keyes accompanied Mr. De Mille back to her home town for the première of the new picture. She was given a police escort and entertained by numerous groups.

BIDWILL TO SEEK SEAT IN SENATE SEIZED BY FOES

Ousted by Democrats, He Will Run Again.

Arthur J. Bidwill of River Forest, the young Republican who was ousted from the state senate in 1935 by Democrats who contended he had been defeated by Charles F. Baumrucker, but who refused to open the ballot boxes and count the votes, will make another race for his old seat.

Bidwill was unanimously endorsed by a majority of the Republican committeemen in the 7th senatorial district at a meeting last night in the home of Arthur N. Haugan of River Grove, committeeman for Leyden township. Bidwill announced his candidacy after this action was taken.

Baumrucker Likely to Run.

Unless the Democratic organization rules otherwise, Senator Baumrucker is expected to run for renomination. At the time the senate, by a vote of 30 to 14, ousted Bidwill and declared his opponent had been elected by a majority of 60 votes, it was openly charged that the Democrats were merely obeying an order transmitted to them by P. A. Nash, Democratic national committeeman who is also Cook county chairman.

Nash's brother, Richard, was Baumrucker's political sponsor, it was asserted. At any rate, the senate refused to open the ballot boxes despite vehement protest from the Republican minority led by Senator Richard J. Barr of Joliet. Only one Democrat voted for Bidwill—T. V. Smith, the University of Chicago professor who represents the 5th [Hyde Park] district.

Nelson Out for Treasurer.

Other political news yesterday included the announcement that Oscar Nelson of Geneva, former state auditor and state treasurer, would file for the Republican nomination for treasurer. He was treasurer from 1923 to 1925, when he was elected auditor. He was reëlected in 1928, serving until 1933.

Petitions for United States senator were circulated yesterday along the north shore in behalf of Congressman Ralph E. Church [R., Evanston]. Other petitions were previously circulated for Church's renomination for congressman from the 10th district. Mr. Church has not announced whether he will run for the senate or for his present seat. John Fay Harris of Lake Forest yesterday said that he would file against Church for the congressional nomination.

George Dowell of Duquoin Candidate for U. S. Senate

Duquoin, Ill., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—George W. Dowell of Duquoin, chief counsel for the Progressive Miners of America, indicated today that he would be a candidate for the Republican nomination for United States senator at the April primary. He said he had been urged by party leaders to make the race and expected to confer with some of his supporters in Chicago tomorrow. His supporters, he said, were agreed the Republican senatorial candidate this year should be a man with a labor record.

PRESIDENT BANS ELECTIONEERING FOR HIGH COURT

Checks Senator Lewis on Submitting Names.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Assuming a lofty attitude toward nominations to the United States Supreme court, President Roosevelt today warned Senator James Hamilton Lewis [D., Ill.] that any indication that a man was soliciting appointment would be taken as an evidence of his disqualification.

The President, it was understood, told Senator Lewis that it would be wise for all senators to advise their friends and protégés not to seek recommendations in their behalf.

Thus anticipated by Mr. Roosevelt, Senator Lewis was not at liberty to present the names of any Illinois possibilities for the existing Supreme court vacancy when he called at the White House.

Indicates Illinois Has Chance.

The President, however, indicated Illinois was not necessarily excluded from consideration. Senator Lewis refused to discuss details of his conference, but intimated Mr. Roosevelt's first consideration is one of geography, a question which he himself must determine. For this reason it is believed a man from the unrepresented middle west or far west will be appointed to the vacancy caused by the retirement of Justice George Sutherland, effective Jan. 18.

It was further intimated the Sutherland vacancy may not be filled immediately, that the appointment may be held up pending further developments in the illness of Justice Benjamin N. Cardozo. Justice Cardozo, who is 67 years old, is suffering with shingles and heart attacks, and there have been fears he might not recover.

Easterners in Favor.

If Mr. Roosevelt should have two vacancies to fill instead of one, the geographical factor would be modified. He is said to be desirous of appointing an easterner — possibly Senator Robert F. Wagner [D., N. Y.], Felix Frankfurter, Harvard law professor; James M. Landis, dean of the Harvard law school, or Ferdinand Pecora, a judge of the New York Supreme court—but does not wish to do so until he appoints a westerner first.

Senator Lewis already has presented the names of Justices Warren Orr and Norman Jones of the Illinois Supreme court and of Gov. Henry Horner to the justice department as possibilities for the existing Supreme court vacancy. Horner's name was submitted at the request of Illinois Democrats, Lewis said.

There is a belief in Washington that if Mr. Roosevelt should appoint anybody from Illinois it would be Donald R. Richberg, former general counsel and later board chairman of the NRA and at present an influential brain truster.

Seeks Illinois Relief Funds.

The purpose of Senator Lewis' visit at the White House today was to urge Mr. Roosevelt to put pressure on WPA Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, who has just left the Mayo clinic in Rochester, Minn., for a rest in Florida, to increase the relief allocations for Illinois. At the request of Mayor Kelly, he told the President of distressed conditions in Chicago, with thousands of people being evicted from their homes for nonpayment of rent and landlords being unable to pay taxes.

James Straka, 144 South 20th avenue, Maywood, wasn't sure yesterday if he was coming or going. First his ex-wife, Mrs. Anna Reichert Straka, 23 years old, persuaded Judge Charles A. Williams to sentence him to six months in jail for owing her $254 in alimony and support for their son, James Jr., 5.

Then she changed her mind, bursting into tears and pleading that he be kept out of jail. But her mother, Mrs. Bessie Reichert, insisted that he be locked up.

After a conference Mrs. Straka's attorney, Joseph L. Mark, said she wanted the jail order expunged without any strings. Outside of court, Mrs. Straka said she wouldn't try to collect any more alimony from Straka if he would pay up the arrearage. This he promised to do.

FIREMAN'S DEATH IN CRASH BLAMED ON FALSE ALARM

A false alarm of fire turned in on Dec. 15 resulted in the death yesterday of Joseph H. Bogan, fireman attached to the hook and ladder company at Pulaski road and Wilcox street. The truck on which Bogan was riding skidded around a corner, crushing him between the truck and a trolley pole. Bogan, who died in St. Anthony's hospital, lived at 5042 Quincy stret and is survived by his widow and two children.

John W. Kitchen, 60 years old, village collector of Evergreen Park, died last night in the Doctors hospital of injuries suffered on Jan. 5 when he drove his automobile into a viaduct support at Morgan and 75th streets. Mr. Kitchen had been village collector for three years. He lived at 9334 Utica avenue, Evergreen Park.

John Pauluzzi, 48 years old, a beverage distributor, was killed yesterday when he smashed his automobile into a truck in U. S. Route 20, eight miles west of Elgin. Icy pavement was blamed for the crash. Pauluzzi lived at 807 Houghton street, Rockford. William B. Jarchow of West Chicago, the truck driver, was slightly hurt.

Dr. Herbert Struthers, 65 years old, physician of Grays Lake, was critically injured last night when his automobile collided at North and Glen Flora avenues, Waukegan, with a truck driven by William Welch, 435 4th street, Waukegan.

Evanston police yesterday were holding Eli Coplan, 32 years old, 1240 Central avenue, Wilmette, who was arrested after a collision at Ridge road and Lyons street. Police said Coplan admitted having had eight glasses of wine.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 57 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since the first of the year. Of these, 38 were killed in Chicago, where 584 were injured in the same period.

[See editorial page for massacre clock.]

EX-LIQUOR SALESMAN DIES.

WRIGHT VENIRE QUESTIONED ON INSANITY STAND

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Prospective jurors in the trial of Paul A. Wright, former airport manager, on a charge of the murder of his wife and his best friend, John B. Kimmel, were questioned today as to their attitude toward an insanity defense. Three psychiatrists appointed by the court sat beside the defendant at the counsel table and observed his demeanor closely.

Eight men and four women have been passed for cause by counsel for both sides. With the resumption of the case Monday morning attorneys for the state and defense will begin exercising peremptory challanges.

Wright has pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity. There will be no hearing on the insanity plea unless he is convicted in the present case.

SATURDAY NEWS OF NEW BOOKS

Here's Sample of the Variety in New Books

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

The presses have gone into a steady and persistent whir piling up books of all kinds. This week's fare of these utterly unalike books is a sample of their variety:

Negley Farson Turns to Travel in Tropics.

"Transgressor in the Tropics," by Negley Farson. [Harcourt Brace, $2.50.] Published Thursday.

The author of "The Way of a Transgressor," that frank record of a life bursting its seams with adventure, continues the recital in "Transgressor in the Tropics." His record, one says, rather than his autobiography, because, although "The Way of a Transgressor" was little concerned with subtleties of psychology or with the mental process of a young American's growth into a cosmopolitan, it was an excellent autobiography from the standpoint of showing how events molded the fate of one young man. This new book is merely a record of sights and sounds and states of mind which an excellent journalist observed in a trip from London to South America, through the Caribbean, touching at vital spots in Venezuelean, Colombian, and Equadorian life and politics, and meeting a lot of queer fish hither and yon. Sights, sounds, ideas, humans caught by his sharp eye and quite as sharp pen are vividly alive in these apparently casual pages.

Political and social South America are here for those who feel that travel primarily is a social education. Negley Farson met the right [and the rightly wrong] people everywhere to give both sides to the pictures he saw. He explains what must have been a hopeless political muddle to most readers. But politics and the state of the working classes are only part of what he was traveling to see. A man who is as much of an individual as this one always bumps into individuals, and one finds quite as many interesting human beings in his pages as one finds ideas.

One also finds strangely fascinating sights. The color of the tropics, in its superlative gaudiness, is here, and unforgettable descriptions of the grandeur of the Andes, the boring dullness of the sand-flat seacoast.

"Transgressor in the Tropics" gives the reader the sense of having seen strange sights, talked to exciting people, learned a lot about the far world, all with that rarest of human beings—the perfect traveling companion.

Robert Nathan Pens a Refreshing Story.

"Winter in April," by Robert Nathan. [Knopf, $2.] Published Monday.

With literary bombs bursting in air, with half the novels concerned with social upheaval, the other half with historical upheaval, Robert Nathan takes his skilled pen in hand and writes about young love and the eternal quality of life renewing itself at the font of youth.

The tale is told by one of the book's three main characters, a scholar and a member of the academy, a man nearing 70, and one remembers that Mr. Nathan's "Autumn," written when he was himself almost absurdly young, is one of the finest tales of old age in our generation. The old man's household consists of his young granddaughter, not yet 15, and an autocratic Irish cook, until fate sends, in the person of an exiled young German professor, a secretary to him and the god of her dreams to the little girl just growing into womanhood.

With superb delicacy Mr. Nathan tells of the child's subterfuges and gaucheries, of the young man's gentle remoteness, of the old man's tolerant and wise understanding. There is nothing mushy about any of it, and nothing unreal, except the final gesture of the dignified old man's breaking in a shop window with a brick to get his granddaughter's dress, and that, one is sorry to say, is definitly unreal. The rest of the book is the rightest kind of right, done in the most difficult kind of gossamer texture for any author to achieve.

Kenneth Horan Adds to Her Recollections.

"Oh, Promise Me," by Kenneth Horan. [Doubleday Doran, $2.] Published a week ago yesterday.

NOVELISTS

gan last year with "Remember the Day" have been complemented in "Oh, Promise Me," which remembers the days after her father was elected to congress and took Eastmeadow, Mich., to Washington instead of being the Mahomet of Michigan to whom the social and political mountains came, as they did in "Remember the Day."

With papa and mama away so much, except in the constantly recurring emergencies when one or the other rushed home on the special to untangle vital family knots—like housecleaning and Aunt Melony's fourth marriage and the disappearance of their trusty from the state penitentiary which happened suspiciously simultaneously with a murder—there were not so many famous visitors as filled the pages of "Remember the Day," but their absence is no cause for mourning. "Oh, Promise Me," even more than its predecessor, is an authentic and delicious period piece of the nineties.

Evanstonian's Second Novel Skilfully Done.

"The Wax Apple," by Mary Jane Ward. [Dutton, $2.50.] Published Thursday.

This second novel by a young Evanstonian is done with strength and skill and with a running ironic comment something like a modern Greek chorus. A character talks, and it is good, everyday talk. The character thinks, and the thoughts are set down in the same honest, idiomatic language. Another character, or a group, add their comments in THEIR idiom. And there you have the person, what he thinks, what the person he is with thinks, what the neighbors think, all in the round. "The Wax Apple" is interesting in its technique.

The plot is a modified "Street Scene," with the street one in Chicago's Ravenswood. The main characters are the Scherers—father, mother, and three grown children living at home in the upper flat—and the Scherer's friends, the Lundmarks—father, mother, and grown daughter and son—who have been their tenants for twenty years in the lower flat. Ordinary people to whom nothing ever happens! What finally does happen is as inevitable as that other inevitable thing, taxes.

Elmer Rice Displays Skill as Plot Maker.

"Imperial City," by Elmer Rice. [Coward-McCann, $3.]

"Imperial City" is a long and crowded book that grabs your interest in the first chapter and never lets it go until the last page is finished. It has a vast canvas, all of New York City, above and below the equator of intelligence. And it is, maybe, just a little too ingeniously plotted, with everybody's life affecting everybody else's a little trickily. But it has to the nth degree the "it" of a novel. Any reader, though he can see the wheels go around with the accuracy of an electric clock, is fascinated by their turning.

Elmer Rice's experiences in the theater have taught him the art of plot carpentering that many a far greater novelist has never learned. His first essay as a novelist proves that the cunning of "Street Scene" was no chance. He can make his New York live in a novel as well as in a play.

Old Names and New Are Added to Poetry Shelf

BY RUSSELL MACFALL.

Old names and new burgeon in print on the winter shelf of poetry. To the first class belongs Ezra Pound, who carries on one of the longest poems of our time in The Fifth Decad of Cantos [Farrar & Rinehart, $2]. This intermittently obscure and typographically delightful treatise on the evils of usury and centralised credit will be chiefly memorable to the average reader for several interludes, as refreshing as an oasis.

Quite otherwise in theme and spirit is Padraic Colum's heroic poem, The Story of Lowry Maen [Macmillan, $1.90], which sounds the knoll of Ireland's bronze age to the clank of sword on shield.

Edgar Lee Masters' latest work also is in the grand manner, an epic of America from the Northmen until today, called The New World [Appleton-Century, $2.50]. Mr. Masters sings the virtues of the wanderers who colonized our land, and the fathers who won us a nation, and pours out his scorn on the makers of the civil war and our industrial empire. Anthologists will some day glean the poem for some of its author's finest verses.

History has also left its mark on Allen Tate, who has collected toge her in Selected Poems [Scribner, $2] such of his verses as he chooses to preserve. Mr. Tate is a southerner, garbed in the melancholy of a lost cause, obscure, somber and symbolic, yet one of our most powerful poets.

Another from the south is Kathryn Worth, whose Sign of Capricornus [Knopf, $2] is as conceitful as Donne but phrased in imagery drawn from modern science. A sequence of child poems addressed to her daughter eloquently testifies to the richness of her talent and prove that hers is a new voice to be reckoned with.

Memorable phrases break the even tenor of Helene Margaret's The Great Horse [Farrar & Rinehart, $2], which is a long narrative poem describing the Mormon flight from Nauvoo, Ill.

Two women, both well known prize winners, one in drama and the other in fiction, contribute collections of their recent verse. The Hills Grow Smaller [Harpers, $2] is representative of the skilled and sensitive art of Zoe Akins, already familiar to magazine readers. Josephine Johnson is less personal; in Year's End [Simon & Schuster, $2] she speaks for the poor and embittered; frequently she is a revolutionary; always she is intense and impressive.

Louis MacNeice, an Irishman, is a disciple of the Auden-Spender school of poetry, now at the height of its influence in England. His Poems [Random House, $2.50] is immensely clever, intoxicated with words and ideas, but English in its casual erudition and careful negligence.

With W. H. Auden he is also author of Letters from Iceland [Random House, $3], which attempts to crystalize the essential spirit of the land into letters, essays, and poems.

"From These Roots," by Mary M. Colum. [Scribner, $2.50.]

"I Hear America," by Vernon Loggins. [Crowell, $2.50.]

In "From These Roots" Mary Colum traces the ideas and growing fund of experience that are producing the literature of today. Dr. Vernon Loggins, a professor at Columbia university, takes up and amplifies her conclusions in his volume.

Mrs. Colum, wife of the Irish poet, Padraic Colum, goes back more than a hundred years and finds the root of our modern writing in the criteria of criticism expounded by the Germans, Lessing and Herder; the Frenchman, Saint-Beuve, and the English poets, Wordsworth and Coleridge. She carries the roots through the Russian writers and finds a fruition of true literary principles in the stream of consciousness style of Marcel Proust.

But Mrs. Colum has few kind words for other contemporaries. Her complaint is that the literary heritage is often squandered in writing colored with propaganda. One of her tenets, carefully developed, is that sound critical writing is a necessity, often a precursor, to great literature.

Dr. Loggins is more tolerant of the contemporaries, devoting his study particularly to American writers. He discusses in detail forty-four representative authors, finding as much good as bad in them, and concluding that only the passing of years can give a true perspective on their work. The imaginative fervor of the 1920's has run its course, however, he believes, and American literature is again in the doldrums. S. M. K.

World Travels from Feminine Viewpoints.

"Petticoat Vagabond — Up and Down the World," by Neill James. [Scribners, $2.75.]

"I've Been Around," by Claudia Cranston. [Lippincott, $2.50.]

Vagabond voyages of all kinds, from campus thumbers to tropical beachcombers, have been successfully published, but the feminine globe trotter of limited means is a rarity. Neill James worked her way around the world twice and the well written account of her unusual odyssey makes brisk reading. "Petticoat Vagabond" is informative and entertaining, though maps and illustrations are missed.

Claudia Cranston, whose "Sky Gypsy" was a successful South American travel book of last year, has written vivaciously about another jolly jaunt, this time completely around the world. The author, unlike Miss James, travels first class and stops at luxury hotels, so her viewpoint is a bit different. But "I've Been Around" is a gay, lively volume. It is well illustrated. A. C.

Presents Able Picture of Latin America and its Complex Elements

"America South," by Carleton Beals. [Lippincott, $3.50.]

The average reader, with the usual misconceptions about our Latin American neighbors, is due for a number of shocks from Carleton Beals. Among other things Mr. Beals says that Pan-Americanism, as cultivated by the United States state department, is a rank failure and that democratic government is practically unknown south of the Rio Grande.

Mr. Beals knows what he is talking—or writing—about when on the subject of the Latin American countries, land, and peoples. He has traveled and studied there for 20 years and, in "America South," he again demonstrates that he is an excellent reporter, analyst, and writer.

In 518 pages Mr. Beals gives a remarkably complete picture of the complex elements in South America and the Isthmian countries. He goes back to the Aztecs and the Incas to trace the roots of difference between the people of North America and the people of South America.

If You Drive at Night, Eat Vitamin A, Authors Advise

Many automobile accidents at night could be avoided if drivers would get more vitamin A in their menus, C. C. and S. M. Furnas say, in their new book, "Man, Bread and Destiny" [Reynal & Hitchcock, $3]. The lack of vitamin A causes the retina to lose its ability to adjust itself quickly to changes in light.

VAN LOON begins with the cave-drawings of 35,000 B. C. and comes down to our own day, with way-stops at Egypt, Babylon and Chaldea; at the Athens of Pericles; amid the mysterious remains of Etruscan art; in Byzantium and medieval Russia: in the desert of the Islamites and the gardens of Persia, in Provence, Renaissance Italy, Rembrandt's Holland and Beethoven's Vienna. We read not merely about the towering figures—Leonardo da Vinci, Michelangelo, Velasquez, Wagner, Beethoven—but explore a thousand bypaths. Always the emphasis is laid on the human beings who made that art and who have heard it, viewed it, enjoyed it for hundreds of centuries. THE ARTS is a book of over 800 pages, with more than 100 full-page illustrations, 48 in full color drawn by Mr. Van Loon himself.

THE books above are what the Book-of-the-Month Club calls "book-dividends." Every three months the Club distributes a valuable library volume free—those above, given during the past three years, are merely presented as an illustration of the kind of book given. Their total retail value is $44.70.

As a member you would receive each "book-dividend" distributed, in accordance with your purchases. Our records show that for every two books the average member of the Book-of-the-Month Club buys, he receives one book free.

RIVAL DAIRYMEN SEIZED IN MILK PLANT SMASHING

3 Arrested After Story of Ax Threats.

Three officials of a rival dairy company were charged with malicious mischief and intimidation last night after the Albany Park police investigated the wrecking and burning of the Belmont Farm Products company plant at 2714 Belmont avenue Thursday night. Damage to the plant was estimated at $5,000.

Those held were Ross Prio, 39 years old, 6138 North Campbell avenue, president of the Uptown-Chicago dairy at 3639 Harrison street; John Ingraffia, 29 years old, 1952 Addison street, treasurer of the company, and Sol Miller, 39 years old, 3533 Sheffield avenue, a salesman for the dairy. They denied knowledge of the crime.

The wreckers entered the Belmont dairy through a skylight and using axes smashed three pasteurizing machines. They set fire to the plant with naphtha and gasoline.

Tells of Threats.

The arrests were made after Gustaf Palmer, president of the Belmont company, and two independent milk retailers, who purchased their supplies through him, told of being threatened by Miller, Prio, and Ingraffia.

"Our company," said Palmer, "was organized a few months ago. About the same time the Uptown-Chicago firm moved to its new quarters from 2238 Fullerton avenue. Some retailers who had been buying from Uptown didn't care to go so far south for their supplies and transferred their business to us. About a week ago Miller and Ingraffia told me to quit selling to these men—that they were just a lot of communists. I said I intended to sell to them as long as they paid for milk. Miller said, 'You'll see pretty soon you can't get away with that.'"

Retailer Backs Palmer.

Joseph Bart, 3084 Elbridge avenue, one of the independent retailers who shifted his allegiance from Prio's firm to Palmer's, said Prio warned him recently that unless he returned as a customer he would "find an ax in his head." He added that Miller and another man followed him on his route recently and that he called on the police for protection.

CLASH IN COURT ON CONFESSION OF UNION AGENT

Attorneys for Gus Novotny, business agent for the Upholsterers' union, who is on trial before Judge Joseph Sabath on a charge of malicious mischief, argued yesterday against the admission into evidence of a confession the defendant made after his arrest.

Steven [Red] Straza and John [Fat] Jendrach, who were indicted with Novotny, but obtained separate trials, have testified that he hired them to break windows and toss stench bombs into shops whose owners refused to join the union.

The confession, the state maintained, was obtained from Novotny without compulsion. Defense Attorney Harold Levy argued that he was not warned the statement would be used against him and that the police treated him roughly. Judge Sabath is to rule on the admissibility of the confession later.

SUES C. I. O. UNION AND ITS LEADERS AFTER DISCHARGE

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—War between C. I. O. leaders and the German-American Volksbund, a Nazi organization, resulted today in a $15,000 damage suit being filed against a C. I. O. local and its leaders. The action was taken by George Froboese, state commander of the Volksbund.

Froboese charged that the Nordberg Manufacturing company, where he was employed five years as an engineer, was compelled to discharge him under threats of its C. I. O. local to start labor trouble. He said union animosity against him was due to his position as head of the Volksbund.

He named as defendants the Nordberg C. I. O. local, Harold Christoffel, head of the Allis-Chalmers C. I. O. local and editor of the Allis-Chalmers Workers' Union News; Arthur Volstenholme, publisher of the workers' paper; Carl Lau, and Richard Roe.

Attacks Divorce

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]
MRS. VIRGINIA LAUREL.

Los Angeles, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The second Mrs. Stan Laurel went to court again today, this time with an affidavit which caused postponement of a hearing on a suit to restrain her from molesting the film comic. She filed a motion that their divorce be set aside because they became reconciled and lived together as man and wife after the first decree was granted.

Virginia Ruth Laurel alleged that she saw her husband in unconventional attire in his apartment with a woman last September. And she said that when she went to his yacht, to tell him she was going to have a baby, he tried to have her ejected.

Laurel married a dancer known as Illiana on Jan. 1, the day after he got his final divorce from his second wife. He claimed she caused a disturbance while he was in Yuma honeymooning with his third mate. She said she was only trying to warn him against a marriage she considered might be bigamous.

POISON FINDINGS TOLD AT SLAYING TRIAL OF WIDOW

Hastings, Minn., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Dr. Harold N. Wright, assistant professor of pharmacology at the University of Minnesota, testified in District court today that enough poison to kill eighteen persons was found in the stomach of Louis Johnke, a packing house worker, whose widow, Mrs. Beatrice Johnke, is on trial, charged with his first degree murder.

Mrs. Beatrice Johnke.

Dr. Wright said he also found a similar poison — enough to bring death to four persons —in the organs of two dogs owned by the Johnkes. Harold E. Stassen, Dakota county attorney contended the state will show the defendant tested the poison on the dogs before administering it, over a period of two months, to her husband.

POLICE WAR VETS GIVE WATCH TO LIGE DEBOWSKI

Members of the Chicago police post, American Legion, presented a watch yesterday to Lige Debowski, who shot two holdup men to death in a liquor store last July 18. Debowski, critically wounded by one of the robbers, has been in the County hospital since the shooting. The presentation was made by Harry G. Penzin, post commander and sergeant at the Albany Park station.

A resolution praising Sergt. Michael Ahern of the Town Hall station for his "outstanding and meritorious work" in Debowski's behalf will be adopted at the post's meeting Monday evening in Swiss hall, 637 Webster avenue.

Ft. Sheridan's New Police Force Begins Its Duties

DEWEY GIVES AID TO BROOKLYN IN RACKET SLAYING

Opens Manhattan Records in Poultry Trial.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Police feared a fresh outbreak of racketeering violence tonight as they sought the slayers of a Brooklyn storekeeper who had defied the poultry racketeers and the lone attacker who blinded a shirt manufacturer by throwing acid in his face.

The investigation centered at the office of Manhattan's new district attorney, Thomas E. Dewey, the former special prosecutor of rackets in New York City. Dewey forced a guilty plea from Arthur [Tootsie] Herbert, kingpin of the poultry racketeers, in the midst of his trial for embezzlement of funds from the Chicken Drivers' union last summer.

Search Racket Records.

The Dewey force looked into the records in the Herbert case in an effort to throw light on the killing of Isidore Frank, the Brooklyn storekeeper, in front of his home last night. Meanwhile the acid attack on Jack Roum, official of a shirt making firm, was laid to labor racketeers in the garment industry. This case was being handled by Murray I. Gurfein, head of Dewey's new rackets bureau.

Frank was killed by a pair of gunmen who drove a car in front of his automobile and forced him to the curb. Apparently recognizing the two men, Frank sprang from his car and ran for his home. The killers fired and Frank fell to the ground, dying with two slugs in his back.

Inside the Frank home his wife and four children were waiting for his arrival to start dinner. Mrs. Frank told the police of seeing a well dressed man acting strangely in her husband's butcher shop last Wednesday. The stranger, she said, poked into a pile of chickens, took a long look at Frank, and then abruptly quit the store.

Refused to Pay Tribute.

Frank refused to pay tribute to the racketeers, payments which ranged from a half to a full cent a pound on all chickens and other poultry delivered at his shop.

Police found $581 in receipts from his shop lying in the car. The car which the killers used was found later abandoned in a vacant lot.

The attack on Roum also occurred at dusk as he approached his home near Riverside drive. His assailant cast the contents of a point jar of acid into Roum's face. It was said that Roum was probably blinded and disfigured for life.

EX-CITY COUNSEL AID ACCUSED OF POLICE JOB FRAUD

Municipal Judge Eugene Holland yesterday issued a warant for Patrick J. Lynn, former assistant corporation counsel, charging him with obtaining money under false pretenses. Lynn, who is 55 years old and who was dismissed by Corporation Counsel Hodes last November, is charged with accepting $750 from Patrick J. Murphy, 1145 West 78th street, on the promise of getting Murphy a job with the police department.

Lynn, who lived formerly at the Norwood hotel, 6400 Normal boulevard, has been missing two months. The warant was placed in the hands of the state's attorney, whose police are seeking Lynn.

SEEK TO TRACE HOLDUP SLAYERS BY FRONTIER GUN

Police investigating the holdup slaying Thursday night of Herman Kosovski, 22 years old, said yesterday no finger prints were found on the old style frontier model revolver with which he was killed. The gun is still the chief clew in the investigation, however, and police hope its rarity will aid in tracing it.

Kosovski, who worked for his father, Samuel, operator of a cleaning and dyeing establishment, was slain by two robbers in the hallway of a building at 2900 Roosevelt road. The victim is survived by his widow, Lucille. They lived at 4738 Drexel boulevard.

Jails Ex-Husband

MRS. BERNICE LAWRENCE.

When James A. Lawrence refused to heed two previous court summonses, his ex-wife, Bernice, 6225 Kenwood avenue, took a deputy sheriff to the handbook he frequented and arrested him there, her attorney, Harry X. Cole, said yesterday. Informed that Lawrence, a fruit salesman, owed his ex-wife $213, Judge Charles A. Williams sentenced him to six months in the county jail.

DETECTIVE HURT AS BOMB BLAST WRECKS HIS CAR

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Harry Raymond, a private detective, was seriously injured today when a bomb exploded as he stepped on the starter of his new automobile. The explosion wrecked his car and garage and sent him to the hospital with more than a score of injuries.

The attempted assassination was a deliberate act of reprisal by the underworld against Raymond because of his activity as a private detective, according to Capt. Bert Wallis of the police homicide squad. Capt Wallis made his statement after talking with the injured man and viewing the scene of the blast.

In the last year Mrs. Raymond said her husband has been more or less inactive, still recuperating from a broken leg and fractured skull suffered a year ago when he wrecked his car while chasing automobile thieves. At that time he was chief of the theft bureau of the Automobile Club of Southern California.

ACT TO COLLECT $117,000 STRIKE DAMAGE AWARD

Coal Company Plans to Attach Union Property.

East St. Louis, Ill., Jan. 14.—(AP)—United Electric Coal company's counsel considered steps today to collect a judgment for $117,000 in strike damages against 13 local unions and 66 individual members of the Progressive Miners of America.

As soon as Federal Judge Fred L. Wham signs a formal decree, the attorneys said they would attach property of the state organization of the American Federation of Labor affiliate at Gillespie and of the 13 locals in Madison and St. Clair counties.

$164,393 in Union Treasury.

A financial report of District No. 1, the state organization, showed a balance last June 30 of $164,393. This included death, relief, and accident funds, some parts of which the lawyers said might be free from attachment.

If the sums derived from the union sources fail to satisfy the judgment, the company will levy against the property of the individual members who were defendants, the attorneys added.

Still another move being considered was garnishment of dues of union members, held by mine operators under the check-off plan for payment into the union's treasury.

Bond Would Be Required.

In order to stay execution of the judgment pending appeal, legal sources said it would be necessary for union counsel to obtain a writ of supersedeas, requiring the posting of a surety bond in the amount of the judgment and costs of the suit.

Should Judge Wham's decision be upheld, collection of the judgment by the company would be facilitated, since it would be necessary then only to collect on the bond.

Officials of the union declared they planned to pursue every legal remedy to gain a reversal of Judge Wham's award.

ANGORA MITTEN MAN HUNTED AS CO-ED ANNOYER

Is the man with the angora mittens a moron or a student prankster? Chief of Police William O. Freeman of Evanston doesn't know, and he's taking no chances.

Yesterday he assigned a special detail to patrol the campus of Northwestern university, where several co-eds have reported recently that a man wearing such mittens has been annoying them.

Some policemen think he may be a freshman complying with fraternity initiation requirements.

HAVE WE AN ALLIANCE WITH GREAT BRITAIN?

Four American cruisers are on their way to Sydney to represent the United States in the ceremonies celebrating the settlement of Australia. After that courtesy call has been made three of the warships will go to Singapore under orders to join British ships in a naval display. The orders have been sent to the ships at sea. The excuse is the dedication of naval docks at this British base. The purpose is to impress Japan and to convey the idea that the United States and Great Britain have reached an accord.

The United States seems to have adjusted all its difficulties with Japan in China. The British have not. The Japanese have given America every satisfaction they could for acts committed in the war zones. Our state department has closed the Panay incident. The government in Tokio has given assurances that American interests would be respected and protected. With the British the situation is different.

As the war is carried down toward Canton the British possessions at Hongkong are endangered. The tension increases. The Japanese have been barely polite in their answers to British protests. The machine-gunning of the British ambassador was not handled by Japanese diplomacy with any great respect for British feelings. There have been many other incidents which have not had treatment satisfactory to the British government.

When the United States was on the verge of folly last October in dealing oratorically with the Japanese and with Hitler and Mussolini, Great Britain was cool. Its government was candid enough to say that it would undertake nothing in Asia unless the United States stepped out in front. We were held responsible for the foolish assemblage of nations at Brussels, but in spite of all the wrong directions we took we were able to keep out of trouble because Japan so obviously did not want any with us.

Now the American government ostentatiously joins in a British demonstration at Singapore which would be the base of operations against Japan if Great Britain had to fight to protect its Hongkong holdings. Three light cruisers will appear as an appendage to whatever naval force the British have there. If this is to suggest to the Japanese that the United States and Great Britain are together what is it to suggest to the people of the United States? Is it to be understood that the British have pulled the United States in to the defense of Hongkong?

Is it to be assumed here that the empire again has found a dependable auxiliary in Washington and that the American fleet can be used for the protection of British interests although the British government is under too much pressure in Europe to send its own fleet where its possessions are threatened?

Questions in congress on this policy are needed. Is the United States in a secret alliance with Great Britain? When was it made and what is its purpose? What are its terms? The affair has a very serious appearance.

THE HELIUM MONOPOLY.

Among its treasures the territory of the United States conceals almost the entire world's supply of helium. It is not known to exist in commercial quantities except in southwestern United States. For a long time the gas had dubious value until the war proved its worth as an inflation agent for observation balloons. Following this discovery all exports were prohibited.

Last year congress again considered this national asset and decided to make its production a government monopoly. Almost immediately arrangements were made to sell quantities to Lufthansa interests to enable that company to reestablish the Zeppelin service between New York and Germany that had been interrupted by the burning of the Hindenburg. Scarcely had the rebuilding of this giant airship been announced when a demand reached Washington for supplies of helium gas to be used by a projected air service between Brazil and Germany.

There can be little criticism of a statement that congress has acted hastily, if not inadvisedly. Within recent months numbers of medical uses for the gas have been discovered. It has been proved that if used in combination with oxygen helium will substantially reduce infant mortality. It is also used in restoring normal pressures to men who have been working underground—an insurance against the "bends." While the available quantity is large it is, nevertheless, limited. It cannot be replaced, as the gas results from the disintegration of radium during millions of years.

If overseas services in lighter than air craft had been necessary, why should not Americans have built the ships rather than merely supply the gas at taxpayers' expense? It is a foregone conclusion that a government monopoly will never produce dividends. As to the services between South America and Europe, they are in direct competition with American firms for the commerce of the lower continent. While the new Hindenburg is not a warship, it could be utilized to bomb New York. European nations are being provided with a threat that should have been used as a defense arm to insure peace. Here is an effective buckler for the Pax Americana in the sole possession of the United States—and we are throwing it away.

A WARNING FROM FRANCE.

France is experiencing another cabinet crisis, another wave of social discontent and another flight from the franc. Because of these evidences of internal weakness her prestige in the eyes of her European neighbors is dwindling. In short, France is imperiled precisely as it was predicted she would be if she persisted in her radical course.

The similarity between American and French policies in recent years has been striking. Sometimes we led and France followed and sometimes it was the other way around, but these are details. The French government of the Popular Front found much of its inspiration in communist Russia. It flourished on mass discontent and gave the world its first large scale sitdown strikes. Just as in this country, the national government stood by while property was seized illegally under the direction of men imbued with revolutionary purposes.

In the circumstances it was inevitable that Frenchmen who had saved money would not dare to risk it in investments which the government had shown itself unwilling to protect. Economic activity suffered accordingly. Investment in new enterprises, which in 1926 had averaged 48 million francs a month, had declined in 1937 to 3 million. Issues of old companies declined in the same period from well over a billion francs a month to less than 100 million, though interest rates were higher.

French budgetary management has been modeled on our own of recent years. Deficits have been chronic. Efforts to increase revenues have been disappointing; evidently the point of diminishing returns has been reached. Efforts to reduce expenditures have likewise met with failure. France has always been plagued with a top-heavy burocracy. Under the Blum régime the number of jobholders was increased enormously. Every attempt to reduce the burden thus imposed on the taxpayers has been defeated by the organized political strength of the pay roll brigade.

The parallel to events in the United States hardly requires to be underlined. We, too, have our millions who have learned to expect support at public expense. They are organized for political action and cannot easily be separated from the public pay roll. Nearly a fifth of our national income now goes to our governments in taxes.

If we are wise we shall take warning from the French experience. One lesson which we may learn is that devaluation of the currency is no cure for a succession of heavily unbalanced budgets or for domestic discontent. The profits of devaluation may seem to ease the financial strain for a time and permit the formation of a stabilization fund to defend the currency; but higher prices for groceries, clothing, and all other commodities must be expected to follow, and with higher prices will come intensified social and political unrest. Sooner or later, too, the stabilization fund will be exhausted. Devaluation may postpone the crisis but also aggravates it.

We can still avoid the fate which is overtaking France if our people and our government act with foresight and courage to reduce government expenditures and taxes and protect private property. We have had our warning; it remains to be seen if we shall profit from it.

THE AIRPORT SNAG.

It may be true as stated by the mayor that Chicago "has nearly eight months in which to expand its airport" before the giant four motored planes will require the added runways, but, looking backward, it would appear that the project is at present just about where it was eight months ago. This period is ample, to be sure, if it is to be employed in removing the railway tracks that bisect the port, but certainly not if it is to be spent in further discussions and court proceedings.

It is understood, of course, that gangs of men are now working on sections of the new runways that will be connected as soon as the railroad dump is removed. It is also observed that the city and the railroad are in full accord as to property exchanges, and the necessary funds have been included in the 1938 budget. The problem of a new location for the tracks, however, remains unsolved, and port enlargements cannot be completed until the rails are relaid elsewhere. An announcement that this hurdle has been negotiated is what the public awaits.

RIGHTS OF AN AMERICAN.

[Illinois State Journal.]

Troubled conditions abroad have again emphasized the security accorded citizens of the United States who venture into foreign lands. Protected by the name of their country, Americans are usually safe from illegal treatment.

Unfortunately this is not always the case at home where prejudice sometimes denies to our citizens their rights. In several cities those held by the police for questioning are subjected to the illegal "third degree." In other sections of the country citizens are not always safe from mob violence.

When it is remembered that this nation has gone to war to protect the rights of our citizens abroad we should be more jealous of those rights at home. What a mockery of justice it would be if Americans were safer in foreign lands than on their own soil!

Goldwyn has told them both he wants a strong story, but with a happy ending, Variety says. And he wants the leading character to be a woman.

QUESTIONS ABOUT SAM MOY.

He pedals behind his laundry box,
Along the snowy street;
He doesn't mind soiled shirts and socks,

And on his feet old rubbers that Go peddling up and down.

Now what is back of that yellow face,
This chilly, winter day?
What of attack on his harried race,
Half of the globe away?

Does he hate the Japs? Hate till it hurts?
What motivates Sam Moy?
Can it be, perhaps, just things like shirts,
And one cold China boy?

MONTISELLO OR MONTICHELLO?

The most recent argument to split a gathering was not political, but on the correct pronunciation of Monticello, Jefferson's home near Charlottesville, Va. Is it Montichello, Italian style—and Jefferson received inspiration for the plan of his home from Palladio, the sixteenth century Italian architect—or Montisello, Anglicized. The argument ended in a telephone call to Jefferson Coolidge in Boston, great-great-grandson of Thomas Jefferson. He answered that he pronounces it Montichello.

ONE learned man held out for the Anglicized pronunciation because he said that Jefferson, the great Democrat, would have used that pronunciation rather than the foreign one. Also because the older editions of dictionaries gave only the Anglicized pronunciation. [Recent Webster's give both, with Montisello first.] A woman in the group retorted that her friends, the Cocke family, the owners of Bremo, the mansion on the James river built by Gen. Cocke, a friend of Jefferson's who helped him with the plans, call it Montichello and that the family has lived there continuously since it was built. They ought to know how to pronounce it, she said conclusively.

IT WAS a New York man who settled the discussion by asking Jefferson Coolidge, who is a direct descendant of Jefferson's only child, a daughter. He said he had always called it Montichello, although he had no idea whether Thomas Jefferson pronounced it that way or not. Stimpson, in "Things Worth Knowing," says that Jefferson himself undoubtedly used the Italian pronunciation because of his familiarity with the Italian language. Jefferson's own first mention of the home he loved was in his garden book, under the date Aug. 3, 1767, in connection with the grafting of "the common cherry buds into stocks of large kind at Monticello."

WHETHER dictionaries and gazetteers or the families involved have the better right to establish the pronunciation of a name became an issue with the name Pepys. The Encyclopedia Britannica says, "The name was pronounced in the seventeenth century and has always been pronounced by the family 'Peeps.'" Then the earl of Cottenham, born Mark Pepys, and the present head of the family which gave the world the great diarist, declared in his book "Mine Host America," written after his visit to America, that the name is correctly said "Peppis."

But Mawson, in his "International Book of Names," says that the diarist himself called it "Peeps."

So I guess you have to make your own choice.

MUMPS NEED NOT BE SERIOUS.

MUMPS is an ancient disease and was well known to the Greeks who understood its contagious character. The swelling is not confined alone to the saliva-producing glands which lie—deeply imbedded in the tissues—in front of the ear, although they bear the brunt of the attack. Those beneath the lower jaw and under the tongue also are upset at times. As a rule only one secreting structure is involved, although about the time it begins to recede another may become inflamed. Furthermore, there is very little pain, except when one attempts to move the jaw, and the fever seldom is high. The disorder makes its appearance usually between the ages of 5 and 15.

But just what causes it? Probably a filtrable virus, inasmuch as material removed from the saliva [not bacteria] can bring about the trouble actively in rabbits. Other experimenters have reproduced the malady in monkeys and cats. Apparently the infection enters the body through the mouth or the nose.

When is the disease infectious? This has been a much debated question. If a susceptible person has been exposed, and has received the virus, 18 days on the average will elapse before symptoms become visible. During this period the victim cannot transmit the difficulty to others until within 24 hours prior to the onset of the swelling. If children are kept at home and isolated for approximately one week after all signs have subsided there is very little, if any, danger that they will be able to communicate it to others. Of all the so-called childhood ills, mumps is the least infectious and cannot compare in ease of dissemination with measles, chicken pox, or whooping cough. In fact, many instances are recorded in which only one child of four or five in a family—all intimately associated—was afflicted, the others escaping.

How does the ailment manifest itself? The patient may observe first a slight pain and stiffness in the jaw with some fever and in young children there is a marked disinclination to eat, because opening and closing the mouth is accompanied by discomfort. Severe cases occasionally will exhibit headache, vomiting, and chilly sensations which may last for from a few hours to as long as two days. Then comes the bulging on one side of the face which may extend below the lobe of the ear and slightly backward. The sufferer presents a grotesque sight. Now and then the edema will move upward, causing the lid of one eye to puff and the eyeball to protrude.

This will continue for from two to four days and within a week thereafter the tissues return to normal. Only rarely will the structure remain "puffed up." If the opposite side is affected later the same cycle of events ensues.

Let us assume that a case has developed and has been recognized. What is the best plan of management? Care should be taken to keep the mouth clean. This aids by providing free exit for the saliva. Rest in bed is essential, as complications, which we do not relish, may arise.

If the affection spreads to the sex glands an ice bag may be applied and bed rest must be enforced strictly. This rarely takes place if the child has not passed the period of puberty. After this age, anywhere from one-sixth to one-fifth will be thus disturbed. Sterility will not ensue in adult life unless both these glands become several times normal size—even then, infrequently. Involvement of the ovaries in girls may occur, but sterility from this cause is practically unknown.

For both prevention and treatment, serum has been employed which is obtained from those who have recovered. Controlled experiments show that those who have received convalescent serum—6 to 8 cubic centimeters—were rendered practically immune. It is sufficiently valuable to warrant its use if exposure has occurred.

CAUSED BY INFECTION.

Mrs. B. writes: My baby has been getting sties every two months or so. She had the first when she was 2 months old. She now is almost 20 months old. What causes this condition in such a young baby? I keep her very clean, feed her properly, and give her plenty of fresh air, sleep, etc. She never has been ill.

REPLY.

There are numerous small glands in the eyelids which secrete oily material so that the eyeball is lubricated when the eyelid passes over it. When one of these glands becomes infected pus forms. We call this common condition a sty. If it is not properly treated and the source of the infection eliminated, one will follow another, and they may persist for a long time. Repeated formation indicates that the body has too little resistance against infection. Your physician can give you an antiseptic ointment which will help. Keep the eyelids clean through the use of boric acid solution.

CONCERNING HEADACHES.

F. I. writes: Why do physicians pay so little attention to headaches? I have been a sufferer for years and when I mention the subject to my family doctor he says there are so many causes for headaches it is a difficult condition to remedy.

REPLY.

Your physician is correct in stating that there are many causes. Perhaps you could do some detective work and locate the cause yourself. Begin by having a thorough physical examination to determine what, if any, body functions are out of line. We have a leaflet listing many of the causes of headache, which we will be glad to send on receipt of a stamped, addressed envelope.

NO SPECIFIC REMEDY.

A. R. writes: According to your article, tuberculosis is an incurable illness. My physician says that is an old-fashioned theory and that if caught in the early stages, complete rest, rich food, and fresh air will cure a patient.

REPLY.

The article referred to stated clearly that there is no one specific remedy or antidote for this disease, such as can be given in diphtheria, syphilis, etc. I agree with your physician except that I would substitute "nourishing" for "rich" food. Perhaps he, too, was misquoted.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY HAROLD TATAM.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES.—Argentina concluded in 1937 the most prosperous year in her history. When official figures for the year are compiled, it will be found that the country's favorable trade balance will be around 700,000,000 pesos, and when it is remembered that a favorable balance of 300,000,000 would suffice to pay debt services and dividends which may have been earned by foreign owned companies, it will be seen that 1937 must be marked up as a red letter year in the Argentine Republic.

It was a good year for farmers, landowners, and big business generally, but on the other hand it has not been strikingly good for wage earners, except in the sense of reducing unemployment to a minimum. Wages and earned income of all descriptions have remained almost stationary, but the cost of living has increased considerably. The labor department's statistics, showing the minimum amount upon which a workingman with a family of three children can exist, reveal a total in excess of what a very large number of such workers are earning.

The enormous amount of money flowing into the national treasury has enabled the government to convert a large part of its foreign debt and to convert the remainder to a lower interest rate. At the same time it has embarked on a colossal expenditure in public works and palatial government offices.

Apart from the revenue accruing from customs receipts, which has been phenomenal, the administration has had a tidy unbudgetable income from exchange control, amounting to several million pesos monthly. Economists are unanimous in declaring that no justification now exists for the continuance of exchange control, but are equally unanimous in forecasting a continuance thereof in view of the enormous profits the government is making out of it. They say it is neither more nor less than an excess tarif on imports, and the truth of the contention gradually is being realized by the man-in-the-street who finds his household expenses mounting higher and higher without any corresponding increase in income.

Nevertheless, Argentina has been on the crest of a wave of prosperity which has altered completely her rating in foreign money markets, where she now can borrow, if necessary, on a 4 per cent instead of a 6 per cent basis. In short, a remarkable year which enables President Justo to relinquish the reins of office in a blaze of glory.

Prospects for the coming year are not so rosy. The disastrous series of frosts, particularly that of Nov. 11, have precluded the possibility of huge exportable surpluses of Argentine grain this year. A conservative estimate of the loss incident to frost is 1,500,000 tons of wheat and 500,000 tons of linseed, which may be expressed in terms of cash at approximately 230,000,000 pesos.

Broomhall's agent makes a tentative forecast of an exportable surplus of wheat not exceeding 2,500,000 tons, as compared with 4,000,000 in 1937. In effect he says that instead of the 15 or 16 million tons of cereals and linseed shipped in 1937, under the most favorable circumstances 1938 is not likely to see an exportation of 10 million tons, and the total may be much less than this figure.

From this it may be deduced that if Argentina obtains a favorable trade balance of 200,000,000 pesos in 1938 she will be lucky. Under the circumstances it is generally felt that in Dr. Ortiz the right type of man for the job will be taking over the reins of office in February. He is regarded as an exceptionally sound financier, and it is recalled that months ago he reminded the country that good times cannot be expected to last forever, and that retrenchment should be the national watchword.

"In short, it may not be lucky for Dr. Ortiz that he should be assuming the presidency in a relatively lean year, but it is fortunate for the country that he is doing so," is the way shrewd observers sum up the situation.

MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE.

Chicago, Jan. 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A single man married a girl he knew only a few months. Later she told of a previous marriage but claims divorce has been issued. He cannot trace decree to any court and she admits she is herself not positive.

1. Is young man subject to any legal proceeding?
2. What grounds and by whom?
3. Is marriage null and void?
4. What punishment is husband exposed to?
5. Not having known before marriage his wife was committing bigamy, would he be liable? A. P.

1. If it turns out that she has a previous husband living and undivorced, both parties would be subject to prosecution for bigamy. If there has been a divorce it should be possible to obtain a certified copy of the decree from the clerk of the court.
2. See 1.
3. A bigamous marriage would be void.
4. Bigamy is punishable by imprisonment.
5. He cannot claim the benefit of having shut his eyes to available information.

TERMS OF WILL.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I would like legal advice about a [1] will my brother made. He died last March leaving a widow but no children. My sister [who lives in Germany] and I survive. He left a two flat building and lots, also some cash. His will was made in 1928. A friend told me [2] a will must be ready thirty days after death, but [3] she has never let me see the will. She always says the will left everything in her favor.

4. Why isn't the will read to his brother? F. E.

1. In general, the wording of your brother's will would control. It seems probable that you have no interest in the estate, will or no will.
2. There is no such rule, but Illinois law requires that the will must be filed in the office of the clerk of the Probate court at once.
3. You should tell her that if she does not file it she will she will be subject to penalties. After it is filed you can examine it.
4. This is not necessary.

WALLACE ON WALLACE.

Watertown, Wis., Jan. 10.—A paragraph over the signature of the Hon. Henry C. Wallace, secretary of agriculture in 1921, and father of the present secretary, is of interest.

This paragraph appears on page 15 of the 1921 Year Book of the United States Department of Agriculture and reads as follows:

"As is always the case in such periods of depression [as this], many well meaning men come forward with ill-considered measures. Visionary schemes of all kinds are presented. Some would have the government take charge of the larger business enterprises; others would have the government undertake to fix prices either arbitrarily or indirectly by buying up surplus crops. The experience of 3,000 years shows the impracticability of such efforts."

IT IS BELOW COST.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—John R. Reynolds in today's TRIBUNE implies that tenants in the government houses are on relief. They are paying for what they get even if it is at cost. The only relief they are getting is from bad housing, breeder of sickness, discontent, and crime.

As an applicant for an apartment I wish to cite my case, which, I believe, is typical of many others. I am employed by a railroad with a salary of about $26 per week. With my seniority I probably will always have a job, but the chances for any but a slight increase in salary are slim. We cannot all become executives and this should not bar us from a decent living. There are four persons depending upon me for support. If I pay the rent on a decent place other necessities will suffer and vice versa. If I am fortunate enough to secure an apartment in the government houses and exercise care in the spending of my salary I will have security and contentment, which are the greatest foes of communism. RAILWAY CLERK.

THEY MUST BE UNDERPRIVILEGED.

Chicago, Jan. 12.—There is so much time and money spent to educate our young people, one is constantly filled with wonder at the poor English they use after being exposed to teaching for so many years.

The expressions, "like you do," "you was," "kind of tired," "in back of," "for John and I," "he don't," and dozens of other mistakes, are heard constantly. And the pronunciation! Easy words, such as just, forehead, against, toward, exquisite, hospitable—to mention a few—are pronounced in strange ways, to torture the hearer.

A pupil after twelve years of schooling should know the rules of English grammar and be able to use his own language correctly.

ANALOGY.

Manitowoc, Wis., Jan. 5.—The upheaval in Washington at this time reminds the old timer of December, 1860, when the secretary of state resigned from the Buchanan cabinet because of the President's failure to protect federal property in South Carolina and the secretary of the treasury resigned for substantially the opposite reason—Buchanan's opposition to secession. OLD TIMER.

SEVEN SINGING STENOS.

Chicago, Jan. 9.—One evening I saw seven office girls walking down a loop street singing merrily "The Man on the Flying Trapeze." That's the spirit I like to see in this town and especially in the loop when the cares of the day are o'er. We can stand plenty of geniality all the time. CARL PETERSON.

MR. FOUST CONFIRMED.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—I read Hal Foust's article covering his experiences on Mississippi "roads." Hal's experiences were exactly the same as my own.

J. A. MCGOWAN.

IN THE FOREST PRESERVE.

Orland Park, Ill., Jan. 12.—I wish to thank you for publishing my letter in regard to city hunters and foxes. I received many replies and called a meeting of hunters at our farm. This meeting was attended by a number of the best element of city hunters, lawyers, doctors, and business men. We decided to try to form an organization of city hunters and farmers with a view to having the department of conservation taken out of politics and placed under a nonpolitical head as has been done in Michigan. The politicians have been managing the game for forty years or more and have spent millions of dollars with the result that there is far less game today than when they started.

I would like, also, to call your attention to the fact that the county is destroying one of the greatest natural curiosities in all the forest preserve by making a gravel pit out of a glacial moraine that extends like a great man-made earthwork through the timber for nearly half a mile. Early settlers used to think that it was built by the mound builders. This moraine should be of great interest to school children, for they study about them in their school books; at least I did when at school. The gravel pit is located west of 104th avenue along the edge of the south bluff of the Sag valley. The moraine extends into the woods from there. I doubt if the county commissioners even know it is there or would know what it was if they saw it. There is not even a bridle path leading to it nor is it marked in any way.

WILLIAM C. KELSEY.

A 30 MINUTE DEBATE.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—A visitor in Washington, I attended today the house session at which the Ludlow resolution was presented by its sponsor. This resolution was first introduced three years ago, in January, 1935, and was recently discharged from the judiciary committee by petition of 218 members of the house. Speaker Bankhead, leaving the chair to speak against the proposed amendment, stated it was the gravest question submitted to congress in the twenty years he has been a member.

And yet debate of this important measure, "the gravest in twenty years," in the words of the speaker, was limited to half an hour. Proponents of the measure, endeavoring to express their views in the 30 to 60 seconds allowed them, were silenced again and again with the fall of the gavel. Even applause in the gallery for speakers favoring the resolution was promptly silenced by the attendants.

If discussion is muzzled now, what are we to expect in the future?

F. BRAUNSDORF.

FROM A CARPENTER.

Chicago, Jan. 11.—The foundation of any building program is confidence. People build homes, remodel and modernize, build business or income property because they have faith in the future. Without this faith there is no building.

Wildcat financing will not do it. Government subsidy will not do it. Ballyhoo will not do it. Squandering government [taxpayers'] money will not do it.

Restore confidence by ceasing crackpot experiments and the building program, now several years in arrears, will resume and the depression will be over. Until then the relief lines will lengthen.

IDLE CARPENTER.

LIFE IN A TRAILER.

Oak Park, Ill., Jan. 10.—My personal experiences in traveling with a trailer have been entirely opposite from Mr. Foust's. I find it possible, with proper and intelligent planning, to be just as fastidious in a trailer as in my home. In fancy, I rewrite Mr. Foust's articles from the viewpoint of one who realizes that the trailer industry is still in its infancy and there is still much to be desired in the way of proper regulation, yet finds a vacation in a trailer a delightful adventure. 3 MORE OUSTED IN CLEANUP OF SALES TAX STAF

Find 14 Merchants Fail to Make Returns.

Three more employés in the Chicago sales tax division of the state department of finance were discharged yesterday, bringing to 19 the number dismissed in connection with the drive on sales tax evaders. Two women office workers and a man investigator were those released yesterday. Robert Stowers, chief of the Chicago office, declared they had failed in the proper discharge of their duties.

Stowers also made public figures on the first three days' work of 32 downstate investigators brought here to ferret out evasions of the sales tax. Working in the loop, the investigators canvassed 390 business establishments, Stowers said. They found that fourteen of these merchants had failed to file tax returns and 161 others had filed incorrect returns.

Books to Be Audited.

"Some of the incorrect returns may have been unintentional," Stowers said. "We must audit their books before we can tell if they were seeking to avoid payment of the tax."

Investigations will proceed for at least the next month. It was indicated that after working over most of the loop, the agents will move to test areas in the residential districts.

Indictments were returned before Chief Justice Cornelius J. Harrington of the Criminal court yesterday charging three men with conspiracy to defraud the state af about $32,400 in sales taxes. Those named were Edmond F. La Voie, one of the first investigators to be ousted; William H. McFadden, president of the McFadden Motor Sales company at 3210 Jackson boulevard, and David K. Springwater, former manager of the company.

Charged with Taking Bribes.

In addition to the conspiracy charge, La Voie is charged with obtaining as bribes, presents and rewards from the McFadden company, a sum said by Assistant State's Attorney Vernon Thompson to total about $3,200.

The three men will be arraigned Monday before Judge Harrington.

Driver Is in Postoffice; Mail Truck Is Stolen

Newton, Mass., Jan. 14.—(AP)—A mail truck carrying bags believed to contain about $5,000 was stolen tonight while its driver was in the Newtonville postoffice.

Amnesia Victim

An attractive young woman, wearing skiing clothes, was being cared for as an apparent amnesia victim by Central police last night. All she can remember is that she is 26 years old, the mother of a small daughter, and that her home is in New Orleans. Police said she seems to be about 19 years old. The woman wandered into the barber shop of M. A. Henderson at 741 West 65th street and said she was lost. He called police. She said she had no knowledge of how she came to Chicago or how long she has been here. She wore a dark brown skiing suit, a stocking cap, skiing shoes, and a fur coat.

DRAW CURTAIN TODAY ON LONG TVA LITIGATION

18 Utilities Seek Curb on Federal Project.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—The curtains will be drawn on the history making trial of litigation between eighteen private utility corporations and the Tennessee Valley authority, when counsel complete arguments tomorrow before a three-judge court which has been hearing the case since Nov. 15.

Judge Florence E. Allen of the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals of the United States said today she hopes the court can announce its decision or decisions Friday or Saturday of next week. She is the presiding judge.

The utilities and the government completed taking testimony in the case late in the day and rested their cases, except for the arguments.

Who Will Make Pleas.

Raymond T. Jackson of Cleveland, O., chief counsel for the utilities, announced he will open and close the argument for his clients. Charles C. Trabue of Nashville will supplement Mr. Jackson's remarks.

James Lawrence Ely, general counsel for the TVA, will open the arguments for the government and John Lord O'Brian of Buffalo, N. Y., former assistant attorney general of the United States, will close for the government. Three hours will be allotted to each side for arguments.

Case of Nation-wide Interest.

There is wide interest nationally in the litigation, since it involves the future of one of the administration's potent agencies, and probably the future policies of the electric industry of the nation.

The main objective of the utilities is to enjoin the TVA's power program. They are asking that the court find the law creating the agency unconstitutional and issue an injunction to restrain the federal agency from any and all power operations. The eighteen companies have a stated investment of more than $800,000,000 in power production, transmission, and distribution facilities. The TVA is driving a wedge into the territory they serve.

2,200,000 Words for Record.

A. B. Hale, official court reporter, estimated the record will contain 2,200,000 words and nearly 9,000 pages. A total of 1,129 exhibits were introduced, 158 of which were offered by the TVA and the remainder by the complainants. The court has held forty sessions.

This is the first case to be tried under the provisions of the administration's court reform act of 1937. That act requires that litigation brought to test the constitutionality of an act of congress must be heard before a three-judge federal court made up of district and circuit court judges.

FASTING PASTOR AVERS HE WILL IGNORE CRITICS

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 14.—(AP)—The Very Rev. Israel Harding Noe made it clear today he does not care what others say respecting the fast he believes is carrying him slowly, but surely, toward immortality on earth.

After reading an interview in which Dean Raimundo de Ovies of St. Philip Episcopal cathedral, Atlanta, questioned the value of his demonstration, Dean Noe declared:

"If Dean de Ovies understood my philosophy he would be qualified to comment. Not understanding it, I hardly see how he is in a position to comment."

He busied himself at home with duties as dean of St. Mary Episcopal cathedral on the 13th day of his unprecedented fast. Since Jan. 2, he says he has had neither food nor liquids, having abandoned even the oranges on which he subsisted last year.

AIR MAIL PILOT SPEEDS ILL MAN TO HOSPITAL AID

Warroad, Minn., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—The regular run of the Penasse mail plane was turned into a mercy flight today. It was flying over frozen wastes on its way to Penasse, northernmost postoffice in the United States, when Pilot Roy R. Duggan noticed the wigwag of a white flag 1,000 feet below him.

Turning about he guided the ski-equipped plane to a landing near a cabin. Slumped in the snow near the habitation was the signaler, Carl Zimmerman, a trapper. He was exhausted and apparently critically ill. He had no other means of communication with the outside.

Duggan and his co-pilot, Clarence Selvog, placed the man on an improvised stretcher and set him on the floor of the plane. Twenty-five minutes later the ship was landed fifty feet from the door of the Warroad hospital.

HELD FOR AUTO THEFT.

Sheldon Brand, 21 years old, 1880 North Long avenue, was held to the grand jury on three charges of automobile theft, in bonds of $15,000, by Judge Cecil C. Smith in the Automobile court yesterday.

J., to visit Lou Irwin, theatrical agent.

COURT PETITION FREES LAWYER AT PRISON GATE

Abraham Karatz, former St. Paul lawyer, was freed by a petition for a writ of habeas corpus yesterday as he reached the Stateville penitentiary gate to begin serving a sentence of one to five years for conspiracy to defraud the Amalgamated Trust and Savings bank of $55,473.

Abraham Karatz.

The petition will be heard by Circuit Judge Edwin L. Wilson at Joliet on Jan. 28. Karatz was released on $5,000 bond posted by Julius Benbenuti, 2140 Lunt avenue. State's Attorney Courtney was indignant about the surprise maneuver and assigned two of his assistants to study the defense argument that Karatz was indicted illegally.

The state charged that the conspirators, among them Dave [Long Count] Barry, who died Aug. 27, 1936, while awaiting a retrial, sought to get control of the Abraham Lincoln Life Insurance company.

GIRL WHO STOLE FOR HIM JUST A FRIEND TO ACTOR

CRIMINAL COURT.

Vincent Lacy, larceny, sentenced to one year in the county jail by Judge Cornelius J. Harrington.

Michael Firomandi, crime against children, sentenced to one to twenty years in the penitentiary by Judge Francis B. Allegretti.

It wasn't love, but friendship, that caused him to address Miss Marie Gennarelli as "Darling" from Hollywood, where he worked as a movie extra, Patrick J. Billings testified yesterday before a jury in Judge Rudolph Desort's Criminal court. Both are charged with conspiracy to defraud her employer, the Securities Service corporation, 310 South Michigan avenue, of $6,200.

Billings admitted kissing Miss Gennarelli, interpreting this as another friendly gesture. He denied writing her love letters and threatening letters, which she claims caused her to take the money. Billings said that in six years in Hollywood he played 420 days as an extra and 30 bit parts. He will resume the stand Monday.

WIDOW'S ACUMEN SAVES A MILLION, ADDS $400,000

Estate Preserved, New One Built in Depression.

By astute management the widow of a pipe coil manufacturer preserved his $1,000,000 estate during the depression, operated his company successfully, and built up a $400,000 estate of her own.

This feat was disclosed yesterday in a hearing before Joseph Geary, assistant to the probate judge, who approved distribution of the two estates to seven children of the couple, and the five children of another son who died.

The widow was Mrs. Annie Rempe. Her husband, George H. Rempe, died in 1922. His will provided that Mrs. Rempe was to receive the income of his estate, which was placed in trust, until her death when their children would inherit.

Widow's Death in 1937.

Mrs. Rempe died Feb. 11, 1937, in her home at 5930 Washington boulevard at the age of 70. By that time, Attorney Victor C. Winnen said yesterday, she had accumulated her own estate, with the aid of two sons, George A. and Lester W., who helped her manage their father's business.

The estate includes $351,984 in cash and $589,895 in securities, the bulk of them in municipal and government bonds.

Miss Annie M. Baker, who died March 24, 1937, in her home at Kalamazoo, Mich., left an estate estimated at $850,000, it was disclosed yesterday. She was the daughter of William T. Baker, former president of the board of trade and of the World's Columbian Exposition. He died in 1903.

Dies Without Will.

Miss Baker died without making a will. For many years her affairs had been administered by a conservator, the City National bank, which has been awarded letters of administration. Her estate, according to the law firm of Cameron and Heath, will go to six relatives.

One-third each goes to a brother, Henry D. Baker, of Durham, N. C., and a niece, Mrs. Bertha A. Brown, 410 North Washington road, Lake Forest, and the balance to four other relatives. Mr. Baker, a former foreign consul, was once a member of the editorial staf of THE TRIBUNE. From their shares the heirs will pay a state inheritance tax of $123,667 and a federal estate tax of $47,553.

PROMISES MILD WEATHER IN CITY OVER WEEK-END

Mild temperatures for the week-end were indicated in the weather forecast, although a descent to 15 degrees is expected early today. Forecaster J. R. Lloyd said that a shift in the wind to the south would chase the mercury up to 28 degrees this afternoon and that tomorrow probably would be mild.

Yesterday's high was 34 degrees. Approximately an inch of snow fell in Chicago, but most of northern Illinois and Indiana had two to four inches.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

Bird Tracks in Snow.

January 14, 1938.

ALTHOUGH the snow tracks of fur bearing animals such as the rabbit, squirrel, mink, and weasel usually are more interesting to the outdoor fan than those left by birds, our winter birds can tell us a number of interesting stories if we are familiar with their tracks.

One of the birds which leaves good sized prints in the snow of fields and woods is the ring necked pheasant. It is possible to see pheasant tracks all through Chicagoland whenever there is snow on the ground. They are quite easy to identify. In the first place, the pheasant leaves a snow print that is large enough to catch the eye. Secondly, the middle toe of the bird stands in an almost straight line in the trail. This particular feature of the pheasant's track is one that makes it quite easy to distinguish from footprints of other good sized wild birds.

Drags Foot in Snow.

When we hiked over the experimental farm a few days ago there were literally hundreds of pheasant tracks in weedy thickets, around the feeding stations, in the scrub oaks, and elsewhere on the farm. One peculiarity of these impressions in the snow which always catches our eye is the blurred line that usually can be seen between footprints. This mark is left in the snow by the dragging feet of the bird.

When Mr. Ringneck walks he doesn't lift each foot high and then plant it squarely in the snow. Instead he drags each foot, so that a long line is cut in the snow. This is accentuated when the ringneck sprints for cover.

There is no game bird on the farm that leaves tracks in the snow over such a wide area as the ringnecked pheasant. This bird is confident and bold compared to the Hungarian partridge and quail. The quail, ever conscious of danger, would hesitate to go too far from protective cover and feed in an open field that would be no hazard at all to the pheasant. That is why food distributed for quail in the winter should be placed near protective cover used by the birds. If left in a bare, open field far from thickets, brushy areas, and weed patches, the birds are likely to miss it.

Quail Track Like Pigeon's.

The quail makes a snow track about the same size as that made by a barnyard pigeon. Their tracks may be seen near brushy hedgerows, in cornfields, and other places where the birds may find quantities of waste grain, weed seeds, and other foods.

The distinctive feature of its snow print is that the mark of the hind toe stands comparatively far off the track. It looks as if this toe were not lined up with the rest of the foot. When an outdoor fan sees a number of quail tracks next to an Osage orange hedge that is banked by vines and shrubs, around a patch of evergreens, or other similar cover, it's a pretty safe bet that this location is used by a covey of quail as a night roost.

Tracks made in the snow by quail and pheasant when walking.

Action Is Limited to a Verbal Spanking.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The federal communications commission yesterday administered a verbal spanking to the National Broadcasting company and affiliated stations which broadcast the Mae West "Mrs. Eve" sketch on Dec. 12. Other than the letter of condemnation, the commission will take no action at this time, Chairman Frank R. McNinch explained in writing to President Lenox R. Lohr, in view of the network's "recognition of the objectionable character of the program and its assurance that greater care and caution will be exercised in the future."

Mr. McNinch, however, added that upon application for renewal of licenses by the stations carrying the broadcast the commission would "take into consideration this incident, along with all other evidence, to show whether or not a particular licensee has conducted his station in the public interest."

Don Bolt, WAAF news commentator, has the promise of Robert Zwikel, the man who locked himself in his car when a policeman wanted to give him a ticket for making a "U" turn in Michigan avenue, to play the part of himself when Bolt airs his story on his Newsroom Oddities program at 3:15 p. m. tomorrow.

Among the Chicago programs leaving the air are Wayne King's Wednesday evening serenade on NBC and the Rhythm at Noon series featuring Doug Hope on WBBM. King's Monday and Tuesday programs have been renewed, however. Supplanting Rhythm at Noon, WBBM is introducing a new program, Rhythm at Midnight, on a five night a week basis starting Monday to take the place of some of the dance bands that are vanishing from the airways.

News notes: Irene Winston of the cast of "Tovarich," now at the Selwyn, and of NBC's Dan Harding's Wife, fell and was injured yesterday morning as she alighted from a cab at the studios. . . . Ken Murray, who calls himself Charlie McCarthy's godfather, and stooge Oswald, opened at the Palace yesterday. . . . Marjorie Whitney, queen of the King's Jesters, plans to leave and lead a band of her own to be called The King's Lads.

Dolores Gillen, as chairman of the radio committee to celebrate the President's birthday ball, has named the following aids: Anne Seymour, Peggy Wall, Kay Brinker, Truman Bradley, Bob Brown, and Olan Soule. . . . Frank Wilson, who has been vacationing in Florida, will be back as the Voice of Romance on WBBM tomorrow. . . . Kay Chase, author of Painted Dreams, is off for a winter vacation in Haiti, Panama, and Mexico. . . . Aragon and Trianon bands will be heard over WIND at 5:30 p. m. every day except Monday, starting tomorrow.

Barbara Luddy has started something in Margot of Castlewood and First Nighter which is easing the strain on the sound effects department. When the script calls for a kiss she actually kisses. Just getting ready for television! . . . Report from Hollywood says Nelson Eddy leaves the McCarthy hour Jan. 30 to make a personal appearance tour. A lad named John Carter will take his place. . . . Hal Tate, radio writer, is getting a lot of ribbing as Tarzan Tate since he fell out of a tree at the Indiana sand dunes.

Dentists are doing an effective job of calling attention to their services on the W-G-N Good Health and Training period by dramatizing highlights of their profession, using professional radio actors. Yesterday they portrayed the story of Pierre Fauchard, the father of modern dentistry.

BLAZE DESTROYS RARE PAPERS AT STEVENSON HOME

The fire which destroyed the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Adlai E. Stevenson in St. Mary's road near Libertyville early yesterday caused $45,000 damage to the interior and furnishings. It also burned a file of historical documents dating to the 17th century. Mr. Stevenson, a Chicago lawyer and grandson of Adlai E. Stevenson, who was Vice President during the second term of Grover Cleveland, said the documents could not be replaced.

Dies at 101; Recalled $50 an Acre for Loop Land

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Hiram Allen, born 101 years ago last May in a sod shanty on what is now the site of the Medinah temple on 14 East Ohio street, Chicago, died today at the home of a daughter, Mrs. James Allen. One of his favorite stories concerned his father's sale in 1842 of 80 acres of what is now the Chicago loop for $50 an acre. He recalled that his father boasted he had driven a great bargain. Until he was 89 Allen worked in the building trades. He was a civil war veteran.

A PICTURE BOOK REVEALS INJURY TO GIRL'S SKULL

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—A ten cent picture book, which a father showed to his daughter, 5 years old, in an effort to comfort her and stop her crying, led to the discovery she had suffered a fractured skull and was temporarily blinded.

The girl fell on the ice on her way to school, but physicians, when first called, could find nothing seriously wrong with her. She cried for two days and the father then bought the book. When she said she could not see the pictures she was taken to a hospital. X-rays revealed the fracture. She is recovering now and has regained her sight.

HORNER ATTENDS LAST RITES FOR DANIEL SULLIVAN

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Gov. Horner, other state officials and Democratic party leaders paid final tribute today to Daniel F. Sullivan, administrative auditor in the finance department.

Brief services at the home, where the former Chicago newspaper man died Tuesday afternoon, were followed by rites at the Blessed Sacrament church, with Msgr. M. A. Tarrent officiating. Burial was in Calvary cemetery.

$50,000 Seduction Suit Taken to Michigan Court

Miss Alice Graham, 36 years old, will dismiss her $50,000 damage suit in Superior court against Frank W. Richey, well-to-do miller and former mayor and postmaster of Dowagiac, Mich., because an identical suit has been filed at Cassopolis, county seat of Cass county, Michigan, her attorney, Charles R. Aiken, said yesterday. Miss Graham filed suit in Chicago last Sept. 13, alleging that Richey, who is 73, seduced her on Sept. 26, 1926, in a Fort Wayne, Ind., hotel, and lived with her for several years afterward.

SUES TO LEARN INCOME OF HER DIVORCED MATE

Five years after winning a divorce from Walter S. Bemis, a consulting engineer, Mrs. Gertrude J. Bemis, now of Altadena, Cal., filed two petitions yesterday in the Circuit court, through her attorney, Lloyd A. Faxon.

One asked that Bemis pay a hospital bill for Patricia, 5 years old, one of their five children, who broke her leg. The other asks that he show what his income was last year.

The divorce decree provided that Bemis pay his ex-wife $100 a month alimony for five years and $100 a month support for the children until they are of age. Attorney Faxon said the alimony will end this year, but that Bemis' income has increased and he should pay more for the children. Judge Philip J. Finnegan set Feb. 25 for a hearing.

Two Weddings Will Interest Social Circles

BY JUDITH CASS.

TODAY brings two of the outstanding weddings of the winter, that of Miss Vesta Culbertson and Robert F. Carr Jr. and of Miss Mary Melville Clow and Mario Braggiotti. The former is to be a large church ceremony in St. Chrysostom's in Dearborn parkway and the latter is to be a smallish home affair in Lake Forest.

The rector of St. Chrysostom's, the Rev. Dudley Stark, will read the service that will marry lovely young Miss Culbertson to young Mr. Carr at 4:30 o'clock, after which there will be a reception at the Casino. Craig Culbertson has come from his home in New York to give his daughter in marriage.

Preceding the bride to the altar will be the bridegroom's three year niece, Joan Marston, as flower girl; Joan's mother, Mrs. Edgar L. Marston II. of New York, and her sister, Mrs. W. Press Hodgkins, as matrons of honor; Miss Beatrice Kunhardt of New York as maid of honor; and the following bridesmaids: Miss Lila Burr Chapman and Miss Elizabeth Farnsworth of Memphis, Miss Harriet Ann Willets of Sewickley, Miss Mallory Mixsell of New York, Miss Kay Goodman, Miss Judy Butler, Miss Margot Reid and Miss Martha Carr, the bridegroom's cousin.

Senior Mr. Carr to Be Best Man.

The senior Mr. Carr will be his son's best man and ushering will be Mr. Marston, Mr. Hodgkins, Robert Adams Carr, the bridegroom's cousin; the bride's brother, Samuel A. Culbertson II.; Robert Anderson, John Marshall, Peter Moon, who is engaged to Miss Martha Carr; Joseph Griffin, Joseph Sampsell, Milton Wilson Jr., Bradley Eben, and Van Asmus Bunting.

Miss Culbertson was to have been presented formally to society by her mother, Mrs. Wallace F. Kirk, and Mr. Kirk, at a ball during the Christmas holidays, but instead her engagement was announced at a dinner-dance at the Casino on Nov. 6, her eighteenth birthday. Mrs. Hunter Marston has come from New York to attend the wedding and to see her little granddaughter play the part of flower girl.

Mr. Carr Jr. and his bride will go to California to sail for a three and a half months' trip to Honolulu, the South Sea Islands, New Zealand and Australia.

New York Designer to Supervise Wedding.

Every one anticipates that the Carr-Culbertson wedding will be a memorable one, for the bride is unusually beautiful and it is rumored that the New York designer who has made the gowns has planned one of the most stunning of the dozens of fashionable weddings that he has to his credit. This is the first time he ever has come to Chicago to supervise a wedding.

An interesting legend has grown up about the weddings for which this dressmaker has made the gowns; he has been specializing in marriages for a score of years and so far not one has ended in the divorce courts. Whitney, Roosevelt, du Pont, and Vanderbilt are some of the names of the brides he has gowned for the altar.

A Roman Catholic, the designer has a mass said in his church for every one of "his" brides on the morning of her wedding day. He also follows an old tradition and insists that each of "his" brides shall wear a sixpence in her shoe.

Clow Wedding at Her Home.

The half a hundred friends who have been invited to the North Green Bay road home in Lake Forest of the junior William E. Clows this afternoon for "Baby" Clow's marriage to Mr. Braggiotti anticipate that they will see an unusual ceremony, too, for the bride is noted for her individuality and distinctive taste.

The great white house behind a white wall will be a perfect setting for a wedding and it is safe to predict that Miss Clow will combine in the decorative scheme the classic and the modern, just as the architect did in designing the house. "It profits by tradition, respects the classic principles, yet is quietly adventurous and definitly modern" wrote Sargent Collier in Town and Country about the house several years ago.

Bride's Sister Will Be an Attendant.

The Rev. Herbert E. Prince of Lake Forest's Church of the Holy Spirit will read the ceremony at 4 o'clock in the living room. The bride's sister, Mrs. Lloyd A. Laflin of Lake Forest; Mrs. James E. Finan of New York [Betty Sturges Field of Chicago] and Miss Gloria Braggiotti of New York will attend the bride. Sebastiano Braggiotti will be his brother's best man.

Being a home wedding, there is no need for ushers, but Jacques Frey, who is the bridegroom's concert partner—they are pianists—and Edward Briggs of Boston, an old family friend of the Braggiottis, also are attending the bridegroom. Mr. Braggiotti and Mr. Frey start a concert tour on Feb. 1 but before then Mr. and Mrs. Braggiotti will take a combination wedding and concert trip.

Miss Virginia Bent to Be Bride Tonight.

Another Lake Forest wedding will take place at 6:30 o'clock this evening in the home of the aunt and uncle of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Gardner of Lake Forest. Miss Virginia Gardner Bent, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Harry Bent of Pasadena, Cal., formerly of Chicago, will be married to John Paul Hume of Milwaukee.

Miss Bent will have her sister, Mrs. Theodore W. Lamb of Chicago, as matron of honor and Mr. Hume's

Mrs. John J. McDonough will pour at a tea the English-Speaking union is giving at the Casino Monday afternoon for Ethel Bartlett and Rae Robertson, the piano duo. Miss Bartlett and Mr. Robertson will give the fourth concert of the Musical Arts series of the Adult Education council on Tuesday night at Orchestra hall.

Flute Recital Made Exciting by Callimahos

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Enemies of the flute recital as an institution claim quite justly that a musical event of this sort lacks the thunderous excitement of, say, a concert by a military band.

On the other hand, a flute recital may turn out to possess excitement of quite another kind. There is intense interest in tiny gradations within a small compass—a more intense interest, sometimes, than in larger, more garish effects. But the flutist, of course, has to be very good.

He was very good last night, Lambros Demetrios Callimahos, young Greek-American from the east, played the flute at the Civic theater and aroused the enthusiasm of a large audience. His program was surprisingly comprehensive, extending through 200 years and utilizing the works of a bewildering number of composers.

In the ballet music from Gluck's "Orfeo" Mr. Callimahos restored to the flute the innocence and naivete of utterance which it must have possessed when Greek gods used to cut river reeds on which to play their simple runes [or am I thinking of something else?]. At other times he achieved surprisingly dark tone colorings, tints which are not traditionally associated with his instrument.

The playing of Mr. Callimahos is delectably smooth, lacking completely, except in very rare passages, any quality of breathiness. His subtly beautiful dynamic effects, within the compass of a single phrase and often of a single note, were a feature of the evening.

In his hands the flute possesses notable expressive power. It can give a highly satisfactory lift and lilt to a melody, wax puckish in an intoxicating manner, and compass a pianissimo of an extraordinary purity and delicacy.

SUBSTITUTE AT OPERA

Dimitri Onofrei was sick. Charles Sears had a conflicting radio engagement. What to do! What to do!

This was the situation confronting the San Carlo Opera company yesterday afternoon. The directors knew that by 8:20 o'clock a sold out Auditorium would be waiting eagerly for the Hizi Koyke "Butterfly." And all the Pinkertons seemed to be ill or busy with other work.

Some one turned up the name of Henry Thompson, a Chicagoan whose history includes a spell with the Carl Rosa Opera company in England and with various groups in this country and Canada. At 4 o'clock he was notified to be ready for the part. He was—and "Butterfly" went on.

Mr. Thompson had not sung the rôle for many years and he knew it only in English. But bilingual presentations of opera are nothing new [remember the Swedish-French "Carmen" at the Metropolitan last season and the German-Italian "Barber" at the Civic this year?] and the audience applauded cordially.

MOVIE CLOSEUP

The newly decorated Drake theater at 3548 Montrose avenue opens tomorrow. The theater has a new front, lobby, foyer—and sound system. In honor of the opening a triple feature program will be presented. Films shown will be "Live, Love and Learn," "Fit for a King," and "Dangerously Yours."

New Antelope Hats Come in Pastel Colors

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Pastel colored antelope hats are intriguing new toppers, ready to brighten midseason wardrobes. They're snappy, cut with lots of dash and flattery, and are presented in a good assortment of styles.

The off-the-face brim idea is especially good in a violet tinted lether affair that rests well back on the skull. Violet is a most important color to watch; it's being pushed for all kinds of early spring clothes—suits, ensembles, sweaters, separate jackets, and now the hats.

The antelope hats are shown also in luscious tones of gold, powdery yellow, chartreuse green, and aquamarine. Some have jaunty feathers for trim and others are of the simple beret type. The brimmed models are among the most becoming skylines of the season.

These are the sort of midseason hats that go south as well as out in the colder temperatures with dark clothes. The antelope is exceptionally soft and supple, the colors all new and springlike.

Another lether taking the money of good shoppers is patent lether. Tricky little narrow belts in all bright colors and white are efficient aids for contrasting dark winter dress. The newest have silver metal anchors for buckles.

White pigskin, kidskin, and patent lether belts are the rage of the hour because white belts repeat all the clever white frills, the white cut-out applique work, and other white trim on dark daytime dresses and printed silks.

Good Morning!

"The storm is master. Man, as a ball, is tossed 'twixt winds and billows."—Schiller.

Well, it's here—that "Hurricane" we've been anticipating for so long, and I advise you to blow over to the United Artists theater and see it.

It's a smashing big picture. One in which the untamable elements of nature and the tumultuous emotions of the human heart hold devil's holiday. It is a beautiful picture; a terrifying picture; a picture with stretches of almost unbearable suspense; with undertows of tragedy and tenderness.

As for the hurricane episode—nothing so realistic and spellbinding has, I think, ever been done before in the movies, with the possible exception of the storm scenes in "Lost Horizon."

During this sequence a South Sea island is stripped of vegetation, population, habitation by an "act of God" the like of which, you pray God, may never be visited on you. Palms are torn up by their roots, mountainous combers surge over the land and in their overpowering arms sweep men, women, and children into the bosom of a mad, insatiable sea, while the wind howls like a million demons drowning out the cries of the pitiful, fated victims.

There's a "Les Miserables" semblance to the story, for the Nordhoff and Hall hero is, like Victor Hugo's Jean Valjean, a victim of man's inhumanity to man.

Terangi, greatly beloved by the islanders, is a sailor on a boat plying the southern waters. . . . Shortly after his marriage to Marama, a lovely native girl, he sails away. . . . On another island he jams his fist into the face of a tormentor and is sent to jail.

The determined, untiring efforts of the desperate child of nature to escape from his cage cause his sentence to be prolonged to the extent of fifteen years.

At last, however, Terangi gets away. The man hunt which follows is grueling. . . . Then comes the fugitive's 600 mile water journey in an open boat. This episode is interesting, but not as convincing as the rest of the picture.

Terangi fears to return to his island because the governor is a hard man who sticks to the letter of the law and will not permit himself to be swayed by the realization that there is a wild, birdlike quality to his subjects that makes them incapable of knuckling under to certain things. . . . Through the aid of the kindly priest he lands on another island where, shortly, his wife and child find him. . . .

And soon—the hurricane—and Terangi to the rescue—and a finale that pleases even if it doesn't seem entirely probable.

Jon Hall is a smart young fellow, entirely adequate to his difficult rôle—though not, perhaps, the world wonder he's been cracked up to be. . . . Dorothy Lamour is an exquisite Marama, and I was much impressed by the work of C. Aubrey Smith as the priest, Thomas Mitchell as the doctor, Raymond Massey as the governor, and John Carradine as the jailer. Mary Astor is an appealing and gallant Mme de Laage, wife of the governor.

The picture is a long one. But so is this review. I should talk!

Helen Hayes Is Portia of Great Charm

"THE MERCHANT OF VENICE."

Shakespeare's play presented in the Erlanger theater Jan. 14 [matinée], 1938, by the "Victoria Regina" company, with Helen Hayes as Portia and Abraham Sofaer as Shylock.

THE CAST.

Old Gobbo	James Gibson
Leonardo	Izetta Jewel
Balthasar	Albert Froom
Stephano	Augusta Roeland
Portia	Helen Hayes
Nerissa	Pamela Henry-May
Jessica	Kate Warriner

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

Helen Hayes' recreational and experimental debut as a Shakespearean actress with Portia as her rôle, made at yesterday's special matinée performance in the Erlanger theater, proved to be a happy event. The star of "Victoria Regina" was reported to be in a state of gloom over the prospect of this casual revival of "The Merchant of Venice" when rehersals were in their last phase; but after her numerous curtain calls, which the audience wanted to double or triple, she had reason to be radiant.

The occasion, whether regarded from Miss Hayes' or Shakespeare's point of view, was much more of a success than its incidental character promised.

First of all, this was not a makeshift affair, but a carefully studied and handsomely decorated production, with every detail of stagecraft given meticulous attention. In equipment it was a "Merchant of Venice" of which any impresario might be proud.

When one considers the fact that Miss Hayes herself is paying for these costumes and backgrounds, without intending to give more than three performances during her tour, the event assumes a unique and extraordinary aspect.

In the second place, the casting for the major rôles was excellent. Queen Victoria raised her Lord Beaconsfield to the rank of co-star in this Shakespearean adventure, and that actor, Abraham Sofaer, proved to be an admirable Shylock, exactly right in racial color and adept in all the traditions for the Jew of Venice. The Bassanio of Alexander Clark [Prince Ernest by night], the Antonio of Charles Francis, otherwise Lord Melbourne, and the Jessica of Kate Warriner, regularly Lady Jane of the regal quarrel scene, were excellent.

The recruits from "Tovarich"—McKay Morris as the duke of Venice and Cecil Humphreys as the prince of Morocco—were superb of presence and gifted in the Elizabethan style. Raymond Johnson, a mere door opener in "Victoria Regina," became the jolliest Launcelot Gobbo of modern playgoing experience.

There were some weak spots in the cast, of course, for the obscure young men who appear as footmen and other small fry in "Victoria Regina" were not made in the mold of Venetian gallants. But they took their dramatic exercises earnestly and knew their lines. The principals were so good that one could forgive Salanio, Salarino, Gratiano, and Lorenzo.

Miss Hayes' Portia has great charm and delightful humor; her diction is clarity itself; her spirit is quietly gay and graciously quizzical. She has not reached, as yet, the element of high romance in the character, and thus Portia's expressions of love for Bassanio seemed merely well studied, not felt. But as a new Portia this is a fine interpretation in the terms of Miss Hayes' personality. She follows her own natural direction without trying to be as tall and as glamorous as Ellen Terry.

She introduces an unorthodox stroke into the trial scene which deserves a footnote in variorum editions. She treats Portia's decision about "no drop of blood"—the turning point of the trial—as an inspiration of the moment. It comes to Portia out of the blue, as she stands before the seat of Venetian justice, that this is the legal trick to baffle the Jew's vengeance and keep Antonio's pound of flesh in its proper place. Miss Hayes pauses in her speech, opens her eyes wide, breathes an "Ah," and then proceeds to give Shylock the works.

This is "new business" with a vengeance. As a novelty, I welcome it; as a trick, I question it; as a plausible interpretation of Portia's plan in masquerading as a doctor of laws, I reject it. But it proves that Miss Hayes approaches Shakespeare with ideas of her own.

Mr. Sofaer's Shylock is of the quieter type, and he, too, has not yet reached deeply into the emotional values of the rôle. Technically, however, he is brilliant. He contributed to the "new business" score of the production by interjecting a brief prayer in Hebrew at the moment of Shylock's downfall.

Looking at Hollywood
By Ed Sullivan

The Observation Post.

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 14.—I got a letter from Frank Hamilton this morning and he said that snow finally had fallen in New York City and that the streets were slippery and that it was cold. As I read it the California sun was shining down hotly on a green lawn, so there was no sense to the sudden yen I got for the slippery sidewalks of New York.

Spencer Tracy aids Healy show.

Yet your reporter confesses, after four months away from the east, that he has a terrific yearning for the sight and sound and smell and clatter of Manhattan. They tell, out here, that every New Yorker gets that same burning yen for 42d street and Broadway, and that they've been amazed that a former Broadway columnist has held out so long against it. Well, it caught up with me in a rush.

Despite all the talk, every studio here is preparing $1,000,000 picture budgets. Movie fans have become so accustomed to these big pictures that the studios say it would be suicide to discontinue them. . . . Gloria Swanson, discouraged, will head back east if an offer isn't forthcoming. . . . The Ted Healy benefit show is slated for midnight of Jan. 22 at Warner's Hollywood, proceeds to be turned over to the comic's widow and baby.

Commenting on the necessity for the testimonial performance, Chairman Jack Warner says: "His tragic financial plight resulted only from his own generosity. His purse strings were always open and he gave generously to all who asked for aid." Ted could have asked for no grander epitaph than that.

"In Old Chicago" tickets are $5.50 a copy for the local preview. . . . The Vines-Perry tennis match here the other night asked $6 a seat for the boxes, but most of the movie celebs bought $3 grandstand seats. . . . Harry Cohn, Columbia Pictures prexy, sat in a $3 seat and pointed out six of his $250 a week employés who were seated in the $6 section. People who can't afford it always are dopes; people who can afford it are wiser with their money.

Eddie Buzzell, who once played the lead in "The Gingham Girl" on Broadway, is a big click as a director, as a result of his "Paradise for Three." . . . This was originally titled "Three Men in the Snow." Frank Morgan, Edna May Oliver, Mary Astor, Henry Hull, Robert Young, Florence Rice, Reginald Owen and Herman Bing are in the cast.

Exhibitors' reports on "The Awful Truth" will amuse Irene Dunne. . . . The exhibs state that this is the first time Irene ever has displayed sex appeal. . . . And they're right. . . . Groucho Marx is the greatest mind traveler out here. . . . Within the last few weeks he has outlined trips to Sun Valley, Miami, Mexico City, Yosemite, San Francisco, but is still in town.

Selznick Publicity Director Russ Birdwell has a problem on his hands, the selling of "Tom Sawyer" as a picture for adults. . . . Jocky Sonny Workman has finally hit his riding stride at Santa Anita.

Mrs. Clark Gable is taking back her house and the Bob Hopes, who had it for three months, are in the market for another place. . . . The Jack Bennys' new home will cost about $150,000.

Most amusing testimony in the Barbara Stanwyck-Frank Fay child custody case was that phase about Frank's new false teeth. . . . He and George Olsen were most famous of the "toothy" professionals, but the trial revealed that Fay was using phony chinaware. . . . Winner and new champion, therefore, is Olsen.

Storrs Exhibit Has Humor as Well as Beauty

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

A brilliantly effective exhibit of sculpture and paintings by John Storrs opened yesterday in the Roullier Art galleries, 410 South Michigan avenue, to continue through the month.

John Storrs wears rather a Jekyll and Hyde personality in his following of the two pursuits. He is, however, a fantastic Hyde in his paintings, with no streak of cruelty or horror to marr his bizarre creations.

As a sculptor, Mr. Storrs is the target of little, but enthusiastic approbation. His tiny portrait busts are exquisite; his three nude female figures are delightful; the abstract is exquisite and the two larger portrait busts, one of Miss Mary Adams [the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus H. Adams] and the other of Miss Pauline Palmer, are the most fascinating pieces of portraiture we have met in some time.

The head of Miss Palmer has been carved in marble. The marble is surprisingly warm in feeling, resembling a little the sensitive warmth of wax, and yet it is rich and full of character. Out of this perfect material Mr. Storrs has drawn a perfect head. Note the subtle treatment of the hair, with its suggested and yet stylized curly bob. Note the exquisite lines of the throat and chin, the lovely classic purity of the features, the delicate, soft contour of the face.

This is a happy meeting of model, artist and marble that must stand out as the high light in any exhibit.

An entire gallery is hung with Mr. Storrs' paintings. In these he is working for color and form and to enjoy himself. He gives as much pleasure as he gets. The fantastic concoctions, straight from the brain of a delicately minded Mr. Hyde crossed with Edwin Lear and Lewis Carroll, are delightful.

You may think them what you will, but do not miss the mouse with his heavenly partner, Miss Cheese. Be sure to take in the full effect of the "Promenade on the Grass" where a telephone, a key and a horse hold happy communion.

For a quarter of an hour of sheer fun read his riddles for yourself. They are, at all events, not dull.

RUN!

By Patricia Wentworth

[Copyright: 1938: By Patricia Wentworth Turnbull.]

SYNOPSIS.

Delivering a new car to a customer, James Elliot, lost in the fog, finds himself on some one's estate. Groping his way to the dark house he finds the front door ajar. Entering, his flashlight reveals a girl who commands him to "Run!" A shot whistles after them as they flee. At his Cousin Daphne's, James later meets the girl. She is Sally West, sister of his college chum, Jocko West. She hints of danger to him—because of what he saw—her brother and herself. Jackson, a rival salesman, takes credit for driving the car the night of the fog and is run over and killed. Sally and James fall in love. Sally is in fear of Ambrose Sylvester, the novelist, who is her guardian; also his wife, Hildegarde, and the latter's cousin, Henri Niemeyer. The money Sally's Aunt Clementa left to Jocko comes next to her, and if she dies, to Ambrose. The aunt, supposedly bedridden, discovered that her ancestral home, Rere place, was being used for some criminal purpose, and found and hid the evidence. Sally, James, and Jocko conduct a futile search of the house. While putting his car up, James is knocked out by Henri. Meanwhile, Jocko goes to investigate the cellars, and Sally is confronted by Henri and Hildegarde. They admit they intend to kill them. Sally is chloreformed and awakes to find Ambrose beside her. She escapes to join Jocko. James, regaining consciousness, returns to the house and, catching Hildegarde and Henri with a book and parcel, snatches what they have found. Hildegarde sets fire to the house. James rushes to save Sally. The three are trapped in the cellar.

INSTALMENT XLVIII.

SAFE!

Sally got hold of the ring. The rust on it made it rough and easy to hold.

Jocko said, "Take your weight for a moment—I've got to lie down." He let go.

It was the most dreadful moment in Sally's whole life, but it was only a moment. Then he had her left wrist. He was lying face downward now, leaning over the well.

"Now, Sally—one more step down and James will be able to help you. Put down your other foot and feel for the next hold."

She reached down with her foot. Jocko's arm was now at full stretch as he leaned over the well. Her right hand gripped the ring a yard below the brink. Her left foot clung to a small, slippery ledge. With her right foot she sought vainly for the next step. A hand closed round her ankle—James' hand. Her foot was guided to its hold. James spoke.

"It's all right—I won't let you fall. Jocko's got to let go of you now. All you've got to do is to hold on with your right hand and bring your left down to the next ring."

Her hand went groping down the wall until it found and clutched the second ring. James said,

"Only one more step. Bring your left foot down and I'll guide it."

Then, blessed relief, there was an arm about her waist.

Her feet were planted side by side, and she had let go of the ring. She was at the mouth of a dark passage which broke the side of the well, and James was pulling her in.

"All clear J. J. Hurry up!"

She was jerked to her feet and raced along. Her feet slipped and stumbled, but James' arm kept her up. She thought, "Jocko must be safe, because he's got the candle." And then thought went out in noise as roof and walls crashed in behind them.

Sally heard voices. One of them said,

James put his cheek against hers and said, "Sally!"

She opened her eyes and saw James' face, and candlelight, and a dark roof, and a heap of straw. She was lying on the heap of straw.

She held on to him and pulled herself up.

"Where are we? I thought everything crashed."

"The passage caved in—behind us. We're in the stables. Did you know that there was an old well in one of them?"

Sally nodded.

"Yes—I did. Aunt Clementa said it was as old as the oldest part of the house."

"Well, she was quite right. That was the back way into Rere place—down the stable well to the cross passage, and then up the other well to the place that we were in. That's why there were all those bolts on the door—they didn't want people sneaking in unbeknownst."

"How did we get here?"

"We brought you up the stable well. You know, I couldn't make out why they had those two lots of cellars one under the other. I mean I couldn't see the point of the lower one, but, of course, they had to have it to get their connection between the wells—the stables are so much lower than the house. I remember you bringing me down a lot of steps the day we met in the fog, and the car had to come down quite a slope when I put it away just before they laid me out. So, of course, they had to keep that bottom cellar."

Sally sat up. She wasn't feeling any interest in secret passages, or cellars, or wells. James was here, but where was Jocko? She said this aloud very insistently.

"Where's Jocko?"

"Gone to have a look at the house. There won't be much left of it. The crash that nearly got us was the old part falling in."

Sally had a sudden picture of Rere place burning, burning, burning, and Ambrose burning with it—Ambrose, and Hildegarde, and Henri."

"Where are they? They're not in the house. O, James, they're not in the house! Henri was hurt! You hurt him!"

James did feel justly annoyed. All Sally's solicitude seemed to be for the people who had done their best to murder her. This concern for Henri seemed particularly uncalled for.

"There's no sign of their car, so I suppose they've made off. Hullo—that sounds like J. J. in a hurry."

Jocko West it was, and he was out of breath with running.

"Hullo, Sally—all right?"

Sally scrambled up.

"O, yes. What is it? What's happened?"

"Fire Brigade just arriving. There isn't much left for them to save. The question is, do we stay and chat with them, or do we do a bunk?"

"If we do a bunk," said James, "and anyone sees us, you'll be suspected of burning the house to get the insurance money."

Jocko laughed.

"Thank you, James, it's not insured. But perhaps we'd better stay—only we must all tell the same story, and it's got to be watertight."

"The truth is the only really water-tight story."

"Good boy! Go to the top of the class! But how much truth do we tell? Are we going to prosecute our dear guardian and his wife, and her boy friend?"

"O, no!" said Sally. "O, no, no, no!"

"Quite immoral, but I agree. Very well then, we leave them out. We tell the truth, but we don't tell too much about it. We came down to have a look at Rere place—a nice piece about that, with a special mention of the oil stove. Then, to account for the fire, precipitous cellar stair with pile of rubbish below—the stove unfortunately capsized. If anyone wants to know why she was down there at all, I shall produce the simple fact that cellars are cold. I don't think anyone will really bother very much. Come along and meet the parson. He's a very good fellow, but fires are meat and drink to him, and as long as he's got a good one he won't care a hoot who started it."

Half an hour later, when Rere place no longer blazed but merely smoked, a shapeless, blackened ruin, James took Colonel Pomeroy's precious car down the drive and between the tall gate-posts into the road. He had Sally and Jocko to direct him, so he took the right turning this time.

They passed through Staling and found it asleep, and ran on by way of steepish hill to the blind corner where the road forks for Letherington, and there, just on the bend, was a ditched lorry and the remains of a car. Another car was standing by, and a group of people—an A. A. scout, a policeman, and others.

Put Tribune Color Photos on Display in Theater

Thirty natural color photographs taken in THE TRIBUNE studio during the last year are on display in the upper lobby of the Chicago theater. They will remain there for two weeks and will then be taken to two other Balaban & Katz theaters, the Tivoli and Uptown, for showings. An explanation of the methods used in getting nearly perfect reproductions is contained in printed matter accompanying the exhibit.

Sanford Bates, Head of Boys' Clubs, to Visit City

Sanford Bates, executive director of the Boys' Clubs of America, Inc., will address the annual meeting of the Young Men's Jewish council at the Covenant club on Jan. 18. Formerly national director of federal prisons under Presidents Coolidge, Hoover, and Roosevelt, Bates turned to boys' club work because, he said, it holds the key to prevention of crime.

Listen, Men! Look to Your Own Grooming

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

Read this, gentlemen, please.

"Your excellent good posture theme lacks, to date, one valuable note, Miss Donnelly. Men also read your column, believe it or not. They read it, perhaps, only for suggestions for remarks belittling us. They so need to believe themselves superior.

"I would like to see them so, too. Unfortunately for this wish of mine, it is necessary for men to qualify or I cannot admire them. Judging by the number of women who rave about movie idols, I gather I am not alone in liking the well setup man. Not, understand brother-in-law, William Henry Wolf of Pasadena, Cal., will be best man.

Only relatives and a few intimate friends will be present for the ceremony. Mr. Hume and his bride will leave immediately following the reception for Milwaukee where they will make their home. They are postponing their wedding trip until May because Mr. Hume's business will not permit him to leave at this time.

Officers Elected By Casino Club.

At the annual meeting of the Casino, Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman again was named honorary president and Mrs. Frank Hibbard president of the smart little club in East Delaware place. They are the only feminine officers, for the first vice president is Charles Y. Freeman, the second vice president is Barrett Wendell Jr., the secretary is Joseph T. Ryerson, and the treasurer is Charles S. Dewey.

Mr. and Mrs. John Alden Carpenter left yesterday for Los Angeles where next Thursday the Los Angeles Philharmonic orchestra, directed by Otto Klemperer, and Zlatko Balokovic, violinist, will play Mr. Carpenter's new violin concerto.

Give Party Tonight for Two Debutantes.

The week-end brings a revival of entertaining for debutantes. Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Bermingham are giving a dinner-dance in their Lake Forest home tonight for Miss Mary Gardner and Miss Betty Armour. The party is for young people, but the host and hostess have invited a handful of their own friends as well.

Miss Armour and Miss Gardner were special guests at a dinner and theater party Miss Anne Winston gave last night. Miss Ariel Bryce of New York is visiting Miss Winston and her parents, the Farwell Winstons.

Prokofieff Cables He Is in Paris.

The concert planned for Feb. 15 by the Renaissance Society of the University of Chicago will take place; yesterday a cable was received from the artist, Serge Prokofieff, announcing his arrival yesterday morning in Paris. The cable also brought word that he will sail on the Normandie on Jan. 29.

The Indian Hill club's ice carnival for children will be held this afternoon at the club if weather permits. The grand parade for prizes for the best costumes will start promptly at 2:30 o'clock, and the committee has issued the warning that no prizes will be given to those not in line at that time.

Mrs. John H. Storrs will speak on "Nothing New Under Sirius in France 1937" this morning at the Alliance Française.

Miss Katherine Carr will read her story "Two Girls in an Auto from Nice to Salzburg" at a meeting of the Northern Illinois branch of the League of American Pen Women tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. Franklin M. Miller. The event is the branch's composers' and poets' day, and there is to be a musical program as well as Miss Carr's reading.

The Housewife

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

Your stove can be placed flush with the wall and can be a unit with adjoining cabinets and other furnishings if you choose a new model exhibited at the home furnishings market.

This range is built without unsightly flue collars or exposed parts, and is so efficiently insulated that its heat will not extend to the working cabinets or tables placed flush with it along the wall. There need be no open spaces between it and other units, and it is built so its top surface is exactly at their height. Thus an even line of working surfaces throughout the kitchen is made possible.

The top of this range is of stainless steel, and the back guard and lamp are in chromium. The top of the back guard makes a shelf for kitchen utensils.

The range is vented through the back guard, thus keeping your walls free from dirt or smudge. Its built-in feature is one of the high spots of the current market.

Young Married Couples Enjoy Strict Budget

BY DORIS BLAKE.

The girl's parents found out recently how much the young man earns a week, and they immediately served notice on the girl that her Jack would find the unwelcome sign hanging out for him.

Says the girl: "I cannot understand my parents. They have nothing against my boy friend but his income. His income is small, but what about other boys' incomes these days? They all are small. What I can't understand about my parents is that they brag to everybody about getting married on $12 a week and making a go of it. When I throw that up to them, they say that $12 a week when they married was a lot different than it would be today. My beau earns $26.50 a week, to be exact, and I have a job that amply takes care of my needs.

"My Jack is ambitious. He chafes under the salary he makes. He tries to add to it by doing odd night jobs when he can get them. I wonder how I ever can love my parents for being so selfish."—Peggy.

It isn't that the parents are selfish, Peggy. They are just uninformed about current incomes of young men. They see you as their beloved daughter whom they want to spare the trials and tribulations they probably went through themselves. Or, they see you as a beautiful young daughter who deserves the best which, according to their lights, is marriage with a good big salary upon which to live.

But parents must come to realize that the marriage mart, as other marts, is undergoing a difficult economic era. What could have been expected for daughter in the big boom days has nothing to do with her prospects today. But she may come off better in the long run for the economic grilling young couples experience today, just as those experiences of their own on $12 a week put fiber in the being and starch into the spine.

Lithuanians to Recall Acquisition of Port

Exercises will be held in Chicago today in observance of the 15th anniversary of the acquisition by Lithuania of the port of Memel on the Baltic sea. Prior to 1923 the port, also known as Klaipeda, was in the possession of Germany.

WEDDINGS

The wedding of Miss Virginia Lee Graham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis S. Graham of Evanston to Charles Riggs Sprowl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Orr Sprowl of Lansing, Mich., will take place tonight at 8:30 o'clock in the Glencoe Union church, with the Rev. Douglas Hawley Cornell officiating. The reception will be held immediately following the ceremony at the Country Club of Evanston.

The wedding of Miss Miriam Jane Muntz, daughter of Mrs. Albert C. Muntz of Elgin and Chicago, to Paul F. Born Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul F. Born of Elgin, will take place this evening at 8:30 o'clock in the First Methodist Episcopal church of Elgin.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1938: By Ely Culbertson.]

Most of us, at some time or other, have felt the deep humiliation resulting from "going to sleep with an ace." It is one of the most poignant experiences in life, especially when there is a large and appreciative group of kibitzers around the table!

Needless to say, there are times when the best conceivable defense is to sacrifice an ace. But, unfortunately, there is too much of this sacrificing done without rime or reason.

South, dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	2 no trump	Pass
3 hearts	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
4 hearts	Pass	Pass	Pass

North, although he held four hearts, felt that his ace-queen of clubs and king-queen of diamonds should be led up to, not through, hence his choice of three no trump. South, with an acute dislike of no trump, was correct in persisting with his major suits.

The opening lead was the club ten. Dummy ducked and East's king won. East, for no discernible reason, returned a club. That was the swan song of the defenders.

Declarer took two rounds of hearts ending in dummy, then discarded his losing diamond on the good club. The spade finesse lost to West's king, but the high trump remained the defenders' only additional trick, and thus the contract was made with ease.

East might have taken the pains to consider the bidding. South's bidding had guaranteed a maximum of four cards in the minor suits. Whether these were three clubs and one diamond, or two clubs and two diamonds, did not matter. The salient fact was that East could not even hope to take more than one diamond trick. That being so, he should have grabbed it in a hurry, because there was, of course, a strong possibility that South had only three minor suit cards, which could go on dummy's clubs. East's one reasonable hope was that after he had taken the club king and the diamond ace, West would be able to take a spade and a heart, or possibly two spade tricks. East should have banged down the diamond ace with expedition and dispatch and then, to insure that his partner would not be caught in a possible end play, should have returned a spade. Obviously, this would have defeated the contract.

Gracefully Shirred Blouses

WOMAN'S AND MISS' BLOUSE.

It's high time to take the blouse situation seriously. In the first place, smart toppers enrich your winter wardrobe, affording interesting combines with your favorite skirts. In the second place, spring is not so very far away, and your suits will require a variety of blouses. We think that one of the most graceful blouses ever designed is the one we're offering today. Perhaps we should say two blouses, because the one pattern affords two versions. The one at the upper right has a high and collarless neckline, long sleeves puffed at the shoulders, shirring and slide fastener down the middle, and a pointed hemline. A "big apple" design may, if you wish, lend a bit of gayety at the shoulders.

The design at the left takes to a V neckline and puts shirring in the sleeves as well as down the front. Both these blouses are pretty in silk crêpes or satin, and either black or bright shades may be used. These are dressy blouses which are suitable for either tailored or more formal occasions.

Style No. 3428 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 1¾ yards of 39 inch material.

The embroidery pattern is No. E-700, and is available for 10 cents extra.

New York, Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Silvia Gould, great-granddaughter of the late Jay Gould of Wall Street, became the bride of Charles Dabney Thomson of Cincinnati today. Silvia, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kingdon Gould, was married in the tremendous drawing room of the duplex apartment here in which her parents make their home. It was a handsome wedding in the old Gould tradition. The bridegroom is the grandson of the late Peter Ginson Thomson of Cincinnati. The couple will live in Cincinnati.

ODDMENTS FOR THE GOURMET'S PALATE—The Emperor Alexander was the first to eat bananas, quinces, peaches, plums, and oranges, according to record. He found some of these fruits growing in the valley of the Indus about 327 B. C. Alexander's army, nibbling dates as it marched, scattered seeds all along the Persian gulf and date trees grew where date trees never had grown before.

Butterscotch is the second most popular cream pie ordered in restaurants. Chocolate is first, of course.

"Au gratin" does not mean "with cheese" but indicates a dish topped with crums. You may or may not get cheese to boot in ordering an au gratin dish.

A too large or a too small candy kettle will induce large grains. The kettle used should just cover the heating unit and be deep enough to allow the candy to boil moderately fast.

Sauerkraut was an early remedy among soldiers and sailors, who had a high death rate from the scourge of scurvy caused by lack of vitamin C. When Vasco da Gama sailed around the Cape of Good Hope in 1498 two-thirds of his sailors died of scurvy. The disease dates from the Crusades, the last great outbreaks occurring during the world war. Fresh fruits and vegetables are the best scurvy preventive and cure. . . . Frozen red raspberries have been found to contain a rich source of vitamin C. . . . Dogs, rats, and most domestic animals won't get scurvy even if vitamin C foods are withheld from them because they are able to manufacture it in their bodies. Man, monkeys, and guinea pigs apparently are the only animals affected adversely by a lack of fresh fruits and vegetables.

For a hurry-up chocolate frosting melt a couple of chocolate candy bars over low heat, add a little cream, and spread on the cake. Cut with a hot knife to avoid breaking the frosting.

For a "different" banana salad spread banana quarters with creamy peanut butter and roll in coconut. Serve with mayonnaise on salad greens.

Not until the first half of the nineteenth century were pears known in their present edible state. The soft fleshed fruit we eat is a result of scientific breeding which started with Belgian horticulturists. Earlier pears were crisp and not particularly good to eat.

Spinach has lost face with nutritionists of late. It was long overrated as a healthful food for children, and the popular comic character, Popeye, helped "put it over." Spinach is good for you, but it won't work miracles. It's no better than dandelion greens, parsley, lettuce, broccoli, kale, and turnip tops as a source of vitamin A and iron. And not all of the iron in spinach is usable by the body. Whole grain cereals, egg yolk and liver are better sources.

Liberty and Security Are Vital to Child

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

A wise doctor has said that a child to be well, happy, and poised is in vital need of two things, liberty and security.

And again and again the burden of my song in this column has been that a child must be made to feel secure by the love and approval of his parents and by their wise consistent management; and that he must have freedom to grow, to experiment, to be active.

But as a postscript to the freedom advice I almost always add a description of what freedom is, as contrasted with license and wildness. And I have written much on the building of character.

Perhaps occasionally it is a good plan to express an attitude in so many words. Here it is:

Any one who has read my articles steadily must realize that I most decidedly believe that a child for his own good, as well as for the good of other people, must learn obedience, self-control, and mannerliness.

What I also believe, however, is that a child develops most richly if he has the opportunity to have his questions answered, his curiosity satisfied, and his self-activity directed into constructive channels instead of simply having it blocked.

I also believe that a child should not be nagged and corrected constantly as a form of control.

And I also believe so much in obedience that I have written a booklet on that subject which I should be glad to mail to any one who desires it.

The booklet, "How to Gain Obedience," will be sent out on receipt of a stamped, self-adressed envelope. Address Mrs. Gladys Bevans, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

From the notebook:

An exercise salon can do wonders in the way of foot correction. All exercises are individualized, of course, but in many cases of shortened and stiff ligaments, which cause discomfort and a misshapen foot, they use what's called a "foot normalizer," a hard rubber gadget that can be used at home to strengthen and exercise the feet.

When you use it you go through all the corrective motions, and before you know it [if you're faithful] your toes are strong and flexible and your arch as healthy as an arch can be.

Which reminds us that right now, when we're all clad in galoshes, a cologne rubdown night and morning makes the feet feel much better.

When you must go out of an evening, and dread the prospect because your feet are moaning, you can get a marvelous pickup if you bathe them in warm and cold water alternately a couple of times, then rub them with cologne and powder 'em before you put on fresh stockings. This is more than a foot refresher. You'll feel pretty sprightly in general.

A lot of freak diets are sprouting again. We don't know where in the world they originate, and we do wish women wouldn't write asking us to outline the weird combinations of lemonade and lamb chops some friend of a friend followed with great success.

Usually we've never heard of them, but on general principles we'd probably think them no good. If you take a tip from us, you'll let your friends follow their own food theories at their own risk. ELEANOR NANGLE.

21ST SILVER SKATES DERBIES OPEN TODAY

N.U., MICHIGAN RISK RECORDS; ALL FIVES PLAY

Purdue Dedicates Fieldhouse.

Games Tonight

Chicago at Illinois.
Iowa at Ohio State.
Wisconsin at Purdue.
Michigan at Minnesota.
Northwestern at Indiana.
Kentucky at Notre Dame.
Xavier at Loyola.

All Big Ten basketball teams will resume competition for the conference championship tonight. Northwestern and Michigan, the only quintets which are undefeated in league games, will risk their records against formidable opponents, Northwestern playing at Indiana and Michigan at Minnesota.

Tonight's program will include the dedication of Purdue's new gymnasium and fieldhouse. Many alumni are expected to gather at Lafayette to watch their team meet Wisconsin in the game which will be the main event on the dedication day ceremonies.

Northwestern a Surprise.

Northwestern has followed a disappointing practice season with a promising beginning of its conference campaign. It will go into tonight's engagement with the confidence acquired in beating Wisconsin, Ohio State, and Iowa.

Indiana has won two of its conference games, those with Illinois and Minnesota, but was defeated by Iowa.

The Hoosiers will face a difficult problem in attempting to check Jake Nagode and Jean Smith, who are among the conference leaders in individual scoring. Nagode has made 28 points and Smith 26. Trenkle, Davis, and Vance will complete Northwestern's starters.

But Favorites Don't Count.

On the basis of performance against a common foe, Northwestern is rated as the favorite, having scored a handy victory over Iowa, 36 to 28, after Iowa had beaten Indiana, 48 to 39.

Michigan will go into tonight's game with considerable respect for Minnesota, because the Gophers, who are defending a conference co-championship, were beaten by only one point in their meeting with Indiana last Monday. Previously Minnesota had lost to Wisconsin. Michigan has beaten Illinois and Ohio State in its only conference games.

Illinois will encounter Chicago with Harry Lasater, who had been a substitute center, filling in at guard for Jay Wardley, who was injured in the Purdue game last Monday. Wardley had been considered one of the best defense men on the squad.

Illinois Gains Respect.

The victory over Purdue, which had been unbeaten in conference and nonconference games up to that point, greatly increased the prestige of the Illini.

Purdue, which started the season in apparently unbeatable form, expects to regain its stride against Wisconsin tonight, after its upset by Illinois.

The Badgers ran up 50 points against the Maroons last Monday but will have more trouble getting through the Boilermaker guards. Jewell Young, Purdue's most accurate shooter, was held to one basket in the first half of the Illinois game, but there is no one on the Wisconsin team who is recognized to have the guarding ability of Wardley of Illinois.

Iowa, with its spirit first strengthened by its victory over Indiana and then weakened by its defeat at the hands of Northwestern, will meet an Ohio State team that has been unable to win either of its two conference games.

MONTAGUE LOSES HIS NAME; HE'S MOORE AGAIN

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—La Verne Matthew Moore, better known as John Montague, golf's mystery man, is La Verne Matthew Moore again. Moore, who was granted the legal name of Montague on Jan. 1, was relieved of that title today by Judge E. H. Wilson, who originally had granted him permission to use the name of Montague. Judge Wilson revoked the Jan. 6 ruling after Moore, in reply to a question as to whether he owed any debts, had said that he had settled a clothing judgment and would attend to other matters later.

Harry Thomas Knocks Out Winston in 3d Round

CUBS ARE STILL ON LOOKOUT FOR PLAYER BARGAIN

Report Negotiations for Mungo Are Renewed.

The Cubs are back on the trail leading to a possible trade such as has been made conversationally at various times during the winter. Clarence Rowland, the big barter man of the organization, was back in the club offices yesterday after several days of absence for which none of the other officials could account.

"Been out snooping around again for possible trades?" was asked of the roving member of P. K. Wrigley's baseball cabinet.

"O, I've been looking here and there," was the reply.

"What about that Cincinnati swap, Clarence."

Revive Mungo Negotiations.

There also is a flicker of life in the proposition involving the transfer of several Cubs to Brooklyn in exchange for Pitcher Van Mungo.

Reports from New York said the Cubs have made a new offer of $75,000 and four players to the Dodgers for Mungo, but the Brooklyn club is not satisfied with the playing material it would receive in the transaction. The Cubs are said to have offered, in addition to cash, first baseman Rip Collins, Infielder Lonnie Frey, who is an ex-Dodger; Outfielder Joe Marty, and Pitcher Clyde Shoun.

The Dodger reply, in effect, was "We want better players and less cash."

Drop Demaree Demand.

In past dealings with the Cubs, the Dodgers had insisted that Outfielder Frank Demaree must be included in any deal, but yesterday the club was said to have withdrawn that demand.

The New York source revealed that the Dodgers don't want Frey back. He was with the club until 1936, and while at Ebbets field led the National league twice in committing errors. Instead, the Dodgers want Augie Galan and in place of Shoun, they are asking for Clay Bryant.

Rowland also is known to be hot on the trail of Enos Slaughter, the Columbus, O., club outfielder, who is a chattel of the St. Louis Cardinals.

"When are you going to make this swap, whatever it is? At the schedule meeting in New York in February?"

"Might happen before that. But we are not going to deal just to make a deal. It will have to be something helpful."

Cubs Want Slaughter.

The Cubs want to buy Slaughter for cash, possibly throwing in a player the Columbus club could use. Some of the men supposed to be involved when the Cincinnati trade was first brought up last December were Ival Goodman, Paul Derringer, Ernie Lombardi, Rip Collins, and Clay Bryant.

MILLING BEATS CELLURA; BOUT GOES 10 ROUNDS

Varias Milling, veteran Filipino featherweight, defeated Johnny Cellura of Detroit in a ten round bout at Rainbo Fronton last night before a crowd of 464 who paid gross receipts of $531. Each fighter weighed 129 pounds. Referee Tommy Thomas warned Milling for landing a low blow in the seventh round, but the punch failed to slow up Cellura. After nearly being floored by a series of wallops in the ninth round Cellura swarmed all over his opponent in the final session to win the round. Preliminary results:

Johnny Helstrom stopped Frankie Flynn [3].
Norman Cordara beat Robert Brooks [4].
Eddie Shapiro beat Johnny Fairchild [4].
Harry Fredrickson beat Alex Pug [4].
Eddie Dykes knocked out Joe Dalley [4].

Fight Decisions

Back to Donegal.

It's soon that I'll be going back to Donegal again,
I'm lonesome for its sunshine and its silver spray of rain;
I miss the scarlet sunset and the thrush's morning song,
The night was never lonesome there, the day was never long;
I'm longing for the soft blue of a pretty colleen's eyes
That used to bend above me like the opalescent skies;
I'm yearning for the pressure of her hand within my own,
The only thrill of ecstasy my heart has ever known.

I'm going back to Donegal to seek a sweet release
From wantonness and worry, and to steep my soul in peace;
The heather and the hawthorne that I loved so much of yore
Will fill me with the spirit of the open field once more;
And somewhere in my roaming I'll be meeting with a lass
Whose smile will fall upon me sweet as dew upon the grass;
Then I'll be knowing happiness in answering her call
To settle in a cottage on the moors of Donegal. —T. E. B.

Lafayette, Ind., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Daniel A. Messner, 76, Benton county business man and horse breeder who owned Dan Patch, champion pacer of thirty-five years ago, died of pneumonia today at his home in Oxford, near here. Dan Patch, born on the Messner farm, made several world records for harness horses in 1906 at St. Paul, Minn. He paced a mile in 1:55¼, the fastest time ever made by a harness horse. In 1903 he paced a mile to a high wheel sulky in 2:04¾ and two miles at 4:17 at Macon, Ga. In 1903 at Memphis, Tenn., he broke the mile wagon record, doing 1:57¼.

Bromwich and Quist Beat Budge, Mako in Doubles

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ADELAIDE, Australia, Jan. 14.—Jack Bromwich and Adrian Quist of Australia whipped Don Budge of Oakland, Cal., and Gene Mako of Los Angeles, Wimbledon champions, in an exhibition tennis match here today. The scores were 6-0, 2-6, 7-5, 6-2. The victory gave the Anzacs a 2 to 0 advantage in the impromptu series which is being conducted on the Davis cup pattern. Mako lost his singles match yesterday to Bromwich.

Dizzy Bounces Contract Back at Cardinals

Bradenton, Fla., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Dizzy Dean, ever talking pitcher of the St. Louis Cardinals, received a letter today and promptly turned it into a double play. The missive in question was his 1938 contract, and Diz had no sooner fielded it than he wrapped it up in another envelope and fired it back to the Cardinal office—unsigned.

The Great Jerome said the contract offered him $10,000 for this season, a sum which he claimed was $15,000 less than he drew in 1937. Dean admitted he had expected a reduction, but had not looked for such a sizeable one.

"Yes, I did have a poor season last year," he said, "but I certainly can't see why I should take such a cut. There was a time when I was winning twenty and more games a season for the Cards and they didn't boost my salary $15,000 a season, so why trim me for having a bad year which was no fault of mine?

"I think that if my salary is to be trimmed, it should not go below $17,500. In fact, it is my idea that I am going to be worth $20,000 for the 1938 season. If they do go down to $17,500, that's the bottom as far as I'm concerned, and I'm not so sure that I'll take that."

Dean explained the physical causes of his poor 1937 showing, during which he won thirteen games while losing ten, as the broken big toe he suffered in the All-Star game, which subsequently led to a sore arm.

BOYS AND GIRLS OF 4 DIVISIONS FACE STARTER

Hold Championship Races Tomorrow.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The twenty-first Silver Skates Derbies will open this afternoon at 2 o'clock on the Garfield park lagoon with 2,878 boys and girls, all under 16 years of age, competing in qualifying trials. Championships in all eight age divisions will be decided tomorrow.

Skaters of four age classes will race in today's preliminaries and each winner will receive a gold medal. The classes, distances, and number of contestants in each class follow:

Boys Midget	667	110	yards
Boys' Juvenile	814	220	yards
Boys' Junior	982	440	yards
Girls' Junior	415	220	yards

These contestants must report to the Silver Skates clerks in the Garfield park boathouse between 11 a. m. and 1 p. m. for their racing numbers. They will be assigned to heats as they report. All contestants will be awarded bronze souvenir buttons.

The championship distances for these four Derbies tomorrow will be twice that of the preliminaries.

The first race tomorrow is scheduled for 1 o'clock. In all there are 4,426 contestants entered in the eight Derbies. In addition, members of the Chicago Figure Skating club will give exhibitions. Robin Lee, national men's figure skating champion, is a featured performer. Among others participating will be Joan Helene Yocum, 9 years old, and Helen Kobiltz and Robert Borgfeldt.

Officials of the Chicago park district reported yesterday that the races can be held despite yesterday's snow. The snow has been cleared from the west lagoon where the track will be laid out. Colder weather is forecast and this will improve the racing surface.

Other Trials Tomorrow.

The four age classes for which qualifying trials will be held tomorrow, the number of contestants, and the preliminary distances for each follow:

Boys' Intermediate	763	Half	mile
Men's Senior	567	Mile
Girls' Intermediate	142	440	yards
Girls' Senior	76	Half	mile

These contestants report tomorrow in the Garfield park boathouse between 10 a. m. and 12 noon for their racing numbers. The championships for these Derbies also will be decided at distances double those of the trials.

A forty page souvenir program will be distributed to all contestants. Each contestant is listed in his or her age class together with the assigned racing number.

All contestants must report on time or they cannot compete. Because of the size of the field this regulation must be rigidly enforced.

Two Team Trophies.

There are twenty-one pairs of skates for the champions, runners-up, and those finishing third in each of the eight finals tomorrow. Skaters finishing fourth and fifth in each Derby will receive silver and bronze medals. In the three longest championships, the Men's Senior two mile Derby, Boys' Intermediate one mile Derby, and the Girls' Senior one mile Derby, the skaters leading the races for the greatest number of laps will receive special gold medals.

The club which has the largest number of contestants participating in the eight Derbies will be awarded a silver trophy. The Walter E. Eckersall memorial trophy will be presented to the team which scores the largest number of points. It has been won for the last two years by the Catholic Youth organization. Victory this year will give the C. Y. O. permanent possession.

HAWTHORNE CLUB TITLES AT STAKE WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Third of Pre-Golden Glove Tournaments.

The third of Chicago's pre-Golden Gloves amateur boxing tournaments will end Wednesday night when the Western Electric Hawthorne club championships are decided in the 132d Regiment armory, Madison and Rockwell streets. The Catholic Youth organization's amateur champions were decided last December in the annual tournament in the Stadium and these eight boys already have been awarded places in the Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions Feb. 28, March 1 and 2, when the champions of forty-six cities in sixteen states come to Chicago.

The annual Illinois Athletic club championships also will be decided Wednesday night in the I. A. C. gymnasium, 112 South Michigan avenue.

The I. A. C. and Hawthorne club champions, however, must register for the open division Golden Gloves trials. The first of these four Chicago sectional meets will start Feb. 9 in the Madison Athletic club. All entries for the eleventh annual Golden Gloves tournaments, open and novice division, must be filed by midnight Jan. 30.

Six Classes at Hawthorne.

The Hawthorne club boxing finals will include ten bouts in six weight classes. There are no contestants in the flyweight and bantamweight classes. In addition, four wrestling championships will be determined in which there will be five matches.

The Western Electric tournament was started last fall after a lapse of such athletic activities for five years. Sixty-one hundred employés will be in the audience.

Several of the contestants already have announced that they will compete in the Golden Gloves tournament. Among them is Pug Richter, who won a 160 pound Golden Gloves title in 1935 a year after he had won a C. Y. O. scholarship.

Morris Another Prospect.

La Rue [Tiny] Morris of La Grange, Ill., former University of Illinois football player and university heavyweight champion in 1935 and 1936, and who has competed in four Golden Gloves tournaments, is another promising prospect. Richter will oppose Edward Muzik Jr. and Morris will fight Harvey Zimmerman for the Hawthorne club heavyweight title.

The schedule of bouts Wednesday night:

BOXING.

126 Pound Class—William Dundy vs. Edward Wojnarowski.

147 Pound Class—Edwin H. Schroeder vs. Raymond Goodman, Edward R. Pacak vs. Thomas Parker.

Heavyweight Class—Harvey Zimmerman vs. LaRue Morris.

125 Pound Class—Raymond Matz vs. William Janasiewicz.

135 Pound Class—Marty Priban vs. Walter Sengstock Jr.

147 Pound Class—Frank Rozic vs. Roman Nowicki.

PAIR I. A. C. FINALISTS

Pairings were announced yesterday for the finals of the sixth annual Illinois Athletic club amateur boxing tournament scheduled in the club gymnasium next Wednesday night.

118 POUNDS—Frankie Kalnrath, C. Y. O., vs. Berlin Hadnott, C. Y. O.

MOON MULLINS—IT SEEMS TO BE PLUSHIE'S NIGHT OUT

Loyola Tunes Up for De Paul Against Xavier

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Loyola university will send its basketball team against Xavier tonight on the Loyola floor. Ordinarily, this in itself would be enough excitement for Loyola's followers. But not just at present. It so happens that Loyola is preoccupied now with thoughts of the game with De Paul next Wednesday at the Stadium, and as a result, tonight's engagement is considered largely as a warmup for that important encounter.

Loyola has come through its schedule thus far with only one defeat—and that was at the hands of Purdue, which is generally considered to be one of the greatest teams in the country. If Loyola can get by Xavier, it will go into the De Paul game with considerable confidence, for the record of the Blue Demons to date is less impressive.

De Paul to Rest.

De Paul last night wound up a tour through the east and will have a few days of rest at home before meeting its traditional rival in the charity game which is sponsored by the Catholic Youth organization.

Loyola has defeated California, Carnegie Tech, Utah, Arkansas State, and Valparaiso and will go into tonight's game with Xavier with every member of the team except Bill Brennan in good condition. Brennan has been out with a fractured thumb.

High Scorers and Fast.

Since Brennan has been on the sidelines, Coach Leonard Sachs has been schooling the team to get along without him. Wibs Kautz, Mike Novak, Bill O'Brien, Bill Lynch, and George Hogan have been developed into a fast and powerful scoring combination.

Although these players aren't quite as experienced as those who performed so brilliantly last year, they are working together better in every game and are expected to be in top form when the time comes to face their old rivals at the Stadium Wednesday. Kautz and Novak are the only ones who started for Loyola in last year's engagement with De Paul.

RUUD BROTHERS ARRIVE FOR SKI MEET AT CARY

The Ruud brothers, Birger and Sigmund, whose names stand out on a ski entry list as does Sonja Henie's on a skating program, arrived in Chicago by plane last night for their one sanctioned appearance in competition in the United States this year—the Norge Ski club's thirty-second annual meet on the Fox River Grove slide, near Cary, Ill., tomorrow.

The brothers came from New York by way of the Adirondacks, where they have been practicing during the last several days. Their competition has been limited to the Norge meet by action of the United States Ski association, which has refused to recognize them as amateurs.

Strong Class A Entry.

The Ruuds will be the main attraction at the Norge meet, the first international ski jumping contest to be held in the middle west, but more than eighty other skiers will compete. Class A entries include Alf Engen; Paul and Walter Bietila of Ishpeming, Mich., who represent the University of Wisconsin; George Kotiarik of Duluth, Minn., who took second last year in his first entry in the Norge meet; Nils Ele, Norwegian medical student at New York university; Sigard Ulland of Lake Tahoe, Cal.; Olaf Thornvold of Norway; Merrill Barber of Brattleboro, Vt., one of the best skiers in the east; Gunnar Oman of the Norge Ski club, who made the longest jump in the 1932 meet, when the Ruuds made their one previous appearance there, and Lemoin Batson of the Norge club, a member of the United States Olympic team.

Twin Jump Scheduled.

The program will include a twin jumping match between the Ruud brothers and the Bietilas. The Ruuds made a twin jump of 174 feet in 1932. The individual record, 201 feet, is held by Paul Bietila, however. Two father and son teams also will compete. They are Karl and Harvey Nilsen and Alf and Howard Jansen.

There's No Rest for Hawks; Play Toronto in Two Games

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The National Hocky league schedule makers have done much to keep the Blackhawks from getting cocky about beating the Montreal Maroons last Sunday night and tying the New York Americans and Montreal Canadiens Tuesday and Thursday nights. Because of said schedule makers the Hawks must face the very skilled Toronto Maple Leafs in Toronto tonight, then fetch them down here for an engagement in Chicago Stadium tomorrow night.

Moreover, those schedule makers seem to think tho near double-headers are a grand idea, for they fixed up the same arrangement for Nov. 13 and 14 and Feb. 12 and 13. On the November occasions the Hawks, then leading the American division of the league, took a 7 to 3 blistering in Toronto, but the next night in the Stadium thrice came from behind to tie and wound up with a 3 to 3 deadlock.

It's a Lively Rivalry.

Victories or ties in competition between the Hawks and Leafs, who are leading the Canadian division, do not mean so much as team against team rivalry. But the Hawks are hungry for points which will increse or maintain their six point margin over the Detroit Red Wings, who are languishing in the American division cellar and must remain there if the Hawks are to participate in the Stanley cup playoffs. Tonight the Wings will play the Maroons in Montreal and tomorrow night they will play the same outfit in Detroit.

The fact the Hawks have made six goals in their two matches with the Leafs to date, while the Toronto lads scored ten, may be accepted as a tip-off on the kind of an outfit the Leafs are. They have scored 78 goals this season while allowing 61 to be scored against them, as contrasted with the Hawk record of 39 goals scored with 52 goals scored by opponents.

Leaf Defense Shaken Up.

The Leaf zeal for goals at the expense of defense play has caused Connie Smythe, dude manager of the Leafs, to make many changes in an attempt to bolster his defenders. The latest of these has installed Bingo Kampman and Reg Hamilton as one of the defense pairs. Kampman never has played in Chicago. Hamilton was a rookie last season, as was Jimmy Fowler, who is paired with the mean and able Red Horner.

Gordon Drillon, Toronto right wing, has led the league's point makers all season, and Sylvanus Apps, center on Drillon's line, has been runner up throughout the campaign. Harvey Jackson, third member of the line, is not far behind Drillon and Apps.

DE PAUL LOSES TO LONG ISLAND QUINTET, 55-29

New York, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Long Island university's basketball team scored a 55 to 29 victory over De Paul university of Chicago in the first game of a double-header at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Rolling up a 24 to 7 lead in the first half, when the Chicagoans scored only two field goals in 43 attempts, the New Yorkers paraded to victory behind the shooting of John Bromberg. The Long Island forward made 23 points, 16 of them in the second half, when he dropped in eight field goals.

The midwesterners were badly off in their shooting both from afar and in close, and did not begin to click until midway in the second half when most of the Long Island regulars retired. Then Kieran Crowley, who kept the visitors trying despite the hopeless task, began feeding passes to Robert Neu successfully. The De Paul guard connected with 13 points in the closing minutes to give him a total of 16 for the game. Score:

Notre Dame to Play Kentucky Five Tonight

Notre Dame, Ind., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Notre Dame will meet Kentucky, Southeastern conference basketball champion, here tomorrow night in the first home game for the Irish in nearly a month. Notre Dame will be seeking its 13th straight home victory.

Coach George Keogan believes that Notre Dame has improved the synchronization of its attack and defense in recent games.

Johnny Moir, forward who was benched last week, has been restored to the starting team with Eddie Sadowski. Tommy Wukovits, who had replaced Moir, has returned to his starting post at guard, teamed with Earl Brown. Paul Nowak will start at center. Capt. Ray Meyer is expected to appear for a few minutes next week against Pitt at Pittsburgh. He has been out since Dec. 4 with a dislocated right elbow.

JUNIOR, SENIOR LEADERS WIN IN CITY PREP RACE

Schurz, VonSteuben, Lane and Sullivan Triumph.

Schurz and Von Steuben triumphed to stay in a tie for the senior lead in the north section; the Lane, Sullivan, and Roosevelt juniors won to remain in a three-way deadlock for first place in the north division's junior race, and Fenger went into a tie with Calumet for the south section lead yesterday as Chicago Public High School league basketball teams engaged in a fourteen game junior and senior program.

Hirsch's junior and senior teams made a successful entry in the south section races with a double victory over Englewood, the juniors winning, 46 to 31, and the seniors, 32 to 13. J. Canna of the Hirsch juniors shared high point honors for the day with Hope of Lane, each dropping 21 points.

The Evanston quintets gained undisputed possession of first place in the frosh-soph and heavyweight races of the Suburban league by taking a double-header from New Trier last night. The heavies scored a 39 to 36 victory after the frosh-soph five had triumphed, 30 to 29.

Five teams won their second starts in the senior race of the Catholic High school league. St. George and Weber remained in a tie for first place in the north section, the former beating Loyola, 32 to 27, and Weber turning back Fenwick, 34 to 27.

Mt. Carmel, St. Philip, and Leo were the leaders in the south section. Mt. Carmel routed Joliet, 40 to 26, St Philip whipped St Rita, 26 to 24, and Leo, with Johnn Galvin making 18 points, trimmed De La Salle, 48 to 35

124TH F. A. AND FORT SHERIDAN POLOISTS MEET

Activity in polo will speed up tonight with the playing of a Metropolitan league double-header and two added attractions at the 124th Field Artillery armory.

A clash between the Chicago Black Horse Troop and the Red Legs, junior division contenders, will open the program, followed by presentation of members of the 124th Field Artillery Polo club team which swept a three game series with the Cuban army at Havana, an officers' jumping contest, and a senior division game between Fort Sheridan and the 124th Field Artillery, favorites for the league title.

WIPE OUT ALL HOLDING FIRMS, PRESIDENT SAYS

Big Bank Companies New Target.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today asserted he was determined to bring about the elimination of all holding companies.

He declared his opposition extends not only to holding companies in the utility field, which his administration has been belaboring for four years, but all fields in which holding companies operate. He cited banking specifically as another business in which holding companies should be abolished.

Mr. Roosevelt made his position clear at his semi-weekly press conference when he took a firm stand against modification of the death sentence for public utility holding companies, which was suggested at one of the series of conferences the President has been holding with utility executives.

Says Tail Wags Dog.

Mr. Roosevelt returned with the fondness of an actor for a good gag to the illustration he employed in his Jackson day speech last Saturday. He referred time and time again to the "4 inch tail wagging the 96 inch dog" as he labeled control of the 13 billion dollar utility industry by 600 million dollars of holding company capital.

The President said that there were several methods for eliminating holding companies in all lines of business. What approach will be used is still in the discussion stage, he said. He indicated the avenues were legislation and exercise of the taxing power.

The holding company discussion was opened with the reading by the President of an extract from a memorandum, submitted to him last November at his first conference with utility heads, by Wendell Willkie, head of the Commonwealth Southern corporation, who suggested some modification of the holding company death sentence legislation.

Spurns Valuation Proposal.

The President characterized the suggestion as another instance of the 4 inch tail wagging the 96 inch dog. He also spurned another suggestion that utility valuation be established by court rule as of a given date under the "truth in investment" principle.

Mr. Roosevelt asserted that he believes it wrong for the government to admit a crime had been committed and still leave the "water and wind" in the capital structure of utilities. There was no amplification of the implied distrust in the ability of courts to handle the situation. The President has long been at war with the replacement theory of valuation fixed by the courts up to the Supreme court.

He reiterated his fixed belief in government expansion in the utility field, pointing out that the Supreme court had upheld the right of the government to give federal loans and grants.

Purchases Are Proposed.

He said the ideal situation where public ownership is proposed would be to have the public unit offer to purchase private facilities at a fair price. Where such price was refused, he said with a shrug, parallel systems would be inevitable.

Within the week he had, in one of the series of utility conferences, told a group of executives that duplications should be held down to a minimum. The fear of such competition, according to utility executives, is the primary reason for lack of confidence by the public in utility investment. Mr. Roosevelt has been seeking in the conferences to restore confidence so that the utilities will undertake replacements that people may be put to work.

Many financial interests were astounded by Roosevelt's attack on all holding companies. One authority said more than half of all the companies whose securities are widely held are holding companies in some degree.

Brands Statement Inaccurate.

New York, Jan. 14.—(AP)—C. W. Kellogg, president of Edison Electric institute, tonight branded as inaccurate the statement of President Roosevelt that utility holding companies are "a 4-inch tail wagging a 96-inch dog.

"The statement has been made by the President [as reported in the press] that '$600,000,000 of holding company capital controls a $13,000,000,000 public utility industry' whereby 4 per cent thus controls 96 per cent," said Kellogg. "This statement is incorrect in two respects.

"In the first place, the $13,000,000,000 total includes all of those properties to a vast total not owned or controlled by holding companies. In the second place it gives a false impression of the balance of the industry."

According to Kellogg, 33 inches is a more proper length for the holding company "tail," in proportion to the part of the part of the industry it dominates.

Defending holding companies, Kellogg said they had been a vast aid in raising capital needed for expansion of utility operating companies.

State Offers Employers Aid in Remitting Taxes

Director Martin P. Durkin of the Illinois state department of labor announced yesterday that the offices of the division of unemployment compensation at 205 West Wacker drive will be open this afternoon to accommodate employers desiring information or assistance in connection with unemployment compensation payments.

Chicago Corp. Assets Fall as Securities Sag

Net assets of the Chicago corporation, largest management investment trust in the middle west, amounted to $31,156,007 on Dec. 31, 1937, a decline of 37 per cent from net asset value of $49,892,823 at the end of 1936, the company's annual report showed yesterday. This reflected the general decline in security values in the latter part of 1937.

Charles F. Glore, president of Chicago corporation.

Net investment income of the company in 1937 was $1,815,449, compared with $1,571,681 in 1936. In addition, the company last year had a net profit on the sale of securities of $2,538,492, against a similar profit in 1936 of $7,020,495.

Value of Shares Declines.

Net asset value on Dec. 31, 1937 was equivalent to $53.11 a preference share and 51 cents a common share after allowing for a stated value of $50 a share and current dividend accruals on the preferred stock. This compares with net asset value on June 30, 1937, of $72.73 per preference share and $4.18 a common share. At the end of 1936, the value was $79.25 on the preference and $5.52 for the common shares.

At the close of business Thursday, Jan. 13, asset values had climbed to 58.07 per preference share and $1.38 per common share.

C. F. Glore, president, in a letter to stockholders, pointed out that the company retired 42,941 shares of preference stock in 1937 at an average cost of $46.21 a share.

Some Investments Satisfactory.

Glore also said that undertakings of the corporation in "certain special activities apart from investment in general market securities" had proved generally satisfactory. In this connection, he pointed out that the Chicago corporation in 1937 received from the Fort Dearborn Mortgage company, in which its investment totals $1,026,000, dividends totaling $158,375.

The company's portfolio as of Dec. 31, 1937, showed that during the second half of 1937, it increased its holdings of agricultural and industrial machinery stocks, and made substantial changes in its retailing and railroad holdings. The corporation bought 2,500 shares of Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company, 4,000 of the National Supply company, and 2,800 of Oliver Farm Equipment company.

Switch Mail Order Stocks.

Sale of 3,100 shares of Montgomery Ward & Co. contrasted with purchase of 2,900 shares of Sears-Roebuck & Co. In addition 11,050 shares of Marshall Field & Co. were sold. In the railroad field, the company increased its holdings in Pennsylvania railroad and Southern Pacific, and sold New York Central and Atchison.

The corporation retained intact some of its largest holdings, including 28,000 shares of Continental National Bank and Trust company, 30,000 shares of Swift & Co., 31,286 common shares of Dixie-Vortex company and 75,605 shares of Central States Electric corporation common stock.

Retains Utility Stocks.

No changes were made in holdings of public utility common stocks, except for an increase of 16,200 shares in Commonwealth Edison and the decrease of 1,600 shares of Public Service company of Northern Illinois, resulting from the four-for-one split of Edison stock and the exchange of Public Service shares for Edison shares on a one for three basis.

The following table shows principal changes in the portfolio between June 30 and Dec. 31, 1937:

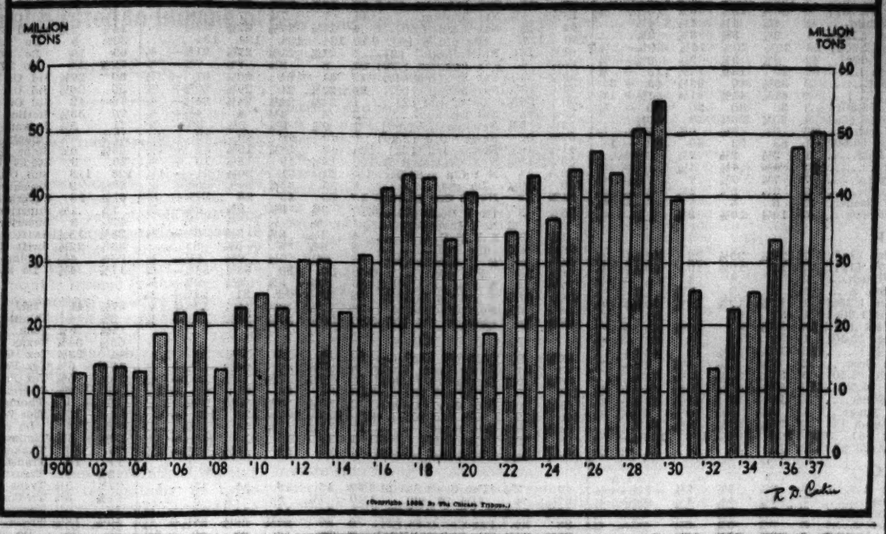
New Jersey Standard Oil to Cut Down on Refining

New York, Jan. 14.—[Special.]—The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and its domestic affiliates today announced that, beginning immediately, they would put into effect a reduction of 15,000 barrels daily in the amount of crude oil to be run through their stills. This represents a reduction of about 5 per cent since the New Jersey company and its affiliates are refining currently about 300,000 barrels daily.

N. Y. Banker Begins 67th Year with Same Institution

New York, Jan. 14.—[Special.]—When John Van Buren Thayer arrives tomorrow morning at his vice president's chair in the Central Hanover Bank and Trust company he will start his sixty-seventh year with the institution for which he began work on his twentieth birthday.

Steel Ingot Production in the United States 1900-1937



Active Stocks Higher, Others Mostly Lower

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 14.—Trading favorites on the stock exchange closed slightly higher today, but throughout the list declines outnumbered gains. Improved demand for steel, rail, and utility shares checked an earlier general declining trend.

Net price changes in most instances were small. Trading declined still further, volume falling to only 845,900 shares.

Comments of President Roosevelt at his press conference were interpreted as friendly to operating utility companies and shares in this division at once attracted a following. Easing of tension over the French crisis also was favorable to the market.

Utility Group Stronger.

The public utility group gave the best performance of the day. Leaders rose sharply after President Roosevelt's conference, but much of the upturn was lost toward the close. Consolidated Edison, Electric Power and Light, Columbia Gas, and Electric and North American, among others, closed at fractional advances.

Aided by favorable carloading reports, carrier shares were a little stronger. Atchison, New York Central, Baltimore and Ohio, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, and Illinois Central gained fractions to a point.

Coppers Get Support.

Coppers, particularly Anaconda and International Nickel, met support and closed higher. American Smelting, Kennecott, and Phelps were unchanged to fractions lower.

Farm implement shares gave up some ground. Merchandising issues steadied near previous levels. Oils gave up fractions. Electric equipment and automobile shares improved fractions to 1½ points.

In the chemicals Allied came back to its previous closing and Du Pont gave up 1 point. Rubber shares bulged fractions. Gold mining shares were mixed in a narrow range. Gains up to 1 point were recorded by aviation issues.

REPEAL OF LAW BARING SALARIES IS ADVOCATED

The Illinois Chamber of Commerce yesterday urged Senators J. Hamilton Lewis and William H. Dieterich of Illinois to work for the repeal of amendment of the law which permits publication of salaries of corporation executives who receive $15,000 or more a year.

A letter to the senators signed by C. G. Ferris, executive vice president of the association, advocated either the "repeal of the entire procedure involving publication of salaries," or an amendment requiring explanation of what part of the salaries must be paid out in normal tax and surtax.

"The mere publication of the bare salary figure does not convey to the public the true statement," the letter said. "It is our belief that if the policy of publishing these figures is to be continued, a fairer method should be adopted, as the present system invites unfair, dangerous, and, in many instances, unwaranted criticism of the business structure."

GOVERNMENT ASKS REORGANIZATION OF PRODUCE MARKETS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—(AP)—The agriculture department called today for a reorganization of the nation's produce markets, criticizing them as inefficient and the cause of unnecessarily high retail prices.

It said a recent survey showed the annual cost of distributing fruits and vegetables from the farm to the consumer exceeded $1,500,000,000, the bulk of which was incurred after produce reached the cities. As a result, it said, the consumer pays more and the farmer gets less.

The department said that in many cities markets were old and improperly located, designed, and equipped —conditions which lead to "needless spoilage, delays in distribution, excessive labor costs, high rents, and other high costs."

UNITED CORP., MORGAN TRUST, MAKES LITTLE CHANGE IN HOLDINGS

New York, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The United corporation, Morgan sponsored utility investing company, "stood pat" on its portfolio of securities during 1937, the company's annual report disclosed today.

The only change in holdings came about by reason of consolidation of the Mohawk Hudson Power corporation with the Niagara Hudson Power corporation. As a result United's common holdings were increased to 436,590 shares, or 24.5 per cent of Niagara Hudson's outstanding common stock.

Due to the drastic decline in the market, net assets as of Dec. 31, at market value, totaled only $149,904,047, or $47,205,174 less than the total stated capital of $197,109,221. At the end of 1936 net assets at market value were $243,695,921.

The directors approved a reduction of $58,144,121 in capital, which amount would be credited to capital surplus account. This would reduce stated capital to $138,965,100, or $10,938,947 less than indicated net value of assets at the end of 1937.

"Unless there is a further substantial decline in the market value of the corporation's portfolio such reduction of capital should facilitate the payment of dividends when and if appropriate in the judgment of the board of directors," the report said. Stockholders are scheduled to vote on the capital change Feb. 1.

EXPORTS OF U. S. COTTON TO JAPAN DROP RECENTLY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—United States new cotton exports to Japan in the five months ended Dec. 31, were only 120,000 bales, valued at $6,897,000, compared with 781,000 bales valued at $51,540,000 in the same period of 1936, the department of commerce announced today.

Total exports of raw cotton for the five months aggregated 3,185,000 bales valued at $180,104,000, compared with 2,897,000 bales and $193,003,000 for the corresponding five months of 1936, representing an increase of 288,000 bales, or 9.9 per cent, in quantity, but a decrease of $12,899,000, or 6.7 per cent, in value.

Exports of raw cotton in December totaled 751,000 bales valued at $39,046,000, compared with 797,000 bales valued at $42,903,000 in November, and 594,000 bales valued at $39,620,000 in December, 1936, according to the analysis.

CANADA OFFERS REFUNDING LOAN OF 50 MILLIONS

A $50,000,000 Dominion of Canada loan for refunding purposes has been underwritten by a London banking group headed by R. Mivison & Co., Dominion Finance Minister Dunning anounced yesterday.

The loan, consisting of an issue of 3¼ per cent registered stock, will be offered Wednesday at 98½ to yield about 3.34 per cent. The issue will mature July 1, 1963, but will be callable at par on or after July 1, 1958, on 90 days' notice.

The funds received from the issue will be used to pay $35,000,000 of Dominion 3 per cent stock and bonds which fall due July 1, and $15,000,000 of Dominion of Canada Canadian Pacific railway land grant 3½ per cent stock due at the same time.

Arrange Dollar Payments for Exporters to Brazil

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Jan. 14.—(AP)—An agreement was concluded today between the American Chamber of Commerce and the Bank of Brazil facilitating dollar payments to exporters in the United States. It provided exporters may accept payments either in 60 day exchange contracts or 90 day drafts on New York. Both contracts and drafts would be issued by the Bank of Brazil after it has allotted available foreign exchange.

Report O'Connor to Retire as Controler of Currency

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Resignation of J. F. T. O'Connor as controler of the currency is expected to be announced within the next week, it was reported today. O'Connor's term of office is about to expire, and he is considering running for the governorship of California, it was said. Recent personnel shifts in his office, ordered by him, are understood to be the prelude to these forthcoming developments.

Ford Recalls 10,000 Men to Work Monday

Ten thousand employés who were laid off by the Ford Motor company two days before Christmas will go back to their jobs at the Dearborn plant next Monday, the company announced in Detroit yesterday. Other employés, it was said, will be called back "in small bunches from time to time as soon as the assembly line gets in shape again."

Recent statements by the company indicated 25,000 of the 87,000 usually employed at the plant have been jobless. The call back to work was made through newspaper advertisments which informed workers that cards were being sent out to those who will be reëmployed. Those not receiving cards were warned not to report Monday.

Follows Chrysler Resumption.

The Ford announcement follows the recent resumption of pre-holiday working schedules by the Chrysler corporation, which turned out more than 13,000 cars this week after announcing employment had returned to the pre-Christmas 55,000 level.

The Ford company yesterday received bids on 25,000 tons of steel and expected to allocate awards over the next two weeks. Most of the steel is of sheet classifications for use in making bodies.

Automobile and truck production in the United States and Canada increased this week to 65,735 units, compared to 54,084 in the preceding week, Ward's Automotive Reports, Inc., estimated yesterday. A year ago production in the corresponding week was 85,703 units. This week's gain was attributed by Ward's mainly to the resumption of assemblies by the Chrysler corporation.

Expect Increase Later.

Production probably will remain at the present level until the end of January, Ward's said, adding that sentiment in the industry has changed for the better, and that it is a common belief that an upturn in general business conditions will occur in the spring.

Output by the General Motors corporation was 22,160 cars and trucks, compared to 22,425 in the preceding week. Chrysler turned out 13,975 units this week, against 2,750 last week, when only the Canadian plant was in operation. Ford production this week was unchanged at 22,765 units.

ERIE RAILROAD STOPS INTEREST ON SIX ISSUES

New York, Jan. 14.—[Special.]—The financial status of the Erie Railroad company became further confused today when it was announced through the New York Stock exchange that interest on six issues of bonds, funds for which have been available since their past due dates, would no longer be paid. The issues involved in the notice total $122,800,000.

These include series A, B, and D convertible 4s, due in 1953; two series of refunding and improvement 5s, due in 1967 and 1975, and New York and Greenwood Lake Railway prior lien 5s.

On five of the six issues mentioned in today's order the Erie has six months' grace for interest payments. In the case of New York and Greenwood Lake Railway 5s the period of grace is 60 days.

YEAR'S IRON ORE OUTPUT SHOWS 48 PER CENT GAIN

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—(AP)—The bureau of mines reported today that production of iron ore in 1937 amounted to approximately 72,166,000 gross tons, an increase of 48 per cent over 1936.

Iron ore shipped from mines in 1937 was estimated by the bureau at 72,339,000 gross tons, an increase of 41 per cent over 1936.

The bureau pointed out that labor difficulties in midyear and the fourth quarter business recession checked the high activity in iron ore mining reported during the early months.

John W. Hanes Becomes Securities Board Member

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—(AP)—John W. Hanes, former New York stock exchange member, was sworn in today as a member of the securities commission. "I see an opportunity for real coöperation between government and business," he said as he took over his duties.

RFC'S HOLDINGS IN CONTINENTAL BANK CUT AGAIN

Shareholders Given Stock Dividend.

Directors of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company yesterday declared dividends of $1 a share in cash and 25 per cent in common stock on the $40,000,000 of common stock outstanding, and at the same time voted to retire an additional $10,000,000 of preferred stock held by the Reconstruction Finance corporation. This was announced by Walter J. Cummings, chairman of the board of directors, at the stockholders' annual meeting yesterday afternoon.

Walter J. Cummings.

Comon Stock to Be $50,000,000.

Issuance of the $10,000,000 additional common stock will place the banks capitalization at $25,000,000 preferred and $50,000,000 of common stock. Cummings at the stockholders' meeting presented a breakdown of the bank's 1937 earnings, which had been reported Jan. 3. He pointed out that of a total income in 1937 of $24,773,763, interest earned was $19,564,176, trust department and other fees were $4,734,388, bank building income was $1,142,853, and net profit on sales of securities was $2,332,345. After expenses, net earnings were $15,318,803, compared with $21,195,109 in 1936. Of the net earnings, however, $9,386,439 was represented in 1936 by profit on securities sales, compared with $2,332,344 in 1937.

The return on bank building, carried at a valuation of $13,200,000, was 3.88 per cent, Cummings said.

Large Debits For One Day.

Cummings said the bank's largest volume of debits in a single day in 1937 was $179,786,000 on March 31, which compared with $373,367,000 for the entire Chicago Clearing House association.

The average number of employés during 1937 was 3,128, compared with 3,072 in 1936.

The stockholders reëlected all directors. At the board meeting following the stockholders' meeting, the following promotions and apointments were made: E. F. Reiter, a second vice president, was elected a vice president; H. R. Platt Jr., an assistant cashier, was promoted to second vice president; L. H. Hammerstrom, an assistant cashier, was made auditor.

P. M. Carrick and B. J. Malworm were appointed assistant cashiers. C. P. Bronston and R. W. Swezey were made assistant secretaries, and E. B. Stofft, an assistant secretary, was elected assistant secretary and trust officer.

All directors and officers of the Main State bank were reëlected at meetings of the stockholders and the board of directors yesterday.

STATE REVENUE BOOSTED IN 1937 BY AUTO FEES

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes announced today that the total revenue of his office during 1937 was $24,691,507, an increase of $2,198,107.

The automobile department contributed most of the advance, registrations increasing 122,564 and yielding a total of $20,861,020. The department registered 1,556,702 passenger cars, 220,639 trucks, 23,475 trailers, 6,490 motorcycles, 4,329 dealers and 97,573 chauffeurs.

Total income from the corporation department was $2,139,262, an increase of $172,885.

FREIGHT GAINS MORE THAN SEASONAL; STILL FAR BELOW YEAR AGO

Railroad freight trafic recorded a more than seasonal gain in the week ended Jan. 8, but volume was far below that in the first week of either 1937 or 1936.

Loadings of revenue freight totaled 552,314 cars, according to reports to the Association of American Railroads. This was an increase of 94,955 cars from the total in the preceding week, but was 147,732 cars less than in the corresponding week of 1937 and 62,539 cars less than in the corresponding 1936 week.

	Wk. ended Jan. 8.	—Change from— Prev. wk.	Yr. ago.
Mdse, l c l	142,136	26,616	16,865
Coal	110,487	6,007	60,678
Grain	39,672	10,681	9,819

Forest prod	24,226	7,457	5,811
Ore	6,454	1,110	3,372
Coke	6,830	1,766	4,923

The gain in total loadings last week over the preceding week was 20.7 per cent, but were 21.1 per cent less than a year ago and 10.2 per cent less than two years ago. The preceding week's figure was 22.2 per cent less than a year earlier.

Finish Taking Testimony in Long Oil Trial

Madison, Wis., Jan. 14.—(AP)—After final testimony was completed today in the federal government's gasoline price fixing case, Federal Judge Patrick T. Stone freed one more defendant, granting a motion for a directed verdict of acquittal for James F. Nagle, Tulsa, Okla., branch office manager of the Skelly Oil company.

Judge Stone then took under advisement similar motions on behalf of the remaining sixteen major oil company and thirty-six individual defendants. When the oil trial started last Oct. 4 there were twenty-three corporate and forty-six individual defendants.

Court to Reconvene Monday.

Unless the judge grants all the motions for acquittal when court reconvenes Monday, final arguments in the fifteen week old trial will begin at that time, with the possibility that the case will go to the jury by next Thursday.

In the final session today Henry Lewin, government prosecutor, read to the jury additional documents taken from the files of the Shell Petroleum corporation and the Skelly company, regarding a major oil company gasoline buying program which is the basis of the government's charge of conspiracy to violate the Sherman anti-trust act.

Chicagoan Denies Charges.

Brown Meece of Chicago, assistant sales manager of the Globe Oil and Refining company, in defense rebuttal denied ever having sought to buy up all brokers' gasoline in Chicago.

In the presentation of evidence during the trial, a total of 73 witnesses, thirty-nine of whom were called by the government, testified. Exhibits numbering 1,052 were introduced, and the typewritten record of the trial passed the 11,000 page mark.

PACKING FIRM DECLARES EXTRA STOCK DIVIDEND

The California Packing company declared a year-end extra dividend of 1-100th of a share of $50 par preferred stock for each share of common stock held. This is equivalent to 50 cents a share. Payments on this basis total $2 a share in the fiscal year to end next Feb. 28.

Regular payments yesterday included the 40 cent quarterly dividend on Kroger Grocery and Baking company common stock.

Lit Brothers declared a dividend of $4 on preferred stock arrears, reducing accumulations to $21 a share as of Jan. 1. A payment of $2 was made last Oct. 28 and one of $4 was made a year ago.

The following dividends were declared yesterday:

NO SLUMP AHEAD IN BRITAIN, SAYS VISCOUNT HORNE

LONDON, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Viscount Horne, British industrialist with empire-wide interests and former chancellor of the exchequer, declared today he saw no sign of a slump ahead for Britain.

"Short of wars or great international troubles," he told an audience of Birmingham business men, "I think our outlook presently is good. There are people who are eager to talk about a slump and there are some politicians who would welcome it from the point of view of political propaganda. But I see no signs whatever of a slump."

The combination of government spending on rearmament, demands for construction of all kinds, and confidence that the government would not increase taxes in the near future has caused many business leaders to take an optimistic view of 1938.

EXCHANGE ASKS CLEARER REPORTS ON INVENTORIES

New York, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The New York Stock exchange today asked all companies with securities listed on the exchange to henceforth value inventories in annual reports at cost or market value, whichever is lower, in accordance with accepted accounting practice.

The exchange recommended that positions regarding inventories and future commitments for raw materials, such as rubber, cotton, wool, sugar, wheat, etc., be clearly stated in annual reports and interim statements.

The request for more complete inventory data was regarded in Wall street as one more step in the exchange's drive for uniformity in corporation reports and more enlightening statements for stockholders.

RAIL REVENUES FALL 19.6 PCT. IN DECEMBER

Gross revenues of 92 class one railroads fell to $249,534,013 last December from $310,257,528 in the same month of 1936, a decline of 19.6 per cent, the Association of American Railroads reported yesterday. The roads included in the estimate represented 83.3 per cent of the total gross income of the nation's railways.

Freight revenues in December declined 22.9 per cent to $191,457,932 from $248,282,711 in December, 1936. Passenger revenues were $33,892,839, or 1.8 per cent lower than the $33,304,442 total a year ago.

SWITCH PROFIT TAXES IN DRAFT OF REVENUE BILL

Load Is Shifted to Business Income.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Complete revamping of the method of taxing corporations, with little or no change in net federal revenue, is planned in a proposed revision of revenue laws submitted today to the house ways and means committee by its subcommittee on taxation.

Roswell Magill—to testify on new tax plan.

The subcommittee report recommended slight modification of the undistributed profits and capital gains taxes, but defended vigorously the principle behind the levies. Business men had been demanding outright repeal of the taxes as a means of combating the present business recession.

Public Hearings Planned.

The report, which contained sixty-three suggested amendments, largely of a minor nature, is to be the basis of public hearings on changes in the revenue laws which open tomorrow. The first witness probably will be Undersecretary of the Treasury Roswell Magill. He worked with the subcommittee in preparation of the report, which is said to have full approval of the administration.

The committee will draw up a tax bill for submission to the house following the hearings. Speaker Bankhead hopes that a tax bill can be passed by the house by March 15. Although a bill based on today's report is expected to have an easy time in the house, it is expected to encounter difficulty in the senate. The senate finance committee may write its own bill. If changes are made by the senate the tax bill will necessarily be written in conference between the house and senate.

Corporation Taxes Switched.

As proposed by the subcommittee report 1938 revenue revision would include an increase in the tax on corporation income in order to make up for losses which will follow modification of the undistributed profits and capital gains taxes.

How this will be received by business will be developed at the public hearings. It is acknowledged the plan will help some, but it is considered by no means a solution of the problem of the heavy tax burden on business.

The subcommittee report would remake the present taxing system by abandoning the present system of a normal tax on corporation income plus graduated surtaxes on undistributed portions of the income. At present the normal tax graduates from 8 to 15 per cent on net corporation income and the surtaxes from 7 to 27 per cent.

Creates Four Classes.

To replace the present system the house report would create four classes of corporate tax payers. The classes are determined by income ranges. They are as follows:

1. Corporations netting $25,000 a year or less. For these the undistributed profits tax is repealed. They would pay 12½ per cent on the first $5,000 of net income; 14 per cent on the next $15,000, and 16 per cent on the last $5,000.

2. Corporations with net incomes above $25,000. These would pay a flat 20 per cent on their income. A mild version of the undistributed profits tax is retained which would allow such corporations to deduct 20 per cent of dividends paid. Thus the tax would run from 16 to 20 per cent, according to treasury experts, depending upon the total dividends paid.

Special Group Provided.

3. Corporations netting between $25,000 and $37,000. This class is created to prevent taxes from rising too abruptly when a corporation moves into the higher income class. On the first $25,000 they will pay the group 1 rate, on the remainder the group 2 rate. This automatically ends at $37,000 as above that amount the group 2 rate is more favorable.

4. Corporations netting above $50,000, which meet special standards. In order to carry on President Roosevelt's campaign against closely held corporations a series of recommendations was contained in the subcommittee report. Special additional rates are made applicable to corporations in this class which distribute less than 60 per cent of their net incomes in dividends and have their dividend policy controled by one family or a group of not more than ten persons.

Into the first class will fall 88 per cent of the nation's corporations. However, these account for but 8.5 per cent of the country's net corporation income. Into the classes of corporations earning more than $25,000 are but 12 per cent of the total number of corporations, but they amass 91.5 per cent of the national corporate income.

In the singling out of closely held corporations into a separate classification, the report would make them subject to the 20 per cent rate applicable to all corporations earning a net of more than $25,000. In addition they would be subjected to surtaxes which approximate those now in force in the undistributed profits tax. Only

Stocks, Bonds

New York Bonds.

New York, Jan. 14.—(AP)—United States government obligations were in demand today in the bond market, but railroad liens, led by lower priced issues, were under considerable selling pressure.

Baltimore and Ohio refunding 6s were off 2½ points and the convertible 4½s were down a point. Erie refunding 5s slipped 3¼ points and the first 4s were down 2½. Illinois Central 4¾s were off a point, Nickel Plate 4½s lost 1½, and Great Northern 4s were off a fraction.

United States governments were 1-32 to 11-32 point higher. Foreign governments generally were stronger, the Japanese issues particularly. Japan 5s at 57 were up 3 points and Tokio 5½s were up 4 points.

Domestic corporate issues were mixed. Small changes either way were shown by American Telephone 3¼s, Bethlehem Steel 4¼s, United States Rubber 5s, Shell Union 3½s, Consolidated Edison 3¼s, and Anaconda Copper 4½s.

Sales amounted to $6,937,325 face value, against $6,635,700 Thursday.

Chicago Stocks.

Chicago stocks were irregular yesterday in a trading volume of 24,000 shares, compared with 23,000 on Thursday. Of the eighty-one issues traded, twenty-two advanced, twenty-seven declined, and thirty-two were unchanged. THE TRIBUNE average of twenty stocks closed at 10.85, down 0.04 from the previous close.

Most of the volume leaders moved lower. Middle West at 6½, Cities Service at 2 and Commonwealth Edison at 27¼ were all ¼ point lower. Chicago corporation was unchanged at 2½ on sales of 2,800 shares. Marshall Field moved up ⅛ to close at 9¼ on a volume of 850 shares.

Bank Stocks.

Except for First National bank shares, which dipped $4 from the Thursday high, Chicago bank stocks were generally firm yesterday.

Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company stock moved up $3 a share as directors ordered a 25 per cent stock dividend. The stock had previously discounted the dividend action, however, rising sharply in the week before Christmas when it was reported that the bank would retire preferred shares and issue a corresponding amount of common.

Other bank shares were steady to higher. Although some dealers quoted Northern Trust, Merchandise National and National Boulevard shares unchanged from Thursday, a majority had each bid up $5 a share.

COTTON

Operations in the cotton market yesterday were relatively small, with prices declining in sympathy with Liverpool and a less aggressive demand for textiles. There was fair buying attributed to the trade on the way down, with closing trades at the bottom. Considerable liquidation by holders of January contracts was reported in New York. Net losses on cotton futures on the Chicago Board of Trade were .06 to .10 cent. Other American markets were .01 cent higher to .08 cent a pound lower. Spot cotton closed .10 cent lower, with New Orleans 8.70 cents, New York 8.60 cents, Houston 8.50 cents and Galveston at 8.45 cents a pound. Prices follow:

URGES BIG FUND FOR ADVERTISING MEAT EATING

Wilson Says Consumption Has Fallen Sharply.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Jan. 14.—(AP)—A million dollar advertising fund to stimulate America's declining taste for meat was recommended today to the American National Live Stock association by Thomas E. Wilson of Chicago, chairman of the board of Wilson & Co.

Thomas E. Wilson.

Wilson told the association's 41st annual convention that the average American now eats only 120 pounds of meat a year, compared with an average of 137 pounds in the last 35 years. The average consumption from 1901 to 1910, he said, was 146 pounds. He said producers and packers should coöperate in providing at least a million dollars annually for advertising.

"Loss" Is 5,600,000 Cattle.

Wilson said the difference in consumption for 1937 and the period 1901-'10 is equivalent to 5,600,000 head of cattle with a dressed weight of 600 pounds a head.

Speaking on the "packer's viewpoint" of the industry, Wilson said "it is highly important" that packer and producer cast aside prejudices and coöperate "fully to expand the demand for our products and to improve production and marketing practices." He listed as one of the industry's problems the elimination of fluctuations in prices but warned this should not be attempted in a way to "impair free and open competitive markets."

Canadians Seek Market.

Canadian cattlemen asked for a place in the United States market and urged removal of the import quota on thin or feeder cattle. Robert A. Wright, president of the Western Canada Live Stock union, Pitman, Sask., asserted that Canadian exports of thin and feeder cattle should not work a hardship on the industry in the United States.

After Wright had spoken, L. N. Pexton, manager of the Denver stockyards, called upon the association to take a stand favoring "American markets for American producers."

"A good neighbor policy," Pexton said, "is all right, but I don't see how we can do something for one nation under favored clauses in our tarif policy and not do it for another. If we open our borders to every one, we are going to lower our standards of living, which we in America have built up while other nations have ignored such practices."

FRANC RALLIES BRISKLY DESPITE CRISIS IN FRANCE

The French franc made a sharp recovery yesterday in New York despite uncertainties in the French financial outlook resulting from collapse of the Chautemps government and suspension of foreign exchange transactions in Paris.

Rallying briskly in light dealings, the French unit finished at 3.34 cents to the dollar, up 0.06½ cents for the day. Discount on 90 day francs, however, remained unchanged at 0.18 of a cent.

Bankers professed not to be greatly encouraged by the rise in the franc. A large part of the buying, they said, was by traders holding short positions.

Fears again were expressed by monetary experts that the tripartite currency agreement among Great Britain, the United States and France would be endangered if the French control fund permits the franc to seek lower levels. The agreement was designed to prevent extreme currency fluctuations.

The British pound sterling moved up ⅛ of a cent in New York to 4.99⅝ cents. The Dutch guilder, the Swiss franc, and the German mark declined.

Often forgotten about in casual thoughts of the fishing industry is the importance of by-products. These are principally meal, fertilizer, and oil which are manufactured from the waste of canneries and other fish plants. In a big plant the waste may make up as much as half of the "raw material."

Oils are extracted from all parts of the fish, although the public is most familiar with fish liver oils, which, as the name implies, are obtained only from fish livers. An interesting quirk is that bodies of fish yielding liver oil are usually very lean, while livers of fat fish contain little oil. Medicinal oil is made from fresh livers, although stale livers are used in making other oils.

Oils are obtained either by pressing and cooking of waste or simply by cooking the waste and skimming the oil off the top of the vat. Fish oils are used, among other things, in making paints and varnish, waterproofing materials, linoleum, lether, soap, and lard substitutes. Salmon, sardines [young herring], and tuna—in addition to the well known cod—are important in contributing oil from cannery waste to add to the supply obtained from whale, porpoise, and menhaden fishing.

Fish waste—particularly the "scrap" left after oil extraction—is being successfully used as a fertilizer and is one of the important sources of organic nitrogen. The scrap is treated with acid and the resulting fish fertilizer often is mixed with other fertilizer compounds to form a "complete" fertilizer.

The feeding of fish and fish scrap to animals has been recommended and practiced for many years, but it is only in recent years that use of fish meal as a stock and poultry food has grown rapidly. Like fertilizers, meal is made from "scrap." It must be dried carefully and ground into granular form for poultry feed or into a rather fine meal for other purposes.

'BIG FOUR' ASKS PERMIT TO UNITE 8 SUBSIDIARIES

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—(AP)—The Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis [Big Four] railroad, today asked the interstate commerce commission for authority to merge eight subsidiaries into the parent company.

The roads to be merged include the Cincinnati Northern; Cincinnati, Sandusky and Cleveland; Cincinnati, Lafayette and Chicago; Columbus, Hope and Greensburg; Evansville, Indianapolis and Terre Haute; Evansville, Mount Carmel and Northern; Muncie Bel. railway, and the Vernon, Greensburg and Rushville.

The New York Central is seeking to simplify its corporate structure. The lines involved are New York Central subsidiaries. An immediate result of the consolidation, it was stated recently, would be "less wear and tear" on its directors, many of whom also serve as directors of subsidiaries.

The proposed merger would result in little change in the "Big Four's" capital structure. A total of 3,582 shares of common stock would be issued and exchanged for shares of stock of merged companies not owned by the "Big Four." The stockholders would have the option of new stock, or cash.

Utilities Power and Light Annual Meeting Postponed

The annual meeting of stockholders of the Utilities Power and Light corporation, which was to have been held yesterday at Richmond, Va., was adjourned until Feb. 15, dispatches said.

SWITCH PROFIT TAXES IN DRAFT OF REVENUE BILL

Load Shifted to Income of Business.

The report recommends that companies suffering operating losses in any year should be allowed to carry them forward and deduct them from the taxable income in the next year. In computation of such losses companies would be forced to count in its income, interest from tax exempt securities even though such interest is not taxable.

Certain special types of corporations are given special treatment. These include mutual investment companies, banks, joint stock land banks, corporations deriving income from American corporations, foreign corporations, corporations in bankruptcy and receivership, and China trade corporations.

Capital Gains Changes.

The report would liberalize the existing law relating to computation of investment losses and profits in determining taxable income. The subcommittee proposes that 100 per cent of the profit or loss on an asset held one year or less shall be subject to tax. Beginning at 13 months, however, the percentage of loss or profit shall be cut 2 per cent for each month of retention for the next 12 months and 1 per cent a month thereafter until, on an asset held five years or more, only 40 per cent of the loss or profit would be subjected to tax.

After a taxpayer has figures on his net capital gain the subcommittee would allow him to pay the tax by either of two methods. The net gain could be added to the taxable income and paid for at the rates applicable to the income bracket into which it falls. Or the taxpayer can pay a flat 40 per cent on the net profit.

Estate Exemption Cut.

The subcommittee would increase estate and gift taxes by eliminating exemptions rather than raising rates. At present there is a $40,000 tax free exemption under the estate tax and another $40,000 exemption under the gift tax. The subcommittee would allow but one exemption of $40,000 against either tax. Further the subcommittee would cut the $5,000 annual gift tax exemption to $3,000.

Among the 63 recommendations was one that the bureau of internal revenue be allowed to issue declaratory rulings which will be binding on parties involved in a tax dispute, the government as well as the taxpayer. The recommendation was made to meet complaints that taxpayers cannot rely on rulings of the bureau and have been subjected to the uncertainty of being changed by higher or later authority.

Hopes to Stimulate Business.

The subcommittee stated in its report that the combined effect of its recommendations would preserve the internal revenue tax structure so that the receipts of the government from these tax sources will not be adversely affected. This in accordance with the recommendations of the President in his message to congress.

The report added: "According to the treasury representatives, it appears reasonably certain that this [end] has been accomplished and that if the revenue system is revised as recommended the total of tax receipts will not be changed to any substantial extent. It is also certain that the changes proposed will tend to stabilize the revenue.

"It is the opinion of your subcommittee that there will be a very substantial stimulation to business by the enactment of the recommendations of the subcommittee into law and that they will bring into being a well balanced tax system, improved in respect to certainty and equity."

BUSINESS BITS

Albert W. Harris.

Albert W. Harris, chairman of the Harris Trust and Savings bank, was honored at a testimonial dinner given by employés of the bank last night in the grand ballroom of the Palmer house. The occasion was his completion of fifty years as a member of the Harris institution. He is a son of Norman W. Harris and began with N. W. Harris & Co. in 1888. He worked through all departments and was a managing partner before the firm incorporated in 1907 as the Harris Trust and Savings bank. He was its president from 1913 until Jan. 1, 1923, when he became chairman of the board. The testimonial presented to the chairman by the members of his official family was a book signed by all employés and containing pictures of officers and other employés who have been with the bank for twenty-five years or more.

Thaddeus R. Benson, president of the Chicago Stock exchange, and Edward B. Hall, past president of the Investment Bankers' Association of America, will speak on current trends in stocks and bonds at the midyear banquet of the Women's Finance Forum to be held Jan. 27 in the grand ballroom of Hotel Sherman.

W. W. Wachtel has been elected president of Calvert Distillers' corporation, with which he has been associated as vice president since July, 1936.

William R. Bacon has been elected president of the San Francisco Stock exchange to succeed Frank C. Shaughnessy, who headed the exchange for four years. Bacon has been chairman of the listing committee and a member of the governing board since 1935.

Chicago Mercantile exchange members will install President Michael E. Fox and other reëlected officers for their 1938 terms at a short business session on the trading floor Monday. Members will end their annual meeting with a dinner-dance in the grand ballroom of the Palmer house. Harry Field is chairman of the committee arranging the party.

John J. Bergen has been elected a director of the Grumman Aircraft Engineering corporation.

INDUSTRY OUTPUT IS REPORTED 33.8% BELOW 'NORMAL'

The physical volume of industrial production in the United States in December declined to a level 33.8 per cent below "normal," and the drop was accompanied by reduced employment and a slackening of business activity, Col Leonard P. Ayres, vice president of the Cleveland Trust company, said yesterday. However, he reported one hopeful sign, a decrease in inventories. Excessive inventories, he said, constitute one of the main obstacles to business recovery.

The decline in production in December and the preceding three months was one of the most rapid ever recorded, Ayres said. November production, he said, was 30.6 per cent below "normal," and the rate slid off in December to 33.8 below, based on the federal reserve index of factory and mineral production.

HIRAM WALKER, DISTILLER, HAS GAIN IN PROFITS

Earns $2.95 Per Share in Three Months.

Hiram Walker-Gooderham & Worts, Ltd., Canadian distiller with operations concentrated in the United States market, yesterday reported net profit of $2,250,996 in the quarter ended Nov. 30, 1937. In the corresponding 1936 period net profit was $1,887,971. The earnings in the 1937 quarter were $2.95 on each common share, compared with $2.45 in the 1936 quarter.

Net profit included provisions for depreciation, interest, and federal income taxes, but not for surtaxes.

California Packing corporation estimated that its net profit in the fiscal year which will end Feb. 28 will be between $2,000,000 and $2,500,000, or a little more than $2 a share on the common stock. Profit in the preceding year was $4.92 a share.

Utility Earns Less.

The Federal Light and Traction company, which operates in Arkansas, Missouri, New Mexico, Arizona, and in Rocky mountain areas, reported that it and its subsidiaries had net income of $1,451,896, or $2.26 a common share, in the fiscal year ended Sept. 30, 1937, compared with $1,607,383, or $2.55 a share, in the preceding year. Allowance was made for depreciation, federal income taxes, surtaxes, subsidiary preferred dividends, and other charges.

The Alaska Juneau Gold Mining company estimated its 1937 operating profit at $2,456,700, including other income, but not allowing for depreciation, depletion, or taxes. It earned $2,625,700 in 1936.

Paint Company Reports.

Cook Paint and Varnish company reported for the eleven months ended Nov. 30, 1937, net profit of $456,814 after surtaxes, or $1.51 a common share. Net profit in the entire year ended Dec. 31, 1936, was $483,428, or $1.65 a share. The fiscal year has been changed to end Nov. 30.

Sharon Steel Corporation Again Working Hot Mills

Sharon, Pa., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—The Sharon Steel corporation is working its hot mills after being closed down for two weeks. The Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation also has better schedules at its two plants here. As a result, the rate of operations in the Shenango valley was somewhat better this week.

Deisel Wemmer Gilbert.

Investors' Guide: Please give me what information you can about Deisel Wemmer Gilbert.—J. B.

Answer: Deisel Wemmer Gilbert corporation manufactures cigars, most of which are in the low and medium priced classes where demand has been best in recent years. The corporation controls the Bernard Schwartz Cigar corporation.

Net income for nine months ended Sept. 30, 1937, was $379,034, or $1.68 a common share, compared with net income of $445,462, or $1.90 a share, in the corresponding period a year ago. The record of earnings in recent years:

	Sales.	Netincome.	Per com. share.
1935	4,679,777	414,513	1.70
1934	4,886,736	400,425	1.56
1933	4,138,587	259,750	0.76
1932	3,426,893	295,706	0.85
1929	6,432,430	896,285	3.23

The company has 9,292 shares of 7 per cent $100 par cumulative preferred stock and 196,942 shares of $10 par common outstanding. The last two annual statements showed a substantial excess of current assets over current liabilities.

The preferred stock is of fairly good grade and the common is medium grade. Common dividends in 1937 totaled $2 a share.

Dividends.

Investors' Guide: For income tax purposes please tell me the total 1937 dividends paid on the following stocks, including extras: Crane company common, Crane company 8 per cent preferred, American Telephone and Telegraph company, E. I. du Pont common, Standard Oil of Indiana, and Sears Roebuck.—F. E. I.

Answer: Dividends paid on the stocks last year were as follows: Crane common, $1; Crane 8 per cent preferred, $2.50; American Telephone, $9; du Pont common, $6.25; Standard Oil of Indiana, $2.80; Sears Roebuck, $5.50.

Reading 4½s.

Investors' Guide: Please advise me regarding Reading 4½s of 1997 bonds. C. A. W.

Answer: The Reading company general and refunding mortgage series "A" and "B" 4½s of 1997 are regarded as sound. The issue is a direct lien on the entire property of the company, subject to certain underlying claims. Although this railroad's earnings declined along with those of other carriers in the last quarter of 1937, the company covered fixed charges 1.85 times in the first nine months of the year.
